REMEDY MAX' PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND:

Over the past 20 years Remedy Max has delivered numerous risk-based educational platforms and strategic support services to the Corporate Business Sector to help them optimize their operations as well as to create core competencies in their workforce to efficiently and effectively identify, guard against, respond to, mitigate against, and recover from particular internal / external risk threats and associated harms.

In addition she delivers streamlined public education platforms and advisory support to members of the General Public to empower and guide them on available social and situational risk mitigation strategies to best protect their personal safety and safeguard their physical assets from various risks and agents of chaos.

As an experienced and effective public speaker, workshop leader and published writer / author she continues to share her public safety & security subject matter expertise in person, online support groups and through her written publications.

Her stellar reputation as a safety and security strategist is well known by many in Canada, the USA and internationally from her current online presence as well as when she worked as a weekly safety columnist for the Metro Toronto Newspaper from 2004 to 2005 and freelance risk mitigation contributing writer for various magazines and online publications. She is also working currently on her next book aimed to help Problem Gamblers understand their behavior addiction using the Fractured Psyche Recovery Model she developed and has been using to assist many worldwide bring their addiction urges to an end instead of learning to just manage them to avoid relapse.

As a writer and author, Remedy Max is well known for the provincial government of Ontario's publication, the "Emergency Preparedness Guide for People with Disabilities and Special Needs". The first comprehensive provincial government publication of its kind that offered people with disabilities and those with special needs living in Ontario with tools and insights to plan and become better prepared in the event a large scale emergency event might be declared. For her remarkable contribution to the province of Ontario and to its more than 1.9 Million Ontarians living with disabilities and special needs – in 2008 she received the prestigious National Red Cross Humanitarian Award from Minister Rick Bartolucci in recognition of the positive impact the printed guide and her continued public outreach efforts that produced a positive impact on hundreds of vulnerable communities and its members across Ontario.

Remedy Max' passion and commitment to promoting risk mitigation initiatives was also reflected through her many public outreach initiatives, public consultations and special guest appearance at various municipal and public community events. Public speaking engagements to which she was regularly invited to deliver valuable talks to promote the provincial government's commitment to enhance public safety & security for persons with disabilities and the most vulnerable in the province.

In addition to speaking at public events, Remedy Max appeared on CBC News World TV in 2007 as a featured subject matter expert on emergency management– where she represented the provincial government of Ontario speaking to the government's commitments and mandates to help Ontarians with disabilities and special needs become better informed and prepared for a large scale emergency event. The televised half hour interview aired live across Canada and internationally where she readily answered specific questions from the program host and also elaborated on the various other emergency preparedness safety tips recommended for viewers on how to become better prepared and self-sufficient for the first 72 hours after an emergency is declared by their local / state government. This live interview is just one of several public speaking engagements that propelled her status as an effective and sought after public speaker.

Remedy Max' continued commitment to her public service work from 2005 to 2013 and the outstanding public outreach initiatives she achieved while holding the posts of Public Education Officer and Diversity Outreach Officer for the provincial government in Ontario – earned her additional professional recognition awards. She received two distinct Ontario's Ovation Awards in the categories of Community Outreach Excellence and Innovation Excellence. She also received the Ontario's Amethyst Award for her Outstanding Contribution to promote emergency preparedness to children.

ADDITIONAL FIELD WORK EXPERIENCE: DOMESTIC VIOLENCE PREVENTION

Remedy Max is a knowledgeable speaker on the subject of Domestic Abuse and Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) Prevention who fully appreciates the sensitive nature of this often emotionally charged subject matter. As such, she delivers speaking points with great sensitivity drawing on her decades of field experiences working in communities and providing advisory support to women and men abused by their spouse/intimate partner. She also incorporates the knowledge gained from her work with Woman's ACT (Woman's Abuse Council of Toronto).

In this community project she served as their Court Watch Reporter in the Provincial Family Courts in Ontario to monitor court proceedings to help identify needed social justice reforms to enhance understanding on the cycle of Domestic Abuse and the needed protective safeguards needed for victims of Intimate Partner Violence (IPV). To help dispel society's common misconceptions about why victims of IPV often stay with an abusive partner – she readily speaks to the different barriers and factors that leave many female and male IPV survivors feeling stuck in an abusive relationship not by choice rather by circumstance.

She is well versed on the topic of how particular social and economic barriers, biases, stigma and lack of resources leave many IPV victims feeling isolated, alone, helpless, ashamed, and afraid to tell others about the abuse or why they often refrain from reporting the assault to the authorities. She also refers to the “dark shadow” of domestic violence incidence rates and why particularly demographic groups - particularly male IPV victims are disproportionately less likely to talk to others about being abused or report an assault to the authorities. Remedy Max illuminates current socio-economic gaps including certain social attitudes and false perceptions about Domestic Abuse and IPV that need to improve to provide victims with added protections and new opportunities to reclaim their life. She uses emotionally charged topics to identify the Frailty of the Human Condition and speaks to the uncomfortable truths to help audiences gain needed perspective to promote change in social attitudes as well as promote social justice reforms so that survivors of IPV have access to healthier, safer and inclusive environments regardless of their gender, race, ethnicity, religion, abilities or age.

RELEVANT FIELD WORK EXPERIENCE: BEHAVIOR ADDICTION / SUBSTANCE ABUSE RECOVERY

In addition to her talks on Domestic Violence Prevention, Remedy Max is well versed on the topic of Behavior Addiction Recovery and she readily speaks on this subject to generate public awareness and the value that early detection and entering recovery offers not just to those struggling with Problem Gambling (including other forms of compulsive high risk and self-destructive behavior addictions) but also about the toll and negative impact that Behavior Addictions and Substance Abuse has on family members, friends, employers and society on the whole.

What makes Remedy Max a Subject Matter Expert and knowledgeable speaker on the topic of Behavior Addiction Recovery is her work with survivors of domestic violence and other forms of trauma – where she observed years ago how many also struggle with various forms of substance abuse and behavior addictions like Problem Gambling. Recognizing the linkage and common overlap between trauma and addiction prevalence led her to develop a revolutionary new approach to help those struggling with behavior addictions end the cycle of relapse, address comorbid addictions as well as prevent future addiction vice transference.

She coined her revolutionary recovery model the "Fractured Psyche Addiction Recovery Model". This recovery tool has proven to be of immense value over the past decade to those struggling with Problem Gambling Relapse (including; other forms of compulsive high risk behaviors such as Sex Addiction, Shopping Addiction, Eating Disorders, Compulsive Shoplifting, Workaholism, etc...).

Individuals who found her new recovery approach most effective have been those for whom conventional addiction recovery models were insufficient to bring the cycle of relapse to an end as they were looking to not just learn to manage their addiction to avoid relapse – rather to bring an end to their urges by understanding their inclination for the high risk self-destructive tendencies from a different perspective.

Many have found Remedy Max' revolutionary recovery model of great value in their recovery journey after having their behavior addiction presented through a different lens. One that guides them to recognize their addiction not as the problem, but rather as a symptom of a deeper underlying root cause needing to be treated and healed to end the cycle of relapse as well as prevent incidence of addiction comorbidity and future addiction vice transference.
