

There once was a boy who looked after sheeps. The boy was so bored he decided to do a prank on the villagers. The boy cried "Help, there's a big scary wolf!" while there was none.

The villagers came up to the hill to save the sheeps. When they came, they saw no wolf. The boy laughed at them for falling for the prank.

The villagers got mad at the boy and said "You must not tell lies!". Then, they went back to the village. Soon, the boy got bored and did it again. "Haha, I can't believe you fell for it again!" said the boy.

"Stop telling lies!" shouted the villagers. Later that day, a wolf did really come into the field. The boy shouted "Help! Help! Wolf! Wolf!" but nobody came to his rescue.

Moral of the story is...if you tell lies, people won't believe you when you tell the truth.
