Acknowledgements

James Hugh Stevenson has been working as a professional English teacher in Japan for over fifteen years.

James would like to thank all the English as a foreign language students he has worked with over the past fifteen years.

In particular, he would like to thank the IELTS students who have trusted him to help them prepare for their IELTS tests.

James was inspired to create this textbook by his students who enjoy doing wordsearches as a relaxing way to supplement their studies.

Introduction

This workbook was designed to help English language learners improve their English vocabulary for the IELTS test.

The words chosen for this textbook are suitable for IELTS band 5 and above.

In traditional wordsearches the student simply highlights or circles the words once they have found them. The wordsearches in this workbook are in a dotted font. The words are designed to be traced rather than simply highlighted. This process strengthens retention of the word. It is easier to remember new words if you write them down.

After each puzzle is completed, there are exercises to help the learner understand how to use the word in a sentence. There are ten scrambled sentences for each wordsearch. The exercises provide example sentences of how the word can be used in a sentence. By completing the exercises after each wordsearch students will be able understand how to use the words and this will help with word retention.

How to use this textbook

Search for the highlighted words in the wordsearches.

Trace the letters of the word in the wordsearches.

Put the words in the correct order in the exercises.

Copy the sentences from the exercises in a notebook.

Write your own sentence in a notebook using the words from the wordsearches.

Complete one wordsearch every week or go at your own pace.
