Acknowledgements

James Hugh Stevenson first moved to Japan fifteen years ago and has been working as an English teacher ever since. James has a great deal of experience teaching TOEIC and has helped countless students in Japan prepare for their tests.

Thank you to all of the English students that James has taught since he became a teacher. Thank you for your support and trust.

This book was created to help anyone who is studying for the TOEIC test. Wordsearches can be a relaxing way to improve your vocabulary.

Good luck to everyone who is studying for the TOEIC test.

Introduction

This workbook was designed to help English language learners improve their English vocabulary for the TOEIC test.

The words chosen for this textbook are suitable for a TOEIC score of over 605.

In traditional wordsearches the student simply highlights or circles the words once they have found them. The wordsearches in this workbook are in a dotted font. The words are designed to be traced rather than simply highlighted. This process strengthens retention of the word. It is easier to remember new words if you write them down.

After each puzzle is completed, there are exercises to help the learner understand how to use the word in a sentence. There are ten scrambled sentences for each wordsearch. The exercises provide example sentences of how the word can be used in a sentence. By completing the exercises after each wordsearch students will be able understand how to use the words and this will help with word retention.

How to use this textbook

Search for the highlighted words in the wordsearches.

Trace the letters of the word in the wordsearches.

Put the words in the correct order in the exercises.

Copy the sentences from the exercises in a notebook.

Write your own sentence in a notebook using the words from the wordsearches.

Complete one wordsearch every week or go at your own pace.
