FISH IN A SLIME BAG

Supplies Needed: Plastic fish (or mermaids or sharks or turtles); Liquid Starch; Elmer's Glue (I used blue glitter glue); Treat bags (mine were plain bags but the shaped treat bags look like a fish bowl! perfect!); Twine or ribbon

How to make slime: Add 1/4 cup of water to a bowl. Next add one container of clear glue or glitter glue to your bowl (about 1/2 cup or basically the entire 6 oz container of glue). Stir very briskly or use a whisk. Stirring gently won't incorporate the water into the glue-you don't want the water to remain separate as you can see above. Stirring with a fork or whisk will bring both ingredients together. If you use a clear glue or white glue you might add food coloring, watercolor paint or glitter to your mixture. I used a blue glitter glue so I skipped this step. Stir well to get the color you want. Now add 1/2 cup liquid starch to your mixture and again stir well to incorporate. After stirring I like to let it sit for maybe 5-10 minutes and that allows the rest of the water to be absorbed and it also seems to harden the slime up just a bit to make it easier to handle. Knead the slime with your hands until it feels bouncy and stretchy. I placed the slime in my treat bag in a ball. The slime will mold to a big blob at the bottom so I placed the fish in the slime in the front of the bag and on the top after putting the slime in the bag. Tie with a ribbon and present your fish in a bag. Source: www.myfrugaladventures.com

MAKE NATURAL LIP BALM

For the lip balm: 1/2 tsp shea butter, 2 tsp coconut oil, 1 tsp soya wax, 4-7 drops of peppermint essential oil, Small metal tin

How to make natural lip balm without beeswax: 1. First, put half a pan of water on to boil. While the water heats, measure out the shea butter, soya wax and coconut oil, and place into an old glass jar. 2. Bring the water to a simmer, then carefully place the glass jar into the pan, making sure no water splashes inside the jar – this will prevent the ingredients from melting together smoothly. 3. Once fully melted, carefully remove the jar from the pan and leave to cool for a couple of minutes, until slightly set. 4. Add between four to seven drops of peppermint essential oil to the mixture – the more drops you add, the more minty the lip balm's flavour will be. 5. To finish, pour the mixture into the lip balm tin, transferring it into a jug first if you prefer. Pop the lid on and leave to cool overnight. To speed up the process, put the tin into the fridge for an hour. Your lip balm is complete. You've officially learnt how to make lip balm without beeswax, congrats! THE DANCE PROJECT NW EARNS THREE STUDIO OF EXCELLENCE AWARDS AT KAR DANCE COMPETITION

The Dance Project NW's competitive dance program started its season with a historic achievement, earning three Studio of Excellence Awards at the Kids Artistic Revue Dance Competition (KAR), held in Portland, Oregon. These awards are among the most prestigious honors a studio can receive at KAR, recognizing exceptional performance, technical excellence, and consistency across all competitive divisions. To qualify, studios must: Compete in every major category—Solo, Duo/Trio, Small Group, and Large Group or Line; Earn placements in Overall High Point Awards. Achieving one Studio of Excellence Award is an accomplishment. Earning three out of four available levels—Elite, Intermediate, and Secondary—is a rare and remarkable feat. "In my decades of owning and working with studios, both in Washington and California, I have never had competition dancers earn this level of recognition," said Amber Welte, owner of The Dance Project NW. "This achievement reflects the dedication of our dancers. Their hard work has truly paid off, and I couldn't be prouder." The Dance Project NW's competition team, which includes over 80 dancers ages 4 to 18, delivered exceptional performances throughout the weekend. The studio as a whole serves over 300 students, offering high-quality training across multiple dance styles. At KAR, TDPNW dancers brought home an impressive number of awards. "We started Year 7 with the BIGGEST bang we could ever imagine!" TDPNW shared on social media. "Thank you to our amazing teachers, dedicated dancers, and loyal dance parents. We made some incredible memories together and truly bonded." Amber Welte emphasized the deeper impact of this achievement beyond the awards. "At The Dance Project NW, we strive to create an environment where dancers feel supported, challenged, and inspired. These awards are a reflection of the dedication of our students, the commitment of our incredible teaching staff, and the unwavering support of our dance families. We are building not just talented dancers, but strong, confident individuals who uplift each other and push beyond their limits." With this milestone setting the tone for the season, The Dance Project NW's competition team will continue their journey with three more competitions this spring before heading to Anaheim, CA, for the Revolution Nationals this July. The team looks forward to further showcasing their passion, precision, and teamwork on the national stage. www.thedanceprojectnw.com/.

Moonshine Wisdom & Wit

Story by Jack Archibald.

HOMELESS ON THE SOUTH END OF AMERICA

I got a friend who was bothered that we spent tax payer dollars, HIS tax dollars, to conduct a survey of the island, maybe find out how many people are homeless here in Shangri-La-La. If you think this bothered him, imagine what his irritation level will be when the next step pops up: funding for shelters or god forbid, small houses. Out here on the Left Coast we have warmer winters than most places back east so homeless folks can survive a bit easier without frostbite or hypothermia. From Seattle and Gomorrah to San Diego, our cities are crowded with people living in their cars, in tents, huddled over heat vents, hiding under freeway overpasses and back alleys, entire families struggling to stay alive in whatever shelter they can scrounge up.

RV's can be found lining multiple blocks, rusted and busted vehicles that no longer run, without water or power or sewer, without garbage pickup, without most of what the rest of us in the Land of Plenty have in abundance. But ... there are those who find no compassion for these American refugees, no sympathy for their plight, no pity for the poor. If my pal is any indication, the best remedy is to keep them out of sight and out of mind and definitely away from his wallet and tax dollars. He believes the 'homeless situation' is a hoax, just a ruse to use tax money for bogus bureaucratic bullshit. He asked me if I had ever, ever, known anyone on this island who was homeless. I said of course. Stinky Steve, for one. My heroin addict thief for another. And that was only on the South End. Up north, closer to town, there were plenty more than that.

I'm not on the homeless census count committee. And I doubt it's epidemic here yet. But on any given day the Food Bank is open, the number of folks seeking handouts is incredible. Most have apartments, I'm betting. Some might even own a house. But there must be plenty who haul their bounty back to a tent or a shed somewhere back in the woods. Why begrudge them these morsels? Why go ballistic over trying to count them and, god forbid, even help them in some small way. We're not going to build them a 3 story house and buy them a BMW so they can feel like a part of our community. Although maybe if we did, they'd side with my buddy and stop all future funding for those other leeches who want a free ride. Maybe I'll try that argument on him, see if it works. Cause I want this whining to end. The rich have got to stop complaining!

HERITAGE PARK IMPROVEMENTS

A number of improvements are coming to Heritage Park to enhance parks and recreation for residents and visitors alike! Pump Track Project: A state-of-the-art pump track will be constructed near the skate park this year and is designed for all ages and skill levels. A pump track is a circular loop of rollers and berms that when ridden correctly, requires little pedaling or pushing. It is geared for wheeled sports and is becoming an increasingly popular amenity at parks and public spaces. Construction of the pump track is anticipated to begin this spring or summer. New Playground: Another priority for Heritage Park is building a new playground that is inclusive and accessible for all. This new play space will feature thoughtfully chosen equipment and amenities that kids of all ages and abilities will love. The design process is happening this year with the playground scheduled to debut in 2026. Additional 2025 improvements include remodeled bathrooms and new dugout fencing.

SPRING TRIVIA

SAFETY CAMERAS

To support crime prevention efforts, City Council recently approved the installation of 14 Flock Safety cameras at key locations throughout Stanwood. These cameras provide real-time alerts to law enforcement when they detect stolen vehicles, stolen license plates, or vehicles associated with wanted suspects, missing persons or other serious crimes. How they work? Flock Safety cameras are not live surveillance tools and do not provide real-time video feed or facial recognition. The cameras capture still images of vehicles and license plates strictly for investigative purposes. Unlike traditional license plate readers, Flock cameras capture additional details such as vehicle make, model, color, plate type and visible alterations. All data is securely stored in a cloud-based system for 30 days before automatic deletion, unless linked to an active criminal investigation. By installing these, we aim to enhance public safety and efficiency, reinforcing our commitment to proactive crime prevention. Learn more at <https://bit.ly/4id0PS7>

KRASKI APPOINTED FIRE CHIEF OF NORTH COUNTY FIRE/EMS

David Kraski, a lifelong resident of Arlington, WA, is the new fire chief for North County Regional Fire Authority (North County Fire/EMS). Kraski replaces former Chief John Cermak, who served in the position of 10 years before retiring this month. The fire authority provides fire suppression and emergency medical service to 47,000 people over 120 square miles, including the cities of Stanwood and Arlington. Kraski started his career in the fire service in the 1990s when Arlington opened a fire station near his home and he volunteered as a firefighter. He worked his way up the ranks to become the fire chief for the city in 2018. In 2021, Kraski was instrumental in communicating with city residents about annexing to North County Fire/EMS. The reason for annexation was to be more cost-effective for taxpayers and provide an improved emergency response with combined resources for both city and fire authority residents. The ballot measure passed overwhelmingly at almost 90%. Chief Kraski joined North County Fire/EMS as its operations chief after the annexation took effect. Chief Kraski has an associate's degree in fire science and is pursuing a bachelor's degree in fire administration. He and Denise, his wife of 30 years, have lived in north Snohomish County for 30 years and raised two daughters Jordan and Olivia.

ICOM-911

There is an important issue on the April ballot for Island County. Our current emergency dispatch system is struggling to meet the increasing demands of our community. Our ICOM-911 system is asking for a small increase (0.02%) on taxable sales in the county. The system is decades old and needs replacing. Your property taxes do NOT pay for ICOM -911. It is NOT funded by the government. It is User funded by the Sheriff and Fire departments. This sales tax measure will fund new equipment and infrastructure. If you have an emergency and call 911, you need them to be able to respond. This vote will ensure they can answer your call. The Sales tax would only add 0.02% (2 cents on $10). Everyone, including tourists, would contribute. Please vote to ensure our 911 system continues to provide great support for our community. For more info go to ICOM911.org. Please vote YES on the Island County Sales Tax measure.

RAW SALMON IS DEADLY TO DOGS

Ollie, a 7-year-old chocolate Labrador retriever, found a dead salmon while walking along a riverbank. While Ollie had not bitten into the salmon, it was clear that he must have licked it and had enough of an encounter with it to be poisoned by the salmon's parasitic flukes that contain the bacteria Neorickettsia helminthoeca. By the time he presented to UC Davis 10 days later, he was quite ill. Salmon poisoning can be fatal within 2 weeks if not treated. Thankfully, the Emergency and Critical Care and Small Animal Internal Medicine Services asked the owner the right questions and recognized the signs of salmon poisoning, which is treatable with the correct antibiotics and dewormer, saving Ollie's life. Keep your dogs away from raw salmon! Source: <https://www.vetmed.ucdavis.edu/news/>

PREVENT COLD WATER SHOCK

As spring begins for many, seeing photos from the day of paddlers in t-shirts or light jackets on the water in areas where the water is obviously still lethally cold is already becoming more common. Many may not realize that the warm air temperature and the amazing feeling to be out in a t-shirt doesn't prevent cold water shock or the risks of cold water. We can all help spread awareness. Here's a case, shared after a previous spring season, where my cousin, Beatrice Riisi Huuemonen, and fellow kayak instructors by fortunate happenstance came across one paddler that had capsized in cold sea water on a warm spring day and was completely unprepared for the occasion - both in terms of how to get back into a kayak, even if assisted, and in terms of a complete lack of cold water safety clothing. Might well have been a life saved. Stay safe out there! Source: Facebook - Patrik Vuorio Paddling safety (kayak, SUP, canoe, packraft etc).

Library 10th Anniversary

A weekly announcement about the beginnings of the Camano Island Library.

10 years CAMANO ISLAND LIBRARY

CONTINUING THE STORY OF BECOMING THE CAMANO ISLAND LIBRARY...

Passing the Bond, Part 2

On November 5, 2013, Jonalyn Woolf-Ivory, Executive Director of Sno-Isle Libraries, announced that, at the direction of the Board of Trustees, the Camano Island Pilot Project Library would close at the end of its current lease in April, 2014. After this announcement, Sno-Isle Libraries received hundreds of communications requesting that the library not be closed. A group of volunteers from the August campaign asked the Board of Trustees to submit the capital bonds proposal to the voters again in the spring of 2014, given the closeness of the previous election.

On December 16, 2013, the Sno-Isle Libraries Board of Trustees, adopted Resolution #13-08 which reaffirmed that “a permanent new library facility on Camano Island is essential to the public welfare of Camano Island.” The Board of Island County Commissioners was requested to call a special election to be held on April 22, 2014 to resubmit the bond proposal to the voters.

From February to April, 2014 the Citizens for a Camano Island Library PAC conducted a second campaign to build the new library at the Terry’s Corner location purchased by the library district. If the bond were to fail this time, the library would close on April 30. On April 22, 2014 Camano Island voters APPROVED a 10-year, $2.3 million bond to locate a library at Terry’s Corner with a 62% vote in favor of the proposition!

Throughout May and June Sno-Isle Libraries moved toward beginning construction of the new library by hiring the architects and forming a Building Committee comprised of staff and community representatives. Jeanne Crisp of Sno-isle chaired this committee and Dan Nelson of Design Northwest Architects and Stig Carlson Architecture from Whidbey Island were selected to develop the design. Kirtley Cole Associates of Everett were selected as general contractor of the project. With approval of the sale of construction bonds in September, 2014 work could begin!

WHY IT IS IMPORTANT ALWAYS TO PROOFREAD YOUR TEXTS BEFORE YOU PRESS SEND

Recently I created a bit of a panic with a buddy of mine who became deeply distraught over my wife's shocking passing – because I texted him that she had been killed. Let me explain. I use the text feature on my phone a lot. But I don't like typing, because it takes too long. So, I usually dictate my text using the voice recognition feature. Which brings me to the subject of my wife's death, which – and I can't stress this enough – never happened. She's fine. Honest. Throughout our marriage, we've always had cats. We had this one adorable calico kitty named Mischief. But I usually just called her Misha. I loved Misha deeply, which is why I was profoundly saddened to learn one day that she had escaped out the front door, ran off, was hit by a car and killed. The next day, I got a text from a buddy of mine named Frank, reminding me about our lunch plans. I texted him back and told him that I would have to pass on lunch. I was not up for it because, as I texted, "I'm feeling a little down today. Misha was killed last night." Only that was not how my dictation came through. The message Frank received was: "I'm feeling a little down today. Michele was killed last night."

"OMG I'm so sorry, man. How'd it happen?" Frank texted back in shock.

"She was hit by a car," I nonchalantly replied, unaware of the typo that changed Misha to Michele.

"A car? A car??? Did they catch the guy? Was he a drunk driver? Were you there when it happened?" a stunned Frank replied.

"No idea what happened or who the driver was. I was watching an episode of The Simpsons at the time," I wrote back.

"Tim, U okay? Do U want me to come over, buddy?" Frank inquired.

"That's okay. I have a busy day today. I need to go to Costco," I casually explained.

"Tim, buddy, are U sure U should be doing a Costco run after what just happened?"

"Well, I'm almost out of Twizzlers and granola bars, And I could use some more detergent," I clarified.

"Wow, I have to say, not sure I could handle this tragedy as calmly as U. Tim, I think maybe U R in shock," Frank probed.

"Nah, not really. To be honest, she was getting pretty old anyway. I figured she wasn't going to be around much longer," I wrote back.

"Seriously, dude? That seems a bit callous, pardon me for saying. She had a lot of good years left in her," Frank wrote back, now starting to freak out.

"Well maybe you're right. I don't know. I sure miss her," I sighed in response.

"I know this might be a bit premature to ask, but are U thinking about any sort of memorial service?" Frank asked, feeling uneasy about what to say next.

"Nah, I don't think so. I don't want to go to all that fuss. I've been through this a few times before."

"Tim, What are U saying????!! R U thinking clearly, my friend? How can I help?" Frank implored.

"Well, I was planning to bury her in the backyard. You don't happen to have a shovel, do you, Frank?" I asked.

"A SHOVEL??? Dude, U'R really not thinking clearly right now," Frank texted back, increasingly concerned about my mental state.

"I don't want to impose. I was going to get a shovel at Costco anyway," I calmly texted back.

"Enough about the shovel! Geez, Tim. I think I better come over. On my way," Frank wrote back frantically.

Then I texted back, "You know the saddest part about all of this, Frank?"

"I can't imagine. Tell me, buddy."

"Turns out she was pregnant. And I had repeatedly told my wife that we needed to get her neutered so that she would not get pregnant. But my wife never got around to doing it," I wrote with a bit of melancholy.

"Pregnant? Seriously? Oh My God! This keeps getting worse and worse. Tim, I had no idea your wife was pregnant," Frank wrote back in utter disbelief.

"What are you talking about, Frank? Michele's not pregnant."

"But you just wrote – wait, hold on. Michele's not pregnant? But you said she was killed in a car crash. You have me totally flipping out, buddy!" Frank wrote back in exasperation.

Eventually we both figured out how this dialogue went off the rails. I explained that it was our cat Misha, not my wife Michele, who had died.

I guess the lesson is to carefully re-read my texts before I press SEND. In fact, now I always check my texts BEFORE I press SEND. Well, most of the time, anyway. Well, I need to go. It's my turn to make dinner tonight. I just dictated the following text to my wife: "Sweetie, dinner will be ready at 6pm. It's your favorite: Barbequed Chicken."

My wife immediately fired back a snippy response: "What's wrong with you? Why in the world would you think my favorite meal is Barbequed Children??"

Uh, oh. I did it again....
