SHAMROCK PAPER CHAIN

What you Will Need: Scissors, Stapler, double sided sticky tape or glue, Green and white A4 sheets of lightweight card

How You Make Your Shamrock Paper Chain: 1. First you need to cut your strips of paper. I used a guillotine for this, but if you are good with a pair of scissors and can cut in a straight line then you can do it without. I cut strips lengthways from the A4 sheets, approximately 1.5cm wide. 2. Then cut each card strip in half, then fold into a V-shape. These little V-shapes are the building blocks of your paper chain. 3. Attach 4 card V-shapes together at the base of each, either using a stapler like I did, or use a little double sided sticky tape or glue (just make sure you leave enough time to dry before proceeding). 4. Make one of the V-shaped pieces of card into a heart shape as shown in the photo, and again secure with either a staple or piece of double sided sticky tape. Do this to only 3 of the V-shped strips, leaving one open. 5. Once you have turned them all into nearly finished shamrocks you are ready to connect them together by securing the last open V-shape but thread it through the shamrock before as shown in the picture. 6. You can then carry on the process to make your Shamrock Paper Chain as long as you want it! Source: <https://blissfuldomestication.com>.

SAMANTHA PIERCE

"My name is Samantha Pierce in the real world but my art name is Samantha Suitcase. There is a story behind the name but for now let's just say it is an imaginary suitcase filled with fun stuff... and who does not love a suitcase? It screams travel, adventure and secrets! As long as I can remember I have always been attracted to the art life, painting, collaging, costume design and the beauty of the illusion of the entertainment world. My personal art quest for ideas and design usually revolves around searching out found objects, scraps of paper, and finding castaway things that most people would just pass by or discard. I guess that is what has always set the stage for my love of collage, drawing, painting and repurposing things. I fancy mixing these things into other images like designing a fresh new puzzle or kaleidoscope. I love to coax new life out of bits of paper, found objects and trinkets to reinvent and tell a new story with them. Vintage magazine pages, old French laundry lists and old ledgers and worn fabrics are all fair game in my the search for materials. I have an obsession for old perfume bottles, vintage cosmetic ads, especially old movie star glamor. I relish leafing through old sheet music, and collecting scraps of gold leaf and looking at architectural antiquities and ruins. To my eyes, all these things have a destiny for my canvas. My imagination is always sparked by the bygone eras of history, luxury and the yester-years of steamship and train travel I like to raid the recycle bin and the trash to find new ways to recreate and reimagine something for an art project. I guess my art story is really a journey through the lost and found department of life. I am looking for ways to make something interesting, and unique out of the chaos of this world and give it a home. Hopefully what I make speaks to someone else's heart and it tells a story of lost and found, dreams and memories, love and life."

Her art will be displayed and for sale the entire month of March at Gallery 1 at the Camano Country Club Clubhouse.

IT'S THE EGGONOMY, STUPID!

We're less than a month into the Second Coming of the Trump Administration and already the temperature down at the Pilot Lounge is hotter than a New Delhi tenement in the last summer's global warming. Jolene's Beauty Salon, thanks to Ronald's constant up-to-the -minute hair on fire news commentary, has resulted in the loss of three of Jolene's most reliable clientele, a fact which she has tried to impress on her gay beautician without much success. A couple more and Ronald will be going with them, she thinks. Although, truth be told in these post-fact times, Rebecca Arnold pretty much instigated the argument when she announced to the entire salon that she was happy the Man in the High Tower had declared that only two sexes were admissible in the new definition of gender. No trans and, according to her, maybe no gays either. Red flag to Ronald's bull.

The Diner, as always, is a hotbed of insurrectionist talk, liberal outrage, militia supporters and even a few customers who seem only interested in breakfasts and lunches. Even the Flatheads left off the usual arguments of stock vs. after market carburetor replacements, 6 to 12 volt upgrades, the only topics across their DMZ concerned now with geopolitics. Did Trump really mean he'd bulldoze Gaza and make a Riviera on the sea? Was Greenland worth a war with the Danes? Should we take back the Panama Canal? Fuggetabout carb overhauls and white wall tires, the vintage car guyz were weighing in on the Ukraine War, the China/Taiwan threat, the NATO debates. Don't even get them started after two refills of Brenda's high octane caffeine on the purges going on with the Musketeeer crews or the confirmation battles split evenly down Party lines!!

The only thing that united these patriotic diners, the only thing, was their unanimous outrage when Anita inked in on every spattered and battered menu "Due to the spike in egg prices all egg items will be $2 extra." The great wailing and the drumbeat pounding of chests that emanated from the formica tables could have been heard clear to Stanwoodopolis. As Two Toke intoned once the hub-bub had died down a few decibels, "It's the eggonomy, stupid!" And for possibly the first time in months, we all laughed.

TOTAL LUNAR ECLIPSE BRINGS A BLOOD MOON THIS MONTH

Skywatchers across North America will be treated to a stunning total lunar eclipse. The lunar eclipse will happen overnight between March 13 and March 14 and will be the first total lunar eclipse visible anywhere in the world since November 2022. A total lunar eclipse occurs when the Earth moves directly between the sun and the full moon, casting its shadow across the lunar surface. During totality — the peak phase of the eclipse — the moon will turn a deep reddish-orange hue, earning it the nickname “Blood Moon.” This effect happens because Earth’s atmosphere scatters shorter wavelengths of light from the sun while allowing longer wavelengths of red and orange hues to be refracted into Earth’s umbra (the darkest part of Earth’s shadow). When these longer wavelengths strike the moon, they can make it appear red, similar to how the sky appears red during sunrise and sunset. The key times for totality across North America are: Pacific Time (PT): 11:26 p.m. (March 13) — 12:31 a.m. (March 14). Unlike solar eclipses, lunar eclipses are completely safe to view with the naked eye. No special equipment is needed, but binoculars or a telescope will enhance the experience by revealing details on the moon’s surface as it changes color. The key to a great view is a dark location away from city lights and clear skies.

SNO-ISLE READS TOGETHER

An annual program that encourages all adults in Snohomish and Island Counties to read the same book, inviting exploration of new ideas and providing opportunities to experience the joy of discovery. The book is Accordion Eulogies by Noé Álvarez. Searching, propulsive, and deeply spiritual, Accordion Eulogies is an odyssey to repair a severed family lineage, told through the surprising history of a musical instrument. Growing up in Yakima, WA, Noé Álvarez never knew his grandfather. Stories swirled around this mythologized, larger-than-life figure: that he had abandoned his family, and had possibly done something awful that put a curse on his descendants. About his grandfather, young Noé was sure of only one thing: that he had played the accordion. Now an adult, reckoning with the legacy of silence surrounding his family's migration from Mexico, Álvarez resolves both to take up the instrument and to journey into Mexico to discover the grandfather he never knew. Álvarez travels across the US with his accordion, meeting makers and players in cities that range from San Antonio to Boston. He uncovers the story of an instrument central to classic American genres that also played a critical role in indigenous Mexican history. Like the accordion itself, Álvarez feels trapped between his roots in Mexico and the U.S. As he tries to make sense of his place in the world—as a father, a son, a musician—he gets closer to uncovering the mystery of his origins.

BOYSENBERRY, RASPBERRY, AND RHUBARB PLANTS AVAILABLE, FREE TO A GOOD GARDEN SPOT

Boysenberry plants are a two-year crop, that is, the canes grow one year and produce large and plentiful berries the second year then die (the canes) after the harvest. Each year a new cane grows (replacing the original) and produces the second year. These berries make excellent jam, pies, hot cake syrup, cobbler and retain their flavor after baking or cooking. Harvest is typically in mid-July and last for about two weeks. A gallon can be picked in about twenty minutes. The canes do have thorns, with the expired canes needing to be cut at the base and removed each winter after a good freeze has rendered them dead. They can run on parallel horizontal wires spaced about two feet apart and each plant (hill) wants at least eight feet to run along the wire with the wires (two parallel) up about 5 feet above the ground which provides for easy picking. A trellis may also be an idea to consider, as long as the canes can run at least 12 feet from the ground. Suggest planting no more than 6 canes per hill or three canes per horizontal wire in one direction. If plenty of room is available, the wires can be doubled in length allowing for one year's growth to run east with the next year's growth running west, thereby avoiding both years of growth along the same run. Rhubarb plants are healthy, producing fresh canes for making pies, Rhubarb syrup, Rhubarb cake and other yummy goods. The plants are self-fertilizing so one only wants to harvest no more than 40% of the plant's production per year, allowing for good and continued growth annually. Both items come from our organic garden, and it's a great time for transplanting. Raspberry another two-year plant that produces good berries late June to early July. The first year canes need to be pruned in winter leaving at least two shoots (nodes) to produce the berries for the following year. Items above come from our organic garden and the reason for this offer is we are downsizing due to over production for our needs today. More info can be obtained by calling Mike at 425-885-1127 daytime. We also have a couple of Douglas Fir and Cedar trees in pots that are about 4 feet tall. All are healthy and FREE!

Library 10th Anniversary

A weekly announcement about the beginnings of the Camano Island Library.

10 years CAMANO ISLAND LIBRARY

CONTINUING THE STORY OF BECOMING THE CAMANO ISLAND LIBRARY...

Early in 2008 the organizing meeting of the Camano Island Library Friends (CILF) was held with 8 people attending. The first public meeting of this group was held on February 28 and Becky Wietzke was elected president. In March of 2009, and against the backdrop of a flagging national economy, the CILF successfully petitioned the Sno-Isle Libraries Board of Trustees to keep the library open until the time was more conducive to put a finance measure for funding the library on the ballot for consideration and approval. In return the CILF committed to raise $20,000 a year to offset the cost of leasing library space. On March 20, 2010, The Camano Island Library Friends sponsored a gala auction "Reading Between the Vines." This event, chaired by Connie Hall, raised over $40,000 to fulfill that commitment to Sno-Isle for 2 years. On February 27, 2012 Sno-Isle Libraries Board of Trustees agreed to accept a proposal from the CILF that this group would support the continued operation of the library with $5,000 per year until a bond measure was brought forward to voters or "for a period of three years from this day's date, whichever comes first."

REUBEN AND RYE STRATA

An overnight casserole that's perfect for a Saint Patrick's Day brunch, lunch, or dinner!

INGREDIENTS: 10-12 slices marble rye bread, cubed (about 6 cups); 1 lb. thinly sliced corned beef, chopped; 2 c. shredded Gruyere or Swiss cheese; 1 c. sauerkraut, rinsed, drained, and pat dry; 1/4 c. chopped dill pickles; 6 lg. eggs, lightly beaten; 2 c. whole or 2% milk; 2/3 c. Thousand Island dressing; 1 pinch garlic powder; 1/4 c. shredded parmesan cheese; Chopped parsley for garnish

DIRECTIONS: 1. Grease a 9x13-inch baking dish and set aside. 2. Place the cubed rye bread in the bottom of the prepared baking dish. Top with corned beef, gruyere cheese, sauerkraut, and pickles 3. In a large bowl, whisk together the eggs. Add the milk, Thousand Island dressing, and garlic powder to the eggs, whisk until well combined. Pour the custard mixture evenly over the bread. Cover the strata and refrigerate overnight. 4. Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Remove the strata from the refrigerator while the oven heats up. 5. Bake the strata uncovered for 45 minutes. Carefully, sprinkle the Parmesan cheese over the strata and bake until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean, about another 5-10 minutes. 6. Remove the strata from the oven and let stand for 10-15 minutes before cutting. Garnish with fresh chopped parsley and enjoy!

AN AMERICAN TOURIST'S GUIDE TO AFRICA

I have traveled all over the world, to Europe, China, and even to Canada. So, I think I know a thing or two about how to get around in foreign cultures – with the exception of Canada. Those Canucks are a total mystery to me.

I recently returned from a three-week safari tour of southern Africa. You know, one of those “glamping” adventures, where you stay in “tents” that are nicer than my house. Based on my experience, let me share with you a few insights to help you evaluate whether glamping in Africa is your cup of tea.

We visited four countries: Zimbabwe, Zambia, Botswana, and South Africa. The plan was to hop into Toyota Land Cruisers and drive through the wilderness in search of all sorts of exotic critters and birds. Oh sure, we saw plenty of lions (but not a single tiger or bear, oh my). We also came upon elephants up close, as well as hippos, giraffes, Cape buffalos, crocodiles, and other amazing critters in the wild. But I had my heart set on spotting a giant panda. Alas, during the entire three weeks, the only panda I saw was on a sign at a Panda Express fast food joint at the airport.

I'll admit it was kind of cool to see lions out in the wild. One time, a pride of seven of them came up to our land cruisers and lay down right next to the vehicles for shade. I was literally two feet from an adult male. But I was more than a little disappointed when the tour guide informed me that it was not safe for me to pat the lion behind the ears – or on the belly for that matter – even though I saw Joe Exotic on the Netflix docuseries Tiger King do that all the time.

One thing that I found rather lame is that, unlike at zoos back home, none of the savanna areas we went had those informational plaques with fun facts about the various critters we saw. All you saw was the animal. I couldn't even Google “fun facts about leopards” because we had no internet in the middle of nowhere. They really need to look into that.

And yeah, it was pretty amazing when we came upon a leopard that had killed an adult impala and carried it 25 feet up a tree – with only its jaws – so it could enjoy its kill without vultures or lions trying to muscle in on its dinner. Something I had never seen in my life. But I was hoping it would have killed a rhino or a hippo. That would have been way cooler. So, yeah, kind of a letdown.

The lodges where we stayed all had tents. And not the kind of tent you might think of for a camping trip back home. These tents came with flush toilets, showers with warm water, ceiling fans, and electricity. But no flat screen TV's in your room. Come on, guys! This is the 21st century. And they would not let you walk from your tent to the lodge after dark. They had to escort you with an armed guide, in case a lion or hippo might attack. In fact a lion had killed an antelope right outside of our tent the night before we arrived. (True.) That would never have happened had we stayed at the Marriott.

One of the high points of our trip was supposed to be our helicopter tour over Victoria Falls – probably the most popular tourist attraction in the entire African continent after the Pyramids. And seeing it from the air is something few people ever get to experience. Oh, sure the view was breathtaking. But unlike Niagara Falls, there was not a single Hard Rock Café or miniature golf course anywhere around. A missed marketing opportunity, if you ask me.

I was also unimpressed by the food. For some reason, every lodge we stayed at kept offering us African food with unpronounceable names like Nshima and Ifinkubala and Vitumbuwa. Not one lodge served pizza, let alone donuts. And don't even get me started about the fact that apparently Mountain Dew is outlawed in Africa.

So, if your idea of a fun vacation is to explore totally different cultures, try exotic foods, see amazing wild animals in their natural habitat, and immerse yourself in a totally alien world, all the while camping in luxury, then, I guess Africa is okay.

Personally, I'd rather go to Disney World and spend the afternoon on their Jungle Cruise ride. There you can navigate you through some of the world's most treacherous waters, steam past lush foliage and waterfalls, and glimpse lions, hippos and zebras up close. And then finish up your adventure with a pepperoni pizza and an ice cold Mountain Dew at the Pizzafari restaurant. Pretty much the same experience, and far less chance of being eaten by a hippo.
