CAMANO LUTHERAN CHILDCARE IS RE-OPENING

Camano Lutheran Childcare, located at the north end of Camano Island (3 miles from the bridge) has been in operation for 40 years, serving the communities of Stanwood and Camano Island. We are an Early Achievers participant, providing a quality program for all children ages 2-12, weekdays 6:30-6:30; DSHS approved; before/after school care; drop-in participation; nutritious USDA approved meals.

We are anticipating re-opening with a new Director and re-imagined program sometime in February 2022.

If you are in need of childcare, please make us aware of your needs by providing the names and ages of each child entering care, the days/times needed, and the best contact information to reach you. Inquiries may be submitted via our email at:

camanochildclasses@gmail.com or visit the church website at: CamanoLutheranChurch.org

WE ARE HIRING IMMEDIATELY FOR ALL POSITIONS

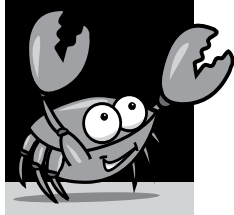

lead teachers, teachers, aides, cook

Part-Time and Full-Time, Split-schedule

No EXPERIENCE necessary—we can work with you to get certified
Perfect opportunity for those attending school or if you have to work with childrens' schedule

inquiries or resumes may be submitted via our email at: camanochildclasses@gmail.com

POLAR BEAR WINTER CRAFT

SUPPLIES FOR THE POLAR BEAR CRAFT: polar bear craft pattern (optional), blue cardstock, white cardstock, black cardstock, newspaper, googly eyes, hole punch, black marker, scissors, glue

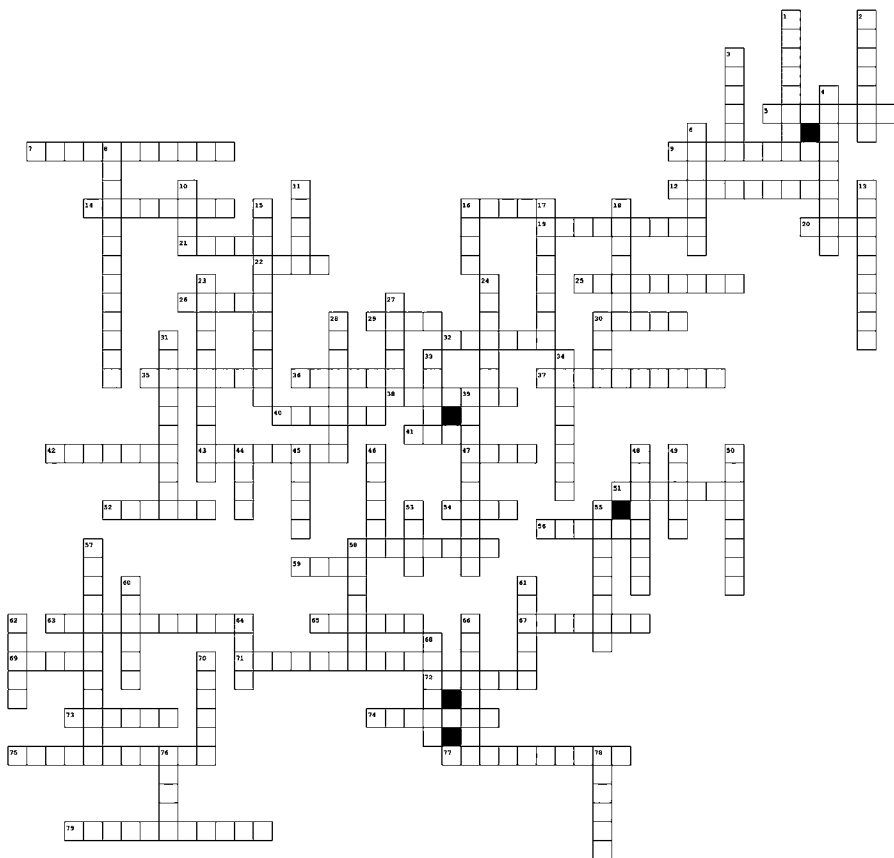

INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE POLAR BEAR NEWSPAPER CRAFT: 1. Begin by cutting out several pieces from your newspaper to make your polar bear. Start with a large circle for the polar bear head. Another half circle for the the polar body body. You will also need two ears and a circle or oval shape for the polar bear muzzle. 2. cut out two half circles for the ears and a nose from black cardstock paper. 3. Tear a section off your white cardstock about one-third down the page. You will notice a textured section along the tear of the cardstock that gives great texture to your craft. Add glue to the back of the cardstock and glue it at the bottom of your blue cardstock. This piece will be the snowy background behind your polar bear. Save the remaining piece of your white cardstock you did not use as scrap to use in a different craft project in the future. 4. Glue the polar body at the bottom of your page, on top of the snow. Then glue the black nose inside the muzzle and the black inside ear pieces onto the ears. Glue the muzzle on the polar bear face and the ears at the top of the polar bear face. 5. Glue the the polar bear face on top of the polar bear body. Now glue on the googly eyes. 6. Draw a mouth on your polar bear with your black marker. 7. Use your hole punch to punch out several white circles. Finish your newspaper polar bear craft by gluing the snow all around your polar bear. NOTE: If the white circle punches seem daunting you can also have children print a finger-print with white paint around their paper for snow. Using a white crayon to draw on snow is also another simple alternative.

SALISH SEA SOUTH END BOOK CLUB

Literacy exists on the South End, despite rumors of its premature demise. Oh sure, the Little Library was sacked and books burned in its first month of opening over at Hutchison Park, but pockets of erudition still flourished. The Salish Sea South End Book Club has been meeting monthly since 2010, its membership mostly stable until the Covid Epidemic forced some to avoid public contamination. Finally the Club went on pre-vaccine hiatus, vowing to return when the plague ran its course.

Naturally the final book selections dealt with ... well, you guessed it, disease and epidemics. Sheila Brockhurst wanted to select Andromeda Strain, some nightmare scenario of extraterrestrial origin unleashed from secret labs in the American desert, but she was out-voted for the last selection before the group went into quarantine. Last Town on Earth, the Club pick, scared everyone enough to go into Lockdown themselves, a frightening little novel about the Spanish Flu and a town, supposedly modeled on Darrington, that sequestered itself from outside contamination. A little close to home in more ways than one, Ginny Schwimmer complained over her Chablis and cheese.

Half wine club, half literary review, some of the members were notoriously averse to reading, coming primarily for the camaraderie and vino. Sylvia Nostrum once voiced her opinion that those who didn't read the week's selection should just stay home and binge-watch Netflix serials, but the bibliophiles tabled that, worried that too few of them would be left for a meaningful discussion. And anyway, the social aspect of the book group probably outweighed rigid enforcement of reading rules. Besides, the non-readers were entertaining in their own right. And they brought the best hors-d'oeuvres.

The Club members took turns meeting at each other's homes, which, if you're the spousal unit, literary or not, meant heading for a nearby tavern, a friend's house or just sequester voluntarily in a back room. The ladies were always inviting us menfolk to join in, always nice to get a gendered opinion on the book of the month, see if the pheromones could get a word in edgewise. I admit, as one of the menfolk, I considered the invitation but in the end decided discretion might be the better part of valor. Or at least an easy way to avoid divorce.

JUDGE TIM'S COURT IS NOW IN SESSION

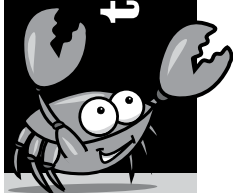

Recently, I decided to retire from my four-decades-long career in sales management. As you know, I'm not one to boast about my many lofty career achievements, but I humbly admit that I was extremely gifted at building and leading successful, high-performing sales organizations (if you ignore the input of my former bosses or any of my sales reps or HR Directors who had to deal with the litany of complaints they received from my sales reps and bosses).

I was preparing to retire to a simpler life of afternoon naps and watching reruns of Modern Family, when I read some shocking news. I learned that after 25 years and 12,500 episodes, Judge Judith Sheindlin, better known as Judge Judy, recently decided to call it quits. She would soon bang her last gavel on the long-running hit daytime show, The People's Court.

I began to wonder anxiously: Who would fill the tremendous void left by Judge Judy's departure? Would America start to descend into lawlessness, violence, and debauchery? More importantly, What would I do to fill my time between 4 and 5pm on weekdays?

Then it hit me. Of course! Call off the search for the next Judge Judy. Because there was one person uniquely qualified to take her place. And that person was staring back at me in the mirror. I would be the natural jurist to fill Judge Judy's shoes (unless she wore high heels, in which case, having to wear pumps would be a deal breaker).

What are my credentials, you ask? Too many to count. I went to Ohio State University's law school, where I finished in the top 99% of my class. I also took three years of Latin in high school, and I remembered that judges use tons of obscure Latin phrases in their decisions, like Quid Pro Quo and Res Judicata. I have no idea what either of these mean, but that's never stopped me from using them in the past.

During law school, I had a part-time job as a conciliation mediator working for the Small Claims Court of the Franklin County, Ohio Municipal Court System and my job was to attempt to persuade complainants to settle their claims out of court. I did a phenomenal job. In fact, I had the highest case settlement record in the court's history. And there is no way my supervisor would dispute my claim because that was 40 years ago, and I'm pretty sure he died a while back.

Another reason I'm the logical successor to JJ is because I was in my high school's theatrical production of Inherit the Wind, a play about the famous Scopes Monkey Trial. I was cast in the role of Matthew Harrison Brady, the prosecutor in the trial.

Again, pardon me if I sound immodest, but my performance was Oscar-worthy. My drama teacher Art Green said about my performance, and I quote, "Tim's performance was at times erratic, and I don't think he quite grasped the motivation of his character. He felt the need to hog the spotlight every chance he got. Tim would be a natural, um...lighting crew assistant."

Stop, Mr. Green. Stop! You're giving me a swelled head! But perhaps most importantly, The People's Court wouldn't even have to buy me a judge's robe, because I already have one (as proven by the photo above), which I bought for a Halloween party in 1994. It still fits me – if I don't have a big meal before trial.

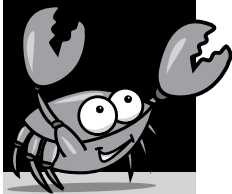

So, now that we've agreed I'm the obvious choice, you can start calling me Judge Tim – once my official judicial confirmation is approved by the U.S. Senate. I've got some, let's just say, "embarrassing dirt" on Senate Majority Leader Schumer, so my confirmation is pretty much assured.

I will be a fair judge, committed to justice. And I will only accept cash bribes if I have a particularly large credit card bill coming due that month.

Wait a minute. I just read that Supreme Court Justice Stephen Breyer might step down in the upcoming year. Maybe I should turn down The People's Court gig and put my name in for Breyer's job. After all, these guys only work 26 weeks a year and they only hear cases on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. Talk about a cushy gig. Yeah, given my marginal work ethic these days, that job sounds more up my alley.

Court adjourned!

SKEETER DRAWS TO AN INSIDE STRAIGHT

"Some of you less fortunate few who may have followed this little blog for probably too long won't be surprised to know that I am actually a stained glass artist. You may even know that I came to my profession in the unlikelyst of routes when, back at the time I bought my old shack with plastic on the windows instead of glass, I chanced to see an item in the Stanwoodopolis Gazette for a night class at the high school to learn the lost art of stained glass. Who lost it, I never learned, but I can tell you one of the lucky ones who found it again. I took one lesson, went home and before the second class the following week my continuing education had terminated once I had finished two windows and a full size door. I never went back for that second class.

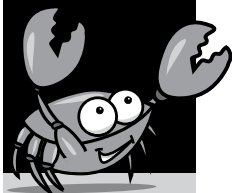

I'm a couple of beers past turning 71 years old. I started breaking glass back in 1980 or slightly before, so it's been 40 plus years. All I wanted to do was replace that plastic in my drafty shack's windows, but a funny thing happened on the way to a warmer house, I just got hopelessly addicted to stained glass, then fortunately fell into public art with a small commission by the WA State Arts Commission.

Public art was what I loved. What I love now. When work was slack, I donated public art around the area, nearly 20 large murals with the last one for the new Island County Administration Building. If I were a better musician, I would give free concerts if the paying gigs weren't coming in. Actually, the South End String Band has. Or if I were a writer, I might write blogs or maybe humor sketches for the local Pulitzer-prizeless Crab Cracker, not for any money but because, well, a writer should really write if he wants to call himself a writer. Because we so-called artists didn't become artists to get rich, we followed a different piper.

We're in the plague years now and when it subsides, just as it was after the Great Recession, money for government spending will be too tight to mention. Public art -- which is based on construction of public buildings -- will grind to a halt the way it did after 2008.

But ... before it all goes to hell in an unsanitized shopping cart, I received notice that I was a finalist for three different WA Arts Commission projects. Well, I thought, long shots but maybe one more before forced retirement. And sure enough, I won one. And that one was for, maybe you guessed it already, the Stanwoodopolis High School. If you think we've come full circle, I couldn't agree more. If you think maybe sometimes the planets line up and the stars shine a bit brighter, I'm thinking so too. If you think I'm grinning from ear to ear under my battered old hat, you'd be absolutely right. Life is full of surprises, probably the only thing you should count on." – Jack Archibald.

A PERSPECTIVE OF CARING FOR 2022

“As we enter into the new year, I wanted to tell you guys a little story. Maybe add some perspective as we head into 2022. This may be long, but I feel it needs to be said. Two days ago I received a frantic text from one of my sweet friends on the island. Her single mom friend had reached out the previous night in tears. Through sobs she told her friend that she had no more money, two more diapers and maybe a wipe or two. She’d maxed out her credit cards on her prior grocery order hoping the snow would melt and she could get back to work. See, she’s a server. She relies heavily on tips. She works her butt off. Normally she’s just fine. But with such a high volume of snow and ice, restaurants closing, not being able to physically get to work - she’d tapped out all of her resources and was very scared. When you are a mama with a two year old to feed, it all feels so much heavier. I reached out to our community via my West Camano Little Free Pantry page. Friends, within 1/2 of a day this community set her up with diapers, wipes, food and $1100 to get her back on her feet. My mom friend went shopping for her, got her all the diapers she could need, food, gift cards, made a grocery order for her and venmo’d her some money for a car repair that she needed because of the freezing conditions. Now, normally this is where my story would end. Our community is incredible. We love on those in need. But, that isn’t even the best part of the story. See, in my time running the little free pantry, I’ve taken heat. I’ve been told I support deadbeats. I’ve had people question the motives or integrity of the people we help. People call out humans they don’t even know for being lazy or unwilling to do their part. One family that I requested formula for a while back, a request that took some heat, however a need that our community came together and filled ten fold, was one of the first messages I received two days ago. See, life has turned around for them a little. They’ve been blessed and things are looking up. They dug out and now they had some extra. This family has been trying not to drown for the better part of two years. Now they are floating. They are back. They are comfortable. They wanted to give back to the community who blessed them so much. They were the first cash donation I picked up. It was their money that helped buy diapers for this scared mama. They remember the fear. So they helped. I guess my point in all of this is, don’t be jaded. Don’t be suspicious of any and all in need because of some bad eggs out there. Are there people who abuse the system? Yes. Is it my job to determine who they are? Nope. Give. Love. Share. Invite. I promise, the majority of it will go to those in genuine need. The rest will sort itself out. As we head into 2022 - continue to love on your neighbors. I promise it all comes back around. As always, I love all of you and this amazing community. Stay safe.” - Facebook post by Tiffany Kostelyk.

MESSAGE FROM A MAIL CARRIER:

"Help us and your other delivery drivers by making sure we have a safe path not only to your door but your mailbox please. And with this freeze, verify we can actually open your box. And above all else, have some patience please. We'll be doing our best. Please remember just because the middle of the roads are plowed and "drivable" the vehicles we drive have to get close to mailboxes and the right side of the road, it is a little more difficult when there is snow plowed up and ice.... some mail or packages may not get delivered due to unsafe conditions and I pray that everyone keeps the safety of all the employees and deliver people in mind. As we all have family and friends we like to get home to as well." Posted on www.nextdoor.com.

NEWEST MUSEUM INSTALLMENT

SAHS Executive Director Fred Poyner IV is pictured here after the installation of the most recent addition to the museum's permanent collection and display of US military Veterans history at the Floyd Norgaard Cultural Center: a US Navy flight suit and other gear worn by LT Karl Fossum, including flight suit, boots, "G-suit" and harness, survival vest, boots and watch. LT Karl Fossum wore this during Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan, while he was assigned to VAQ-141 based at Naval Air Station (NAS) Whidbey Island, during the years 2008 & 2009. These items were part of the standard issue of flight gear issues to airmen operating the EA-6B Prowler aircraft. LT Fossum used this gear in over 20 successful missions during his tours of duty in Afghanistan.

COMMISSIONER NAMED TO STATE PANDEMIC REVIEW TASK FORCE

Melanie Bacon, chair for the Island County Board of Commissioners for 2022, will represent all of Washington state’s 39 counties on a task force formed to improve the response to, and recovery from, possible future pandemics. Bacon, whose district encompasses South and Central Whidbey, was recently appointed to the state Pandemic After-Action Review (AAR) Task Force by Gov. Jay Inslee. “Serving the citizens of Washington is a real privilege, and I hope you find this to be a rewarding experience,” Inslee said in a Dec. 29 letter to Bacon. “Thank you for your willingness to serve the people of Washington.” Bacon, who represents District One on the board of commissioners, was nominated to the task force by the Washington Association of Counties. “I’m honored to have been selected and I’m very excited about it,” she said. While nobody was fully prepared for the COVID-19 pandemic, Bacon said she believes she was selected to serve on the state task force because Island County had “one of the better responses.” “We all knew there would be a pandemic sometime, and Island County did have an emergency plan in place, but that plan hadn’t been updated, nor were people trained to respond to a pandemic,” Bacon said. “It was the same across the state.” Island County was very proactive, being among the first, for example, to purchase special vaccine storage units prior to release of the vaccines, Bacon said. As a result, Island County was one of the first to receive the COVID-19 vaccines and was able to refrigerate vaccines for other entities in the county. “I’m proud of how we handled our response to the pandemic,” Bacon said. “This task force’s findings will enable us to do even better next time.” The Board of Island County Commissioners is planning to conduct its own post-pandemic review, and Bacon said what she learns from serving on the state AAR task force will undoubtedly provide valuable information that will benefit Island County’s effort. As a member of the Washington Association of Counties, Bacon said she will also be sharing what she’s learned with that organization so that all counties in the state benefit. The state Military Department is facilitating the task force and conducting a comprehensive after-action review of the statewide pandemic response and recovery,” said Sheri Sawyer, senior policy advisor for the governor’s office. The AAR task force is funded under the Legislature’s 2020-23 operating budget, she said. The task force is expected to report its initial findings and recommendations to the governor and legislative committees by June 20, 2022 and final recommendations and findings are due on June 20, 2023.

SCHOOL LEVY

The Stanwood-Camano School District is proposing a four-year replacement Capital Projects and Technology Levy on the February 8, 2022 ballot to replace an expiring levy. The proposed local school tax is expected to decrease from current levels. Levies require a simple majority for approval. The Capital Projects and Technology (Cap/Tech) levy covers two areas: Facility improvements and updates that are beyond a general repair or regular maintenance but fall short of bond-level funding needs. Instructional technology and related staffing, professional development and technology infrastructure. Approximately 50 percent of the funds is expected to be used for long-term facility needs, such as: New roof at Cedarhome Elementary; Replacement fire sprinkler lines at Utsalady and Elger Bay Elementary Schools; Portable maintenance at Port Susan, including new roofs, paint and siding repair; Upgraded public address systems at Stanwood Middle and Stanwood Elementary Schools; Various projects to improve student safety, such as fencing and sidewalks. Approximately 50 percent of the funds is expected to upgrade technology used for student learning at all schools. Projects include: Replacing aging classroom computers, Chromebooks and software licenses; Maintaining infrastructure that supports technology for student learning, for example, servers, Wi-Fi and network; Provide for staffing to maintain and operate district technology. What has SCSD accomplished with local funds? Increased the number of computer labs, mobile labs and student-accessible technology at each school; Increased the curricular tools and online educational resources; Provided professional development and technical support to staff that impacts teaching and learning Replaced fire alarm systems at Cedarhome, Twin City and Stanwood Elementary; Playground safety improvements at Cedarhome, Elger Bay and Utsalady Elementary; Renovation and roof replacement for the SHS Transition Program facility; Seismic upgrades for Stanwood Middle School. Please remember to vote by February 8. Snohomish and Island Counties conduct all elections through mail-in ballots. The ballots for the February 8, 2022 election must be postmarked (mailing is free) or placed in a ballot drop site by 8 p.m. on Tuesday, February 8, 2022. Ballot drop boxes are located near the Stanwood Library, 9701 271st St. NW and on Camano Island at 121 N. East Camano Drive.

GOOD DEED

In the morning, bundled up in furry hood,
I saw two riders on our lane
Their horses' colors and shapes outlined against the whitening world
The horses' nostrils flaring in the freezing air
"They're nervous to get going," my neighbor said,
While we humans spoke.

Can we tow you out? Do you need anything?

After seven days together in the snow
Sitting by the fire, hearing only the high pitched jay
The knock knock knock of the woodpecker
Seeing the rabbit and deer tracks so close to the house

Oh yes, I said, Thank you so much !

Negotiating the offer
The beholdenness

I told my husband later--
These country ways
In adversity
Make all the difference

I think he understands.
We're warm, our food frosty
We'll go to sleep tonight

Believing the best of others.

TUSCAN WHITE BEAN SOUP

A delicious hearty bean and veggie soup simmered in a flavorful tomato and vegetable broth. The perfect soup for meatless Monday!
Course: SoupCuisine: American, Italian Servings: 8

INGREDIENTS: 2 T. extra virgin olive oil; 1 sm. yellow onion diced; 2 lg. carrots diced; 2 celery stalks diced; 2 cloves garlic minced; 2 zucchini's diced; 1 (15 oz.) can fire-roasted tomatoes with liquid; 1 (15 oz.) can cannellini beans drained; 2 T. tomato paste; 4 c. vegetable broth; 1 T. dried thyme; 1 T. dried oregano; 1 T. dried basil; 1 tsp. salt; 1/2 tsp. black pepper; 1/4 tsp. red pepper flakes; 3 c. chopped kale packed

GARNISHES: Fresh chopped basil; Grated Parmesan cheese

DIRECTIONS: Prep all veggies before you begin. Heat olive oil in a large Dutch oven over medium heat. Sauté onions, carrots, and celery for 4-5 minutes. Add garlic and zucchini, cook for an additional 2-3 minutes. Add diced tomatoes with liquid, cannellini beans, tomato paste, vegetable broth, and seasonings. Cover and simmer over low heat for 30 minutes stirring occasionally. Turn off heat and stir in kale.

Before serving, taste the soup, season with more salt and pepper if desired. Ladle soup into bowls and garnish with fresh chopped basil and grated Parmesan cheese. Enjoy!

ASTRONOMY IN THE NIGHT SKY OVER CAMANO

Rather than a specific target, this week is about a general concept: Time and distance in astronomy. From the time Galileo first pointed his small telescope skyward astronomers have been building bigger and bigger telescopes. Large telescopes allow better resolution, but a large part of bigger instruments is the quest to see farther and farther. In that quest is the ability to look deeper into the past. Since the speed limit for light is fixed, objects emitting light far away take long periods of time to reach us so we are seeing them as they were when their light first began its journey. Large distances in astronomy are often measured in light years which is not only a measurement of distance, the distance light would travel in a year, but also time, the amount of time that light has taken to reach us. A star 10 light years away means we are seeing it now as it was 10 years ago.

Proxima Centauri is the closest star to us at 4.22 light years. The Andromeda Galaxy is 2.53 million light years away, so we are seeing it as it was 2.53 million years ago. The farthest object amateur astronomers can see is the quasar 3c273, pictured above, at 2.4 BILLION light years. How far can into the past have we seen? 13.63 billion years, when the fledgling universe was only a white hot fog of hydrogen plasma. Since the universe came into being from a single point not long before that, that glow isn't "out there", it is all around us in what astronomers call the cosmic microwave background.

We all, and I mean EVERYTHING in the universe, exist within the glow of that long past era. So the next times the clouds part, remember that looking out is also looking back. The history of our universe is written in the sky.
