BEACH 1 GALLERY RECEPTION FOR SUE RYAN

Calendar of Events

DID YOU KNOW?

In the popular 2014 movie "Godzilla", the Godzilla portrayal was only seen for about 8 minutes in the entire film.

"My husband and I moved to Camano Island in 2015. The many wonderful artists here have been so inspirational. I began painting later in life. In 2002 I began painting, drawing, and Etched Art. I began making jewelry in 2013. For many years I have attended studio groups and workshops. My favorite media is oil paint, because of the vibrant colors and textures that can be achieved. I also use acrylics and enjoy creating Etched Art. The Etched Art has also become a favorite media because of the new vibrant colored inks for the clay boards. I have been involved in artistic endeavors most of my life, including creating coloring books for the National Wildlife Service, painted book covers and wine bottle labels, jewelry making, glass painting, fabric painting, cross stitch, and crochet, just to mention a few. Color has always been a big part of my work. This world has a tremendous amount of beauty, offering so much inspiration. So many ideas and so little time!" Her art will be displayed and for sale the entire month of October. The Gallery is open 7 days a week. We will be serving pop, wine, bottled water and bags of chips for the reception. 1243 Beach Drive, Camano Island. 360-387-1655.

CAMANO WILDLIFE PROGRAM - THE AERIALISTS

Many bird species make contact with their food from the air. Less than 10 percent of these feed almost exclusively on flying prey. These are the aerialists: swallows, swifts, nighthawk, flycatchers, accipiters, and falcons. While we rightfully marvel at a Red-tailed Hawk dropping on a vole, try catching an evasive insect traveling 6 inches above the ground while flying 25 to 45 miles per hour. Or attempt to single out a bird in flight from a twisting flock of 500 Dunlin. The slightest miscalculation will result in serious harm. Each aerialist has its unique adaptations and habits that allow them to exploit food sources unavailable to other birds. All the aerialists, from the frequent flyer champ (the Barn Swallow) to the ultimate speed machine (the Peregrine Falcon), share this particular characteristic: they have one tough way to make a living. 7pm at 141 East Camano Drive. 360-387-2236.

CRITICAL BANJO THEORY

Some of you fellow South Enders might be surprised --- shocked even!! --- to learn that there is a movement afoot to ban the teaching of banjo's contribution to American Civilization. These folks think schools need to banish any and all books from their libraries that mention the role banjos played in our history. They claim their children are being propagandized, groomed to believe the instrument and those who played them were discriminated against. And worse, their children were being told they should consider it as their instrument of choice in certain 'woke' communities.

Critical Banjo Theory it's called and it's being taught --- so they say --- in elite eastern snob universities by left leaning faculties. It's even filtered down into our high schools and yes! it has tentacles into our grade schools. So say these proponents of music purity! Bad enough we have rock n roll and rap. But banjo based music --- it makes our students uncomfortable thinking the slave race brought these tools of insurrection and emancipation to our shores, not the happy melodies of our European immigrant ancestors. No, these were instruments of rebellion, a devil inspired percussive beat, a call-to-arms for what might have been a contented plantation worker, one who on hearing that heated jungle beat threw down his cotton picking bags to join in the revolution.

This, of course, undermines the sanguine history of our proud nation according to those who would delete the 5 string instrument from approved school textbooks. It undermines our nationalist need for an unblemished history. If a banjo isn't a black mark, they argue, what is? A harmonica? No, the banjo conjures up slavery, Negro jazz, protest movements, Black Panthers ... and so, for that reason, our youth must be protected from the discomfort such knowledge brings to their malleable minds.

These are dark times, all I can say. How could I know my banjo was a dark reminder of an America we desperately need to sanitize? Forgive me. Forgive me. My goal now is to make amends. To that end I will dedicate myself to mastering the accordion. Surely, at least I fervently hope so, it has no dark past.

TIE DYE FALL LEAVES

Material Needed: Coffee Filter, Crayola Color Pens, Spray Bottle filled with water.

I got my coffee filters from a dollar store for a dollar! Most homes I know already use these on a daily basis. Keep some coffee filters under a heavy book for a day or two to flatten them. Then use the template below to draw your fall leaves. If you are blessed with fall leaves in your area, just get them home and trace them. Let your kid color them as they want. We used Crayola's washable markers in yellow, orange, red, pink and green (the colors you would see on trees in fall season). Don't stress if they don't color inside the lines, or color the leaf in one solid color or leave empty spaces. It won't matter, the result will still be beautiful. Now use your spray bottle and spray water on each colored leaf. If you want muted tones, spray water generously and if you want vibrant colors, spray only a little. Spray enough to get the coffee filter just moist. Let the filters dry. Ours dried in a couple hours. You will see how beautifully the colors blended into each other. Also the coffee filter gives you that crunchy leaf texture after its dried. Now take a scissor and cut the leaves. We made our leaves in two different sizes. The template I am sharing has three different sizes you can use. Make a pattern, bunting, frame it, use as table decor or hang it on a wall like we did. So many things you can do with them. Plus you can reuse them every fall!

LET'S SUPPORT CAMANO ISLAND FIRE & RESCUE!

VOTE YES

FOR OUR FIRE LEVY

WHAT WILL IT COST?

- State law limits tax revenue growth of CIFR and similar districts to 1% per year, unless voters approve a "levy lid lift."
- In 2017, voters approved a levy rate of $1.35 per $1,000 of appraised property value. Over time, as property values have increased, the levy rate has dropped all the way to $0.83 per $1,000 to comply with the 1% annual revenue growth limit.
- This levy lid lift proposes a rate of $1.25 per $1,000, still below the rate approved in 2017, but sufficient to fund much needed increases in CIFR staffing, infrastructure and services.

WHAT WILL WE GET?

- More first responders. The levy will allow CIFR to hire an additional six career firefighters and staff one more paramedic unit — important because call volumes are increasing.
- Full-time Mabana Station. Our southernmost station is only staffed Monday through Friday with full-time and volunteer firefighters when available. The levy will allow for the station to have someone on duty 24/7!

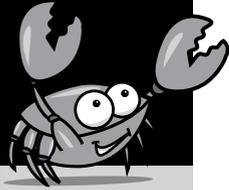

Help provide the staffing and tools we need to better serve our growing community.

BLACKENED SALMON BOWLS

BLACKENED SALMON BITES: 1 lb. fresh wild caught salmon, pin bones & skin removed, cut into 1-inch chunks; 2-3 T. your favorite blackened seasoning, or homemade; 3 T. extra virgin olive oil, divided. CREAMY DILL SAUCE: 1/2 c. sour cream; 1/4 c. mayonnaise; 1 T. chopped fresh dill; 1 clove garlic, pressed; 1 tsp. fresh lemon juice; 1/4 tsp. kosher salt; 1/8 tsp. black pepper. GRILLED CORN SALSA: 2 c. grilled corn, cut from the cob; 2 c. cherry tomatoes, halved; 2 c. English cucumber, sliced and quartered; 1/4 c. diced red onion; 2T. extra virgin olive oil; 1 tsp. lemon juice; 2 cloves garlic, pressed; 1/2 tsp. Italian seasoning; 1/4 tsp. kosher salt; 1/8 tsp. black pepper. BUTTERY RICE: 1 c. uncooked Jasmin long grain rice; 1 1/2 c water; 1 1/2 T. butter; 1 pinch salt

DIRECTIONS: 1. BLACKENED SALMON BITES: Place salmon chunks in a bowl. Generously sprinkle with blackened seasoning, toss to coat. Drizzle with 1 tablespoon olive oil and gently toss again; set aside. 2. CREAMY DILL SAUCE: In a small bowl, whisk together sour cream, mayonnaise, fresh dill, garlic, lemon juice, salt, and pepper until combined. Cover and place in the refrigerator until ready to serve. 3. GRILLED CORN SALSA: In a medium bowl, toss together grilled corn, tomatoes, cucumber, and red onion. Cover and place in the refrigerator until ready to serve. In a small jar with a lid, combine olive oil, lemon juice, garlic, Italian seasoning, salt, and black pepper. Cover with the lid and shake until combined; set aside. When ready to serve, pour the dressing over the salad and gently toss to combine. 4. BUTTERY RICE: In a medium saucepan, combine rice, water, butter, and salt. Bring to a boil, then reduce to a simmer. Cover with a lid and cook for 12-15 minutes. Remove from the heat and fluff with a fork. Cover and keep warm. 5. While the rice simmers, cook the salmon. Heat a large skillet over medium heat. Add 1 tablespoon of olive oil to the pan and swirl to coat. Working in two batches, add half of the blackened salmon bites to the pan and sear for about 2-3 minutes until nicely browned. Using tongs, flip the salmon bites and sear on the other side for 2-3 minutes or until browned and fully cooked. (Internal temperature should be 125-130 degrees, do not overcook). Remove to a plate and loosely cover with foil. Repeat with the remaining salmon bites. 6. TO ASSEMBLE: Divide the rice, grilled corn salsa, and salmon bites between four bowls. Top with creamy dill sauce and garnish with limes, dill, and fresh cracked pepper, Enjoy!

FRIENDS WITH BOATS

As I look back on my youth, I realize that I've matured. I'm no longer that zealously ambitious young man who craved fortune and "the good life." I now laugh with embarrassment thinking about this younger version of me, who wanted to "have it all." As I've aged, my values and priorities have evolved. What truly matters in the autumn of my life is the joy of developing meaningful, lasting friendships. I want to meet friends I can talk to openly and be vulnerable with. A sensitive, honest person who will be there for me in good times and bad. And last but not least, someone who – how can I put this politely – owns a nice boat.

Young people often talk about having "friends with benefits." But they have it all wrong. It's much better to have friends with boats. Now that I'm retired, it really doesn't matter to me how much stuff I possess – just so long as I have a few close friends... with fast-moving watercraft. I really don't care if it's Bayliner, a Sea Ray, or a Chris-Craft, just as long as it can reach a top-end speed of 70 mph or faster.

Recently, I met an amiable fellow. We started to hit it off. Sadly, he only owned a dinghy, which he mainly used for crabbing. It could barely reach speeds of 10 mph. Needless to say, that's not what I'm looking for in a friendship these days. So, I had no choice but to ghost him.

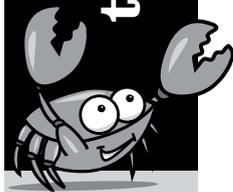

You may be asking yourself, "Hey, if it's so important, why don't you buy YOUR OWN boat, Tim?" What a stupid question. Have you seen the cost of high-quality boats lately? Not to mention the cost of mooring, insuring, and refueling them. I've done some research and discovered that boat owners have no life. That's because they spend all their free time working on their boats. Here's just a sampling of the typical tasks they do after every time they take their boat for a spin:

Top off the oil, if needed; wash the hull and deck; check the engine, battery, propeller, electrical lines, and bilge pump to ensure all components are working properly. Oh, and don't forget to inspect the engine mount screw clamps to make sure they're secure. And be sure to flush the engine and propellers to eliminate saltwater, sand, dirt and other debris. I'll skip the other 27 steps you need to do EVERY TIME you take your boat out, because I almost fell asleep after that last sentence.

So, no, boat ownership is not for me. Let some other sap pay $100,000 for a 40-foot cruiser. I just want to spend some quality time bonding with them – ideally while eating fresh lobster and chowing down on a tasty cheese platter and Godiva chocolates. (Not the dark chocolate, please.)

Perhaps you are that sap, I mean, fine person. If so, I want you to know that if you feel a need to drone on endlessly about how hard it is staying on top of all the regular maintenance needed to keep your boat in working order, as your new best friend, I'm willing to listen. Oh, and I'm a size LARGE, in case you need to know my lifejacket size for when you take me out water skiing.

View from the Bleachers

I'm looking for a new friend. I'm not picky. I mean, it's not like the only kind of people I seek out as friends are rich people with yachts that comfortably seat eight. Who do you think I am, anyway? No, I'm willing to keep an open mind. I'd even consider starting a friendship with someone who only owns a Jet Ski – but only if you have two of them. I'm not riding tandem behind you. Buddy, you need to give me some space.

I'm still looking for that close friend. I know they're out there. Perhaps you could be that special person. If you think you might like to become my friend, just email me a photo of you with your boat – or just your boat is sufficient, actually.

But perhaps I'm being a little unreasonable. After all, why should I care whether a person has a boat or not? I mean, that sounds rather superficial, doesn't it? Okay, on further reflection, I don't care whether or not you have a nice boat. I'm more than willing to make friends with non-boat owners – assuming they have their own private plane, that is.
