DID YOU KNOW?

Most people stroke cats the wrong way. Research shows they often just tolerate it for the food and attention. The safest spots? Under the chin, cheeks and base of the ears. The worst? Their belly and the base of their tail – touch there and you're more likely to annoy them than bond with them.

FANTASY ROMANCE NOVEL WITH HAND-PAINTED WATERCOLOR ART - MOON GATE PROPHECIES LAUNCHES SEPTEMBER 22, 2025

Camano Island based indie author and watercolor artist Kelly Crumpley is thrilled to announce the release of her debut adult fantasy romance, Moon Gate Prophecies, on September 22, 2025. A sweeping fae romantasy full of peril, prophecy, and forbidden desire, this novel promises to capture the hearts of readers who love epic love stories with high stakes and fierce heroines. This spellbinding tale comes to life with 14 original watercolor illustrations painted by the author herself. Book Teaser: Cast into exile and marked for ruin, Wyen believes her story is over—until the prophecy reveals it has only just begun. As a forgotten power awakens in the deep, and an ancient enemy rises to reclaim the realms, she becomes the hunted prize of a dark force that knows exactly what she is. Bound by fate to a celestial General who despises mortals, she must navigate peril, prophecy, and forbidden desire—where love itself may prove strong enough to rewrite the stars. This is an enemies-to-lovers, slow-burn romantasy filled with action, adventure, found family, fated mates, steeped in ancient Hermetic philosophy with just the right amount of spice. Alongside the eBook, paperback, and hardcover release, Kelly is offering limited edition signed book boxes through her online store. Each collector's box includes a signed paperback, exclusive swag, and hand-painted character art—making this release more than a book, but a work of art. Author Quote: "I locked myself away for three years on this project. I wanted to create more than a book, I wanted to create my greatest work of art combining my passions for both a pen and a brush," says Crumpley. Kelly Crumpley is an emerging writer in adult fantasy romance, known for her enchanting tales enriched with ancient philosophy and hand-painted watercolor art. With a deep love for myth and mysticism, she combines lyrical prose with visual storytelling to create immersive worlds. Moon Gate Prophecies is her debut novel and the first in the Monarch Empirium series, which she plans to expand with many more stories to come. Kelly lives in Camano Island, WA with her husband, son, and two beloved Yorkies, Maple and Mochi. Visit her online at www.kellycrumpley.com

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

I recently got an inquiry from an artist who was perplexed by the name of our upcoming 6th annual Small Craft Advisory Show, thinking that it was downright inconsiderate toward our artists to label it small ... and worse, small craft. Craft, of course, for her and a large percentage of the population, connotes macrame plant hangers, popsicle stick whirligigs, knitted baby caps, stained glass suncatchers, scented candles, glass plates on rebar yard ornaments, custom keychains, handmade soaps and of course, plenty of birdhouses. I get it.

I tried to explain that the name was intended as a humorous nod to a weatherman's warning for vessels to be prepared for stormy seas. And hopefully the title would evoke in the general public a sense that these crafts would be a small tsunami in their impact.

I'm afraid that argument didn't work, but trust me, our artistic vision is anything but small. And unlike many of the artists who dismiss craft as somehow inferior to their watercolor sunsets and their numbered reproduction prints, these are craftspeople creating one-of-a-kind artworks from wood, from clay, from found objects, from glass to fabrics.

You won't find a kitschy birdhouse here ... but if you did, it would rock your boat, believe me, and that small craft warning might be welcome. What you will find are Don Metke's museum quality wood assemblages, Russ Riddle's exquisite Japanese inspired furniture with delicate ginkgo marquetry, Shannon Kirby's carved driftwood sculpture, Chuck Hamilton's incredible turned bowls, Monika De Nasha's native American otter bags with traditional beadwork, Erin Marie's organic fueled jewelry, Persis Gayle's distinctive clay creations, Elizabeth Moncrief's fabulous fabric wearables, David Taber's NW inspired wood and stoneworking that one year featured a gigantic octopus with moveable tentacles, Mark Eikeland's unique pottery and my own stained glass panels many of which became inspiration for huge public art installations.

We run the entire gamut of crafts that are definitely fine art. We aren't what you've come to expect from a 'craft' show --- we're what Artificial Intelligence will never reproduce. We're crafters who love our work and want to share it. Not all of it is for sale. This is an exhibition, admission is free. This is fine craft and most definitely fine art. Come down to the Floyd Norgaard Cultural Center, 10-4, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 20 and 21. But be advised, this is the Small Craft Advisory Show.

The Jewish
New Year

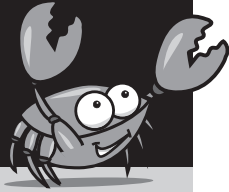

THANK YOU, CAMANO ISLAND!

Recently, about 450 island residents came to a Party at the Commons to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the opening of the Camano Island Library. The highlight of the day was “burning the bond” to signify the end of the tax levy this year. Short remarks emphasizing the importance of the library to Camano Island residents were made by Janet St. Clair, Island County Commissioner; Rose Olson, President of Sno-Isle Libraries Board of Trustees; Jack Archibald, local artist and musician; Jonalyn Woolf-Ivory, retired Executive Director of Sno-Isle Libraries; David Durante, Deputy Director for Sno-Isle Libraries; and Lin Fogg, President of the Camano Island Library Friends. Earlier in the day, kids giggled and screamed at the Jeff Evans Magic Show, played yard games, had faces painted, and made sand art necklaces and paper airplanes. The South End String Band kept toes tapping. Nancy Pearl, “America’s Favorite Librarian,” spoke to a full Community Room with refreshments provided by Windermere. Special offers were provided by Camano Commons Marketplace, The Baked Café, and Tapped Camano. The Camano Island Library Friends, in partnership with Sno-Isle Libraries, provided funding for many of the day’s activities. What began as a kitchen table dream grew into a library that is the heart of the community. The Camano Island Library staff is knowledgeable and friendly, always ready to help. Our library will remain relevant as long as we make it so. Support our beautiful library! Help provide the best in the way of free programs for all ages by joining the Friends at www.camanolibraryfriends.org

FREE MEALS

Reminder that meals are FREE at these campuses for this school year: Elger Bay Elementary, Utsalady Elementary, Twin City Elementary, Stanwood Elementary, Church Creek Campus (Lincoln Hill High, Lincoln Academy, and Saratoga School). These campuses qualified for free meals — breakfast and lunch — to all students in the 2025-26 school year under state law by meeting a state threshold during previous school year. This qualification is reassessed each year based on Free and Reduced-Price Meal applications figures at the end of each October. In order for the free meals to continue next school year, we request families complete our Free or Reduced Meal application because it will determine if this benefit continues in future years as well as other federal and state funding for the district. It also unlocks student and family benefits in the district and community, such as lower utility bills. Don't know if you'd qualify? Take our easy online quiz to help determine your eligibility: <https://forms.gle/BrdRad54LQ-jVbRFU9>. Find school menus in our app, our newsletters (beginning this Sunday), and our website here: <https://www.stanwood.wednet.edu/depar.../food-services/menus>.

INTUITIVE TAROT WITH TIFFANY

September 19th – September 25th : Page of Cups Reversed. This week we will experience our second consecutive Virgo New Moon, accompanied by a partial solar eclipse (although not visible from the US) on Sunday, September 21st. Followed directly by the Autumnal Equinox on Monday, September 22nd. With Virgo being the direct opposite from Pisces, this week's card is quite literally advising "Though the tide is low, look how the harvest and abundance abounds." In this eclipse season, it can feel as though many resources have been taken away or moved out of reach. Yet some treasures and gifts are only revealed when our expected bounties are pulled back, such as when the tide recedes, allowing a glimpse at vibrant sea stars, anemones, and sponges. This is a "count your blessings" week, even if your cornucopia looks different. And keep a captain's eye on the horizon for inbound opportunities.

September 26th – October 2nd : Five of Swords Reversed. This week the haze of smoke clings to the air; burnout and fatigue show their toll; lines are drawn. Some see a game they take too seriously, and play to win regardless of consequences or grounded reality. Strained friendships and estranged loved ones are heavy on the heart, with many finalizing their decision to cut cords and walk away. This week's card invites us each to see our boundary lines not as de-fences to keep others out, but instead to be seen as sweaters we wrap around ourselves to keep us warm with selfcare. Aim to lean into gratitude for those that come into and leave out of our lives, and the lessons and memories that bloomed from the intersections of our journeys. As nouns make their exit, capacity becomes available for what and who are to come. - Tiffany FitzPatrick

I RECOMMEND SUPREME RENT A CAR – UNLESS YOU NEED TO RENT A CAR

Author's note: The following is a letter I sent to a major rental car company, based on an actual recent car rental experience. I have changed the name to a fictitious name called SUPREME, out of respect for Dollar Rent A Car's privacy. – TEJ]

Dear SUPREME RENT A CAR,

I wanted to tell you about my unforgettable experience that took place when I made the admittedly foolhardy decision to rent a car from SUPREME RENT A CAR. I had just flown into Albany, NY Airport with plans to attend my high school's 50th class reunion.

Two months before my trip, I made an egregious mistake. I placed a reservation online with SUPREME RENT A CAR. I arrived at your airport rental car counter at 11:30pm – thirty minutes before it closed for the night. The employee at the counter named Tony immediately found my reservation in your system. I only had to wait another 22 minutes for Tony to casually inform me, "Looks like I can't give you a car. You're on our DNR LIST." Perplexed, I asked Tony if I had heard him correctly: "Did you say, I'm on a DNR LIST? What's that?"

Tony explained in a voice some might mistake as sounding gruff and irritated, but I'm sure was intended to exude warmth and empathy, that it stood for "Do Not Rent." Like an airline No Fly List but for rental cars. Turns out I had been officially banned from travel with Supreme Rent A Car. I asked, "Can you tell me WHY I am on Supreme's RENTAL BLACK LIST?"

"That's DO NOT RENT LIST," Tony snapped in what probably was a lot cheerier a voice than it sounded. "How the Hell would I know why? Maybe you have a criminal conviction or failed to pay some outstanding speeding tickets. You must'a did something wrong, fella," Tony barked, again in the kindest, affirming voice. Tony wrote down a phone number: "Call our DNR department during business hours tomorrow and maybe they can explain why. We're now officially closed for the night. I gotta go."

I want to thank you, SUPREME RENT A CAR, for not telling me I was on your "DNR" list until 11:52 pm just as all the airport rental counters were closing for the night. I would hate to have received this helpful information, say, two months ago when I first placed my reservation, while I still had time to make alternate rental car arrangements. It would have totally deprived me of the memorable opportunity to spend quality time with your superstar employee Tony.

I called the following morning and a customer service person named Breanna put me on a brief five-minute hold. And then another ten-minute hold. And after what barely felt like another 15 minutes, she accidentally disconnected my call. I called in again and in less than 20 minutes I reached Christina, who told me I had been placed on your elite "WE HATE YOU" list because apparently, I had the same last name as someone else who had failed to pay their bill.

DID YOU KNOW?

The average cloud weighs over one million pounds.

An easy-to-understand mistake, seeing as how we were probably the only two people with the last name JONES in your entire 100,000-person customer database. I'm pleased to report that Kristina wasted no time in apologizing to me, by which I mean she didn't bother to apologize. But that's okay. I'm sure she was having a bad day – probably from having to deal with hundreds of other people calling in to complain about being put on your DNR list by mistake.

I asked Kristina if she could reverse the $450 charge I paid when I originally reserved a vehicle, since your company refused to rent me the car. She explained that I needed to call the customer severance, I mean customer service department. I finally reached a representative named Roy, who I explained that he couldn't issue a refund because I needed to have cancelled my reservation at least 24 hours before the rental date, and I had failed to do so.

I explained in vain that I did not actually cancel my reservation. Supreme did. Roy told me I'd have to call their billing department to submit a refund request. It's been two weeks, and I'm still waiting for a call back.

SUPREME RENT A CAR, you have given me a new appreciation of just how rare outstanding customer service is, at least. anywhere within the ranks of your organization.

I hope you won't mind my sharing my memorable experience with a few thousand of my closest Facebook friends, not to mention on LinkedIn, Twitter, and Instagram. SUPREME RENT A CAR, you guys made me feel like a hundred bucks – too bad those hundred bucks were all counterfeit.

Sincerely, Tim Jones, former customer
