[01:00:03.05]	MARTY	I'm on an emergency mission. I'm here to fix something that we built that was completely destroyed. If I can't figure it out, these people go into winter without any access to their homestead. So it's now or never.
[01:00:24.10]	NARRATOR	Three years ago, the Johnsons were called to solve an access problem that was crippling the Bowers' homestead.
[01:00:31.18]	MARTY	You want to park here the rest of your life...
[01:00:33.12]	LARA	No.
[01:00:33.12]	MARTY	...and go across the footbridge? You're tired.
[01:00:35.19]	LARA	That's been the last four years of our life.
[01:00:38.05]	NARRATOR	Without a bridge to their hillside home, the Bowers were forced to haul water.
[01:00:43.08]	LARA	This sink doesn't work or anything.
[01:00:44.22]	NARRATOR	Leaving them without a garden.
[01:00:47.00]	MARK	The only immediate food supply is, is the eggs from the chickens.
[01:00:51.02]	NARRATOR	While bears were a constant threat to their livestock.
[01:00:54.15]	MATT	That's a lot of composting going on, but it's definitely bringing in a lot of animals.
[01:01:00.18]	MISTY	Oh, my God. Don't turn.
[01:01:02.15]	MARTY	We got to get off this thing.
[01:01:03.21]	MISTY	Keep it straight.
[01:01:05.12]	NARRATOR	And in just seven days...
[01:01:07.08]	MARTY	Let her rip.
