Two arrested after traffic stop

A Wednesday afternoon traffic stop resulted in two men spending the rest of the day behind bars on multiple charges.

At 3:15 p.m., Senior Trooper Jarrod Lents observed a green 1997 Dodge Dakota pick-up truck disregard a stop sign on Weisbach Road at Sherfick School Road near Shoals. Trooper Lents pulled the truck over and began speaking with the two occupants. Lents learned that the driver, 39 year old Mitchell F. Newton of Dubois, was driving with a suspended driver's license through Indiana, and had a prior conviction for the same offense. The passenger, Travis W. Stine, 39, French Lick, initially gave Trooper Lents a false name and information in an attempt to not be identified. Lents later learned and confirmed his correct identification, as well as the fact that he was wanted through Crawford County on a felony theft charge.

During the stop, Lents asked for the assistance of Sheriff Travis Roush and Major Andy Burkhardt of the Martin County Sheriff's Department. Burkhardt conducted an open-air search with his K9 partner Asher, who positively indicated the presence of narcotics in the vehicle. Officers searched the vehicle, locating marijuana. New members start on Loogootee Council

The new members of the Loogootee City Council took their seats for the first meeting of the year Monday night, January 11. New council members Teresa Nolley, Ruth Smith, Tim Lawrence and Roger Downey joined returning member Carroll Rayhill.

When Mayor Noel Harty asked for a nomination for president of the council, Tim Lawrence nominated Roger Downey and Ruth Smith nominated Carroll Rayhill. Teresa Nolley was the deciding vote and seconded Smith's motion to make Rayhill the council president.

Lael Hill, with Indiana MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) presented Loogootee Officer Steve Nolan with an award for having 16 operating while intoxicated arrests last year in the City of Loogootee. Indiana State Trooper Jarrod Lents was instrumental in nominating Nolan for the award. Lents said that in the two-county radius he patrols, Martin and Daviess counties, he may have 30-40 driving under the influence arrests in a year. He said Nolan having 16 in a small city is very impressive.

The city also presented Nolan with a plaque.

A public hearing was held for the rates related to the West Boggs Sewer District that the city now controls. A few members of the audience asked the council if rates would be going up for the West Boggs Sewer customers. Mayor Harty said it was hard to predict the future but he is guessing a minimal increase, comparable to the 5-6 percent the West Boggs customers have seen in the past.

Mayor Harty reported that the fire departments ISO rating went back to a "6" at the first of the year. He said that if any residents still have issues with their insurance companies, they should contact his office.

Marty Tarrh, representing the Stormwater Utility Board, gave an update on what the board has come up with regarding user fees for water customers. The board consists of Bo Wilson, Gianna Armstrong, Noel Harty and Tarrh. In order for the city to qualify for grants related to stormwater projects, user fees are needed. The higher the user fee, the more points the grant application would receive.

Tarrh said that the board checked around to other cities to see what kind of user fees they charge. Many charge $3 and some go as high as $6. The stormwater board is suggesting charging Loogootee Water customers that have residences $5 per month and businesses $25-$50 per month. This would bring in an additional $72,000 from residential customers and $66,000 a year from businesses at the $25 (See 'COUNCIL' cont. on page 2)

Safe Community Campaign event this Saturday

Police officers serving Martin County from both local and state agencies will host a community appreciation event this Saturday, January 16 at the community building located on the fairgrounds. The event, which will be called the Martin County Safe Community Campaign, will bring the community and its police officers together for a day of fun and information sharing. Opening ceremonies will begin at 10 a.m. and conclude at 2 p.m. with a drawing for larger door prizes.

This first-time community event will feature officers and informational displays from the Martin County Sheriff's Office, Indiana Conservation Officers, Indiana State Police, Indiana Excise Police, Community Corrections, Shoals Police Department, and the Loogootee Police Department. Several law enforcement vehicles including a Humvee, ATVs, and an air boat will be on display as well as other tactical and rescue gear.

Sgt. Andy Burkhardt will be doing a demonstration this Saturday at the Safe Community Event with K9 Asher.

The event will be free to the public and will feature several law enforcement speakers and programs as well as free food and door prizes. Some of the programs include kid's self defense, meth awareness, ATV safety and a police K9 demonstration.

Whether it is a family crisis, an accident, or other emergency, many times, police officers and the people in their communities don't always meet in the best situations. One of the goals of this event is to allow the community to meet with the officers in a relaxed and fun environment.

rate or $133,000 a year from businesses at the $50 rate.

He said after the council approves of the fee scale, an income survey would be required. The council did not act on the user fee at Monday's meeting. It is planned to be discussed again at the council's February meeting.

Courtney Hughett, who was in the audience, commended the Loogootee First Responders for how quickly they responded to her residence after a recent 911 call. Hughett also asked the council to look into parking issues on Kentucky Avenue in the section between the Elementary East Gym and the Catholic church. She explained that cars are parking on both sides of the road making it only one lane which causes a traffic concern for people turning off the highway onto Kentucky Avenue. Police Chief Kelly Rayhill said this has been an issue for years. He will look into it and report back to the council at the next meeting.

Public Works Superintendent Bo Wilson told the council that one of the water wells needs work at a cost of $16,000. The council approved the well cleaning by Layne Company. They won't know if any additional repairs will be needed until the well is taken apart. The council also approved the maintenance agreement from Layne Company for the well field.

Fire deaths in Indiana down 14 percent in 2015

The State of Indiana has seen a decline in the number of deaths related to fires, a figure that dropped from 84 in 2014 down to 73 for 2015. The Indiana Department of Homeland Security (IDHS) Division of Fire and Building Safety is praising local first responders across the state for their efforts in working to make Hoosiers more safe.

"While we never want to see anyone injured or killed in a fire, we're encouraged to see that fewer people were affected this year," said Indiana State Fire Marshal Jim Greeson. "We applaud the first responders throughout the state who have worked tirelessly, day and night, to not only protect those in danger, but also to better educate their communities on fire safety."

In an effort to better protect Hoosiers, local departments across the state have continued to make smoke detectors available to their communities. Many departments, including the Gary Fire Department, Frankfort Fire Department and the Indianapolis Fire Department have worked alongside the American Red Cross to help install working smoke detectors in Hoosier homes, as well as provide educational material on fire safety. Collectively, the Red Cross has helped local fire departments install more than 5,700 smoke detectors throughout the state since October 2014.

IDHS has also continued working alongside State Farm, which provided grant funding in the amount of $7,000 in 2015 for the purpose of purchasing and distributing smoke detectors throughout the state. The partnership has helped provide nearly 1,000 smoke detectors to Hoosiers over the last two years.

The Indiana State Fire Marshal oversees the IDHS Division of Fire and Building Safety.

A new approach to training new conservation officers

Indiana Conservation Officers have initiated a new training concept to prepare rookie officers for their service to the public. Research shows among the complaints against law enforcement agencies are the lack of proper skills of an officer to interact with a diverse public.

"Interpersonal communication skills are often overlooked by law enforcement agencies when training new officers", said Officer Dennis Talley. "Electronic communication devices have created an environment that makes face-to-face communication a difficult obstacle for these officers to overcome. This training will address these concerns."

On January 5, 2015, ICO rookie officers reported to Meadowood Health

Pavilion, an assisted living complex in Bloomington, and were tasked with engaging in a one-hour conversation with a resident. Throughout the conversations, the new officers concentrated on their speaking skills as well as their active listening skills. On January 7, the new officers will be giving a verbal presentation to the training staff explaining their experience and identifying their weaknesses and strengths.

"This training concept is challenging to this generation of officers", said Captain Zach Mathews, Training Section Commander. "This will give us an opportunity to work on weaknesses and enhance their ability to build positive community relationships with the citizens they will be

Indiana Court of Appeals at VU

The Indiana Court of Appeals will hear oral arguments in the case Drapeau v. State on Jan. 26, 12:50 p.m. (EST), at Shireliff Auditorium.

A three-member panel of judges will hear the following case: On January 18, 2015, Blake Drapeau was arrested at his mother's apartment for: attempted battery against a public safety officer; resisting law enforcement; and criminal trespass. After a bench trial he was convicted on all three counts. On appeal he argues there was insufficient evidence to sustain his convictions for criminal trespass and resisting law enforcement. He also argues there was a material and fatal variance between the crime of criminal trespass charged in the information and the theory and evidence of criminal trespass presented at trial.

Following oral argument, the Court will answer questions about the judicial process in Indiana from VU students who will be in attendance, including paralegal studies students.

Since its centennial in 2001, the Court has heard oral argument in venues across the state to enable Hoosiers to learn about the judicial branch.

20 SIGNS YOU GREW UP IN A SMALL TOWN

1. When people ask where you're from, you say the nearest well-known city rather than where you're actually from.
2. You went to high school with the same people as from kindergarten.
3. You knew everybody in your graduating class.
4. Actually, you knew just about everybody in your high school.
5. And their families.
6. You and your friends just drove around at night blasting music because there was nothing else fun to do.
7. And hanging out in a store parking lot was the Friday night norm.
8. Whenever you go to a large city, the traffic blows your mind.
9. It's at least a 30-minute drive to see a movie in theaters.
10. Dating in high school was awkward because you knew all of their exes.
11. Teachers often knew your siblings.
12. "Y'all" is part of everyone's vocabulary.
13. It was a normal thing to get caught behind a tractor on the road.
14. Everyone knew everything about everybody.
15. You see at least 5 people you know every time you go to the grocery store.
16. And that quick trip to the grocery store turns into an hour-long trip because you have to talk to each one of them.
17. It's a big deal when a new restaurant opens in your town.
18. It shocked you when you went to a restaurant further north and they didn't have sweet tea.
19. Your Facebook feed is full of dead animals during hunting season.
20. Everyone could only talk about leaving, but once you're gone, you miss it.

Librarian, Loogootee Public Library

In celebration of Indiana's Bicentennial, the Indiana State Library and The Indiana Department of Natural Resources, State Parks Department have partnered to provide one park permit to each Indiana library. The public is encouraged to contact the library concerning the park pass and how it will be circulated. Some things to consider will be: How long can an individual have the pass checked out? Should it be checked out for a day or a week? If it is not returned on time, how much should the late fee be? Should it be able to be reserved or an in-house request only? Most State Parks will accept the pass but a few will not and those will be posted in the library. Locally, Daviess-Martin County owned West Boggs Lake will not since it is a county park.

The total number of materials checked out in 2015 was 33,849 which included 2,124 eBooks. These statistics are provided by the Indiana State Library via reports printed from the ILS (Evergreen Indiana).

Become a state park volunteer for MLK Day of Service

Celebrate the Martin Luther King Jr. National Day of Service on January 18 by signing up to volunteer at an Indiana State Park in 2016.

From maintaining trails to entering computer data to helping in the nature centers, Hoosiers can help state park properties by donating their time and talent.

"Volunteering gives you a great sense of accomplishment," said Jody Heaston, volunteer coordinator for Indiana State Parks. "You know you are helping manage and conserve our natural and cultural resources for future generations to enjoy."

For more information, visit stateparks.IN.gov/2443.htm. You can download an application and return it to the state park or lake where you want to volunteer. You can also send the application to jheaston@dnr.IN.gov if you don't have a particular park in mind.

January 18 is a state holiday, so property offices and most nature centers will not be open. Self-directed service such as walking trails and picking up litter on that day is welcome. You can check with your favorite park the week before to see if other self-directed volunteer opportunities are available.

Martin Luther King, Jr. National Day of Service volunteers can take a photo and share it with Indiana State Parks on Facebook at facebook.com/INdnrstateparksandreservoirs.

Purdue Extension Workshop to focus on retirement, estate management

Purdue Extension is offering families a chance to learn more about retirement and estate management during a two-day workshop on February 9 and 10, with training to occur at the Vanderburgh 4-H Center, 201 E. Boonville-New Harmony Road, in Evansville.

Topics of "Planning for Retirement and Estate Management" include:

- * Alternative funds for retirement.
- * Planning possible long-term care.
- * Accounting for "sweat equity" in business.

The first day of the workshop will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and includes lunch. The second day consists of a one-hour farm family meeting with the Farm Succession Planning Team.

Registration is due two weeks before each program. Cost is $150 for the first four family members and $15 for each additional member. Each family will be mailed a program packet. Registration forms are available at Purdue Center for Commercial Agriculture's website at www.agecon.purdue.edu/commercialag or at any Purdue Extension office.

Last week, we looked at the 2016 Perennial Plant of the Year, Honerine Jobert anemone. While perennials are important, there are other plants that are picked for outstanding characteristics. This week, we will look at some of the other plants selected for recognition in 2016. Perhaps you will want to grow some of them in your garden.

Plants may be selected by various organizations, including horticultural societies, plant societies and universities. Even political entities sometimes get into the act. The United Nations has proclaimed 2016 the Year of Pulses. Pulses include beans, peas, edible small grains and other legumes. These plants play an important role in providing food for the planet. Unlike some plants, pulses actually enrich the soils in which they grow. Legumes have the capability of taking nitrogen out of the air and fixing it in nodules in the roots of the plants. When the plants are tilled in at the end of the season, that nitrogen is added to the soil, where it is available to the plants that will grow there the next season. Most pulses are very nutritious and they do not require a lot of space to grow. That means a lot of food value can be achieved in a small amount of space.

The American Herb society has selected the Chili pepper as the herb of the year. There are literally hundreds of varieties of chilies, ranging from just a spicy flavor to five alarm fire. The chili provides a lot of flavor to our diets and also has medical uses.

The tropical hibiscus has been named the Terrace Plant of the Year. In the past decade, breeders have been working with hibiscus plants to develop selections that will thrive in containers. The colors available today range from nearly black to orange, red, yellow, peach and white. Many ruffled, double and variegated cultivars have also been produced.

In recent years, ornamental grasses have become the rage in landscapes. The 2016 grass of the year is Dallas Blue Switchgrass. Developed from native switchgrass parentage, this attractive blue-hued grass retains the toughness of the native predecessors. It is very drought tolerant, once established, and has almost no known disease and pest problems. It works well as a ground cover between taller grasses and perennials.

There are plant societies for many different genera of plants, and each chooses a cultivar to honor as its plant of the year. Next week, we will look at some of those selections.

State Parks visitors travel 2,513 miles on First Day Hikes

Almost 1,700 people started the new year on the right foot by participating in a guided First Day Hike at an Indiana State Park property on January 1.

Combined, those 1,675 hikers trekked 2,513 miles.

First Day Hikes are a healthy way to start the year and a chance to get outside, exercise, enjoy nature and connect with friends.

The hikes are hosted each year by staff and volunteers at Indiana's 32 state park properties and are part of a nationwide program promoted by America's State Parks.

According to Vicki Basman, Indiana State Parks chief of interpretation, Indiana's First Day program started at one park four years ago with just 20 hikers.

"Our First Day Hikes have grown tremendously," Basman said. "We are happy that so many people chose to be in our beautiful state parks for New Year's Day. And of course we hope they keep coming back to visit their favorite parks throughout the year."

Spring Mill SP hosts infinity scarf and mitten workshop

Learn a unique way to make an infinity scarf at a Spring Mill State Park workshop on January 28.

The workshop starts at 10:30 a.m. Participants will break at noon for a buffet lunch at the Millstone Dining Room in Spring Mill Inn.

After lunch, the workshop resumes and participants will start a pair of fingerless mittens.

These simple patterns make attractive items to use or give as unique handmade gifts for loved ones.

Hikes ranged in length from a half-mile to 4 miles. The types of hikes varied, too. Mounds State Park hosted a nighttime luminary hike, and Tippecanoe River State Park hosted a horseback ride instead of a hike.

Monroe Lake welcomed the most participants with 297 people attending its 4-mile run.

Across the country, almost 56,000 visitors to state parks hiked a combined 133,832 miles.

"We hope that using state park facilities as part of the regular exercise routine will become habit-forming for many of the people who came out on New Year's Day," said Lewis Ledford, executive director of the National Association of State Park Directors.

First Day Hikes originated more than 20 years ago at the Blue Hills Reservation state park in Milton, Mass.

America's State Parks is committed to promoting outdoor recreation in state parks as a way to address obesity, especially among children.

National unemployment stays at 5 percent for December

Total nonfarm payroll employment rose by 292,000 in December, and the unemployment rate was unchanged at 5.0 percent, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported last week.

Employment gains occurred in several industries, led by professional and business services, construction, health care, and food services and drinking places. Mining employment continued to decline.

Household Survey Data

The number of unemployed persons, at 7.9 million, was essentially unchanged in December, and the unemployment rate was 5.0 percent for the third month in a row. Over the past 12 months, the unemployment rate and the number of unemployed persons were down by 0.6 percentage point and 800,000, respectively.

Among the major worker groups, the unemployment rate for blacks declined to 8.3 percent in December, while the rates for adult men (4.7 percent), adult women (4.4 percent), teenagers (16.1 percent), whites (4.5 percent), Asians (4.0 percent), and Hispanics (6.3 percent) showed little or no change.

The number of long-term unemployed (those jobless for 27 weeks or more) was essentially unchanged at 2.1 million in December and accounted for 26.3 percent of the unemployed.

The number of long-term unemployed has shown little movement since June, but was down by 687,000 over the year.

The civilian labor force participation rate, at 62.6 percent, was little changed in December and has shown little movement in recent months. In December, the employment-population ratio, at 59.5 percent, changed little.

The number of persons employed part time for economic reasons (sometimes referred to as involuntary part-time workers) was little changed at 6.0 million in December but was down by 764,000 over the year. These individuals, who would have preferred full-time employment, were working part time because their hours had been cut back or because they were unable to find a full-time job.

In December, 1.8 million persons were marginally attached to the labor force, down by 427,000 from a year earlier. (The data are not seasonally adjusted.) These individuals were not in the labor force, wanted and were available for work, and had looked for a job sometime in the prior 12 months. They were not counted as unemployed because they had not searched for work in the 4 weeks preceding the survey.

Among the marginally attached, there were 663,000 discouraged workers in December, little changed from a year earlier. (The data are not seasonally adjusted.) Discouraged workers are persons not currently looking for work because they believe no jobs are available for them. The remaining 1.2 million persons marginally attached to the labor force in December had not searched for work for reasons such as school attendance or family responsibilities.

Establishment Survey Data

Total nonfarm payroll employment increased by 292,000 in December. Employment rose in several industries, including professional and business services, construction, health care, and food services and drinking places. Mining employment continued to decline. In 2015, payroll employment growth totaled 2.7 million, compared with 3.1 million in 2014.

Employment in professional and business services increased by 73,000 in December, with temporary help services accounting for 34,000 of the gain. In 2015, professional and business services added 605,000 jobs, compared with a gain of 704,000 in 2014.

Construction showed strong job growth for the third consecutive month, gaining 45,000 jobs in December. Job gains occurred among specialty trade contractors (+29,000) and in construction of buildings (+10,000). Over the year, construction added 263,000 jobs, compared with a gain of 338,000 jobs in 2014.

In December, health care employment rose by 39,000, with most of the increase occurring in ambulatory health care services (+23,000) and hospitals (+12,000). Job growth in health care averaged 40,000 per month in 2015, compared with 26,000 per month in 2014.

Food services and drinking places added 37,000 jobs in December. In 2015, the industry added 357,000 jobs.

Employment in transportation and warehousing rose by 23,000 in December, with a gain of 15,000 in couriers and messengers.

Within the information industry, motion pictures and sound recording added 15,000 jobs in December, offsetting a decline of 13,000 in the prior month.

Employment in mining continued to decline in December (-8,000). After adding 41,000 jobs in 2014, mining lost 129,000 jobs in 2015, with most of the loss in support activities for mining.

Manufacturing employment changed little in December, though its nondurable goods component added 14,000 jobs. In 2015, manufacturing employment was little changed (+30,000), following strong growth in 2014 (+215,000).

Employment in other major industries, including wholesale trade, retail trade, financial activities, and government, changed little over the month.

The average workweek for all employees on private nonfarm payrolls was unchanged at 34.5 hours in December. The manufacturing workweek edged down by 0.1 hour to 40.6 hours, and factory overtime edged up by 0.1 hour to 3.3 hours. The average workweek for production and nonsupervisory employees on private nonfarm payrolls was unchanged at 33.7 hours.

In December, average hourly earnings for all employees on private nonfarm payrolls, at $25.24, changed little (-1 cent), following an increase of 5 cents in November. Over the year, average hourly earnings have risen by 2.5 percent. In December, average hourly earnings of private-sector production and nonsupervisory employees, at $21.22, changed little (+2 cents).

The change in total nonfarm payroll employment for October was revised from +298,000 to +307,000, and the change for November was revised from +211,000 to +252,000. With these revisions, employment gains in October and November combined were 50,000 higher than previously reported. Over the past 3 months, job gains have averaged 284,000 per month.

Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs announces Downtown Enhancement Grant application availability

Tuesday, the Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs \(OCRA\) announced that they are now accepting Downtown Enhancement Grant \(DEG\) applications as part of the Indiana Main Street \(IMS\) program.

DEG offers IMS designated communities the opportunity to apply for project funding from $5,000 to $10,000 through a competitive application process. The goal of the program is to improve the quality of life, spur economic development and advance avenues for increasing private investment and employment in downtown areas. Through the OCRA program, innovative projects that support and promote community-based collaboration and downtown

State health officials encourage Hoosiers to stay safe this winter

As temperatures drop, state health officials are reminding Hoosiers to take steps to prevent injuries while clearing driveways and sidewalks of snow and ice.

"Winter can be a fun time, but it can also be dangerous," said State Health Commissioner Jerome Adams, M.D., M.P.H. "Activities like shoveling snow can provide a good workout, but Hoosiers need to make sure they're safe while doing so to prevent injury or even death."

Shoveling snow can put a big strain on your heart and muscles. Don't pick up that shovel without a doctor's permission if you have a history of heart disease. If you feel tightness in the chest or dizziness, stop immediately. A clear driveway is not worth your life.

Here are some other tips to stay safe while clearing the way:

- Warm up by stretching and doing a few exercises before shoveling.
- Dress warmly in layers, being sure to wear a hat and cover your neck.

revitalization can be seen in communities throughout the state.

"DEG continues to assist in fostering a culture that welcomes new businesses and quality of place initiatives for our Indiana Main Street communities," said OCRA Executive Director Bill Konyha. "We look forward to the continued partnerships in building economic prosperity for both current and future residents of our Hoosier communities."

Interested communities, who meet established eligibility requirements, must submit an application online by March 11, 2016 before 4 p.m. EST. In order to access the online instructions, applicants must contact their OCRA community liaison and request the submission link by March 4, 2016. Grant awardees will be announced the week of April 4, 2016 and posted on OCRA's website.

DEG is a component of the OCRA Indiana Main Street program, which is founded on a Four Point Approach to downtown development: organization, design, promotion and economic vitality. Across the state, numerous Indiana Main Street communities work on these four main aspects of their downtowns in order to drive restoration and revitalization efforts.

For more information about the Indiana Main Street Program and Downtown Enhancement Grants, contact your regional Community Liaison with questions and visit OCRA's IMS webpage.

-Avoid smoking or eating a large meal before shoveling.

-Shovel heavy snow in stages. Start by skimming off the snow from the top, and then remove the bottom layer. Don't overload the shovel.

-Allow enough time to do the work. Follow a slow and steady pace and take frequent breaks to stand up and stretch.

-Watch for ice patches and uneven surfaces. Don't let a hat or scarf block your vision.

-Use a shovel that's comfortable for your height and strength. Space your hands on the tool grip to increase your leverage.

-Push the snow instead of lifting it. If you must lift, squat with your legs apart, knees bent and back straight. Lift with your legs. Do not bend at the waist.

-Do not throw the snow over your shoulder or to the side, as it could hurt your back.

-Breathing cold air dehydrates the body, so drink water during breaks.

-Operating a snow blower can also pose a hazard if the user isn't careful. Finger and hand lacerations and finger amputations can occur. Be sure to read the instruction manual and become familiar with safety features before using a snow blower.

-Residents also are urged to use caution when walking during the winter. When snow falls, so do people. Ice-covered sidewalks, steps, driveways or porches can cause falls that result in broken bones and head injuries.

-To stay safe, remove snow and ice as soon as possible. Keep your steps and walkways as free of ice as possible by using rock salt or another chemical de-icing compound. Sand or cat litter may also be used on walkways to reduce the risk of slipping and falling.

-Don't forget your family pets. If it's too cold outside for you, it's probably too cold for your pet. -Like people, animals are susceptible to frostbite and hypothermia and should be kept inside or provided adequate shelter if outside. Owners should also ensure that pets' water sources don't freeze over.

Students step up to support Martin County Safe Communities Day

Students at Loogootee Middle School are working to make a difference for families in Martin County. Students in Ms. Nicole Bays' 6th grade class organized a food drive at school to support the food drive being held in conjunction with the Martin County Safe Communities Day.

"Doing a project like this gives us a chance to help others in the community and realize how fortunate we really are. Most of us have plenty of food to eat, but we know not everyone is that lucky," said 6th grade students Kylie VanHoy, Chantel Greene, Grace Lingenfelter and Kyndal Braun.

Sheriff Travis Roush, Deputies Andy Burkhardt, Josh Greene and State Trooper Jarrod Lents visited Loogootee Middle School students to talk with them about the importance of helping others and to encourage them to attend the Martin County Safe Communities Day. This event gives members of the community a chance to hang out with local police officers and enjoy a fun filled day of talks and presentations.

Students in grades 5 - 8 will be collecting food January 8-15 and will donate it to local food banks on behalf of the Martin County Safe Communities Day, held January 16 at the Martin County 4H Fairgrounds. The public is invited and encouraged to attend.

Coaches versus Cancer games this week at LHS

This week is the annual Coaches vs Cancer games for both the girls' and boys' teams at the Loogootee Community School Corporation. The Martin County Relay for Life Committee and Teams will be present on Thursday, January 14, as the Lady Lions take on visiting Vincennes Rivet Lady Patriots.

Then on Saturday, January 16 the mighty Lions will host rival, the Barr Reeve Vikings, both games will be at Jack Butcher Arena.

The bucket brigade will be around the gym for any loose change or donations to help with the fight of finding a cure for cancer. The money collected will be turned in for the 2016 Martin County Relay for Life that will be held on June 11.

Shirts have been designed for both games. Rosie's has the design for the girl's game and JD Shirt Design has the shirt for the boys.

Proceeds from the shirt sales will also benefit the cause.

Please come out and support our Lady Lions Thursday and then on Saturday, enjoy Homecoming, a great ball game between two great rivals and help us to find a cure for cancer. It's a WIN, WIN, situation.
