Recycling center talks trash; seven million pounds of it

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT Martin County Journal Publisher

The Martin County Recycling Center took in more than 7 million pounds of material last year. Despite a tougher market and a harder time getting recycled material to sell, Director Laura Albertson says that things are starting to look up for the center. They are currently in the process of building on a 3,600-square-foot addition to help accommodate other counties that use the Martin County Recycling Center. "We're growing and we need more space," said Al-

Due to the recycling center doing so well financially the tax levy originally imposed on taxpayers was reduced last year from 25 cents to 4 cents. The center does not charge businesses to take in material or other counties. The center makes their money when they sell the material and then the business receives a share of the market value. Back in late 2008 Albertson had told the Martin County Council that the recycling center was more than willing to help out the county in any way possible. "We spend our money in Martin County first," she had said. The recycling center helped fund the county's 911 system by advocating that the signage would help locate illegal dumps and they also helped fund the clean-up of a brownfield at Crane. The money reimbursed is now helping purchase land for the Shoals Fire

Between businesses and individuals in 2009, the center recycled 1,863 tons of cardboard, 328 tons of newspaper, 339 tons of magazines, 200 tons of plastic, 66 tons of scrap metal, 17 tons of aluminum cans, 10 tons of wooden pallets, 298 tons of paper, 84 tons of clothing, eight tons of e-waste which includes

Daviess-Martin Joint Park Board releases 5-year plan

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT Martin County Journal Publisher

The Daviess-Martin County Joint Park Board recently released their 5-year plan. The mission of the park board is to "provide the widest possible range of recreation opportunities, to the largest possible number of people, at the lowest possible public cost, without depleting the underlying natural resources." The joint park board consists of five members from each county. Martin County's members are President Chadd Mosby, Brian George, Harold Green, Donna Hawkins, and Secretary Spencer Keller. Daviess County's members are Vice President Lee Bennett, Gerald Lynch, Rex Malone, Mike Cecil, and Mark Traylor.

The Martin County portion of the park board has recently put forth plans for development of additional recreational venues in Martin County. The purpose of the 5-year plan is to help both counties become proactive in developing the additional recreation.

The department held a public input session prior to forming the master plan on December 10, 2009 at the activities center at West Boggs. No members of the public attended. The second effort for public input was in the form of an online survey. In total, 67 people participated. Of those participating in the survey 45 were males and 22 were females with a majority being between the ages of 36 and 55 and most were from around the Martin-Daviess region. The activities done on a regular basis as answered by the survey participants were camping, fishing, hunting, picnicking, wildlife watching, golf cart trail riding, power boating, and walking. Of the 67 survey responses 38 percent said they visit West Boggs once or twice a year, 28.4 percent said twice a month, 10.4 percent said four or five times a week, percent said or fewer times week, 7.5 percent said every day, and 6 percent said never. Most respondents also felt that the user fees at Boggs for entrance, daily camping, boating, and permit fees were about right with seasonal camping fees being too high. Survey takers also were asked what they felt was a high priority for facilities. A pool was highest on the list along with an inn or smaller lodging facility, a nature center, and more trails.

The master plan includes a 20-item goal list which carries the park through 2014. The park department notes that the list of projects is heavily dependent on funding support from outside sources, and that with-sewage lift station at a cost of $150,000. It out that support, it is not likely that many of the projects will ever be implemented. The department plans to explore all grant funding options and possible funds from the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF)

Renovation Project at an estimated $60,000, they would like to continue with ADA the (Americans with Disabilities Act) assessment at a cost of $1,000, some of the park's aged facilities no longer meet the standards of current needs; acquire property needed for Whisky Creek Access at an unknown cost; set up new development advisory teams in both counties for $2,000; and develop a new restroom according to ADA requirements near the boat ramp for $25,000.

In 2011, the department would like to acquire property near the park's entrance zone, the cost is unknown; replace the main is noted in the report that the wastewater system is old and in disrepair to the point it threatens the entire park operation if it should actually fail. The report goes on to state that this project would, perhaps, be the single highest priority, but due to the large In year one, 2010, the department would cost of the project it makes is difficult to like to im- place such projects first on the list. Attempts plement the at an OCRA (Office of Community and Shoreline Rural Affairs) block grant in 2009 proved to be unsuccessful due to the area income survey that did not show significant levels of poverty to qualify. Another attempt to seek funding for road repairs found that both county funds and INDOT funds are not available for local park roads. This is due in part to those roads being controlled by a gatehouse with an entrance fee.

> Also for 2011 the department would like to develop Whisky Creek Trail at a cost of $80,000.

> In 2012 the park board has a goal of replacing the West Boggs boat ramps at a cost of $100,000; to construct new service docks at the ramp for $25,000; upgrade campground utilities in the Muskrat section for $60,000; and replace the fish cleaning station for $50,000.

> For 2013 the department hopes to establish a permanent lodging facility or inn at West Boggs at an unknown cost; replace the gate house for $45,000; purchase equipment for trail development and maintenance for

Martin County's jobless rate one of state's five lowest

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT Martin County Journal Publisher

Martin County still has the 89th lowest unemployment rate of the 92 Indiana counties for January, 2010 and sits at 7.7 percent. The county is one of the top five for the lowest jobless rate.

The county's labor force rose by 55 people from December, 2009 to a total of 5,066 people. Of those 4,677 residents had jobs and 389 were unemployed.

One year ago Martin County's unemployment was almost identical at 7.6 percent with 382 residents unemployed.

Dubois County follows right behind in 88th place with 7.8 percent jobless. Dubois had 1,711 people without jobs in January of this year up from 1,415 just one year ago.

Daviess County has the lowest unemployment rate of all Indiana counties at 6.3 percent. Daviess had 939 people unemployed in January and only 876 this time

Lawrence County is in 25th place with 12.2 percent jobless with 2,738 residents out of work. In January of 2009 Lawrence had 3,228 unemployed.

Orange County is in 39th place at 11.6 percent. The county has 1,229 people without jobs up from 1,089 from January of last

The five counties in Indiana with the lowest unemployment are: Daviess, Monroe, Hamilton, Martin, and Dubois. The five with the highest unemployment rate are: Elkhart, Noble, Vermillion, Fayette, and Starke. Elkart's rate is 15.6 percent.

Indiana's preliminary seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate for January 2010 did not change from the revised December 2009 rate of 9.7 percent (-0.2 percent). Indiana matched the national rate of 9.7 per-

"Similar to the rest of the nation, Indiana isn't seeing much change right now," said Teresa Voors, Commissioner of the Indiana Department of Workforce Development. "Indiana's unemployment rate appears to be holding relatively stable based on the slowing of job losses."

Seasonally-adjusted total non-farm employment in Indiana declined by 2,000 in January. Sectors reporting significant employment increases include: Manufacturing (3,900), Financial Activities (600) and Professional and Business Services (600). Sectors reporting significant employment declines include: Private Education and Health Services (-5,700), Leisure and Hospitality (-2,600) and Construction (-2,200).

Indiana continues to report the lowest unemployment among its neighboring states. Ohio's unemployment rate remained unchanged at 10.8 percent. Illinois increased 0.3 percent to 11.3 percent. Kentucky increased 0.1 percent to 10.7 percent. Michigan's unemployment rate decreased 0.2 percent to 14.3 percent.

Comparing employment data year-toyear, Indiana's unemployment rate increased approximately half as much as the U.S. and neighboring Midwest states.

Indiana's unemployment rate grew 0.9 percent from the January 2009 rate of 8.8 percent. Kentucky climbed 1.6 percent. Ohio increased 2.2 percent. Michigan grew 3.0 percent. Illinois jumped 3.2 percent. The United States unemployment rate increased 2.0 percent from January 2009.

Governor Daniels proclaims March 14 - 20 severe weather preparedness week

Governor Mitch Daniels has proclaimed March 14th through 20th, as Severe Weather Preparedness Week in Indiana. The National Weather Service, in conjunction with the Indiana State Police and Public Safety Commission, Indiana Department of Homeland Security, Department of Education, the Indiana Broadcaster's Association, the Red Cross, and Amateur Radio Operators will conducted a statewide test of communication systems on Wednesday, March 17 between 10:15 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. and again between 7:30 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. If weather postpones the tests, make-up tests are Thursday, March 18 at the same times

The goal of Severe Weather Preparedness

Week is to better educate people about the hazards of severe thunderstorms and tornadoes, and to help everyone be prepared should severe weather occur.

Tornadoes

Indiana had 11 tornadoes last year: the average is 20; the most: 49 in 1990. The average forward speed is 30 mph but varies from 0 to 70 mph. The average tornado width is about 100 yards but can reach one mile wide. Tornadoes occur year round but are most likely from April to June. Preferred hours are from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. with a second peak from 12 a.m. to 3 a.m.

Severe Weather Terms and Definitions

Warning - a particular weather hazard is either imminent or has been reported. A warning indicates the need to take immediate action to protect life and property. The type of hazard is reflected in the type of warning (e.g., tornado warning, blizzard warning).

Watch - a particular hazard is possible, or when conditions support its occurrence. A watch is a recommendation for planning, preparation, and increased preparedness (i.e., to be alert for changing weather, listen for further information, and think about what to do if the danger materializes).

Tornado - A violently rotating column of air in contact with the ground and extending from the base of a thunderstorm.

Severe Thunderstorm - A thunderstorm that produces tornadoes, hail one inch or more in diameter, or winds of 50 knots (58 mph) or more.

Straight-line Winds - Generally, any wind that is not associated with rotation, used mainly to differentiate them from tornadic

Flood - The condition that occurs when water overflows the natural or artificial confines of a stream or other body of water, or accumulates by drainage over low-lying areas.

Flash Flood - A flood that rises and falls quite rapidly, usually as the result of intense rainfall over a relatively small area. Usually a flash flood occurs within 6 hours of a rain Slight Risk (of severe thunderstorms) -Severe thunderstorms are expected to affect between 2 and 5 percent of the area. A slight risk generally implies that severe weather events are expected to be isolated.

Moderate Risk (of severe thunderstorms) - Severe thunderstorms are expected to affect between 5 and 10 percent of the area. A moderate risk indicates the possibility of a significant severe weather episode. A Watch will likely be issued.

vere weather is expected to affect more than 10 percent of the area. A high risk is rare, and implies an unusually dangerous situation and usually the possibility of a major severe weather outbreak.

Supercell - A thunderstorm with a persistent rotating updraft. Supercells are rare, but are responsible for a remarkably high percentage of severe weather events - especially tornadoes, extremely large hail and damaging straight-line winds.

Squall Line - A solid or nearly solid line or band of active thunderstorms, often yielding heavy rain and strong wind.

Downburst - A strong downdraft resulting in an outward burst of damaging winds on or near the ground. Downburst winds can produce damage similar to a strong tornado. Although usually associated with thunderstorms, downbursts can occur with showers too weak to produce thunder.

Funnel Cloud - A condensation funnel extending from the base of a towering cumulus or cumulonimbus cloud, associated with a rotating column of air that is not in contact with the ground (and hence different from a tornado). A condensation funnel is a tornado, not a funnel cloud, if either a) it is in contact with the ground or b) a debris cloud orS dust whirl is visible beneath it.

Cold-air Funnel - A funnel cloud that can develop from a small shower or thunderstorm when the air aloft is unusually cold (hence the name). On rare occasions, small, relatively weak tornado can occur. These weak tornadoes last only a few minutes and are generally much less violent than other types of tornadoes.

$100,000; construct docks/marina for $40,000; and construct a new multi-use trail on the west side of the park for $80,000.

In the final year of the plan, 2014, the park board wishes to resurface the park's roads including paving the ramp at $350,000; add a new playground that abides by ADA rules for $80,000; and renovate the campground utilities in the Bobcat section for $100,000.

The total for the 5-year plan, aside for the unknown amounts, totals $1,288,000. The potential sources of funding for the projects include money from the General Fund, the Land and Water Conservation Fund, county support, LARE (Lake and River Enhancement program), commercial loans, Recreational Trails Program grants (RTP), and donations.

Currently about 75 percent of the park's camping and boating use comes from those who do not live in Martin or Daviess counties while day-use recreation is opposite with only 25 percent of non-county residents using these services. Since Boggs is not a state park it operates solely on user fees and without state funding of any kind. The park operates on an estimated $780,000 annual budget and serves in excess of 150,000 visitors per year.

History of the joint parks department and West Boggs

The joint parks department was formed for the purpose of owning and operating West Boggs Park. West Boggs is a fairly large and diverse park, which opened in 1972. The 1,500-acre park includes the 622-acre West Boggs Creek Reservoir and a 250-acre outdoor recreation area. It offers boating, fishing, waterfowl hunting, camping and among several other day-use activities

West Boggs Creek Reservoir was created circa 1970 as a project of the Small Watershed Flood Control Act. West Boggs was a joint project of several federal, state, and local entities.

Recently the Indiana State Police and many other police agencies across Indiana have received complaints from residents and businesses concerning solicitors who implied they have an association with the Indiana State Police or other police agen-

These complaints have resulted in the initiation of an investigation.

Complainants have reported they were asked to tape the donation to the door of their home or business for collection later in the day.

On some occasions, the solicitors have told donors the funds would be used to send a local child to a law enforcement summer

Green Zone

As a fan of the "Jason Bourne" series, I found myself compelled to see Green Zone thinking I would be treated to a nonstop action flick filled with twists and turns in which Matt Damon would outsmart and out-fight his pursuers. Rather, Chief Warrant Officer Roy Miller takes us on a journey to discover the weapons of mass destruction hidden in Baghdad after the 2003 invasion of Iraq. While there are several good action scenes throughout the movie, however, the political overtones of the movie take over and begin to choke out any semblance to an intriguing plot.

The movie centers around the belief that the entire invasion of Iraq is based on the misinformation of an informant named "Magellan" and carries only marginal suspense, or drama. The film tries to push the fact that the U.S. wrongly invaded the country and attempted to create a democracy.

The solid acting does not overtake the fact that the characters lack little substance and seem to miss the connection with the audience. There was a sense of realism passed along through the viewing, as the sights and sounds of a country in distress are accurately portrayed. Also, due to the employment of actual soldiers for the film, there was some degree of authenticity to the tactical actions and combat scenes.

While not a movie I suggest as a must see in the box office, the movie does carry enough entertainment value to merit a rent on DVD. The political pushiness just seemed too much for this moviegoer.

The Messmer Report By District 63 State Representative Mark Messmer

Messmer bill on Governor's desk

I'm sure you've had days where you reach bedtime and think, "I've been running around since I woke up, but what have I done today?'

Well, that's how last week felt at the Statehouse.

Although we have had more than two months of hearings and discussions, sometimes it takes a deadline to prompt legislators to finally get down to business.

Next week, I'll give you all the details on what finally ended up in the unemployment insurance tax delay, and what finally ended up in a bill to give schools some funding flexibility during these financially difficult

However, one of my bills passed both chambers last week.

As a freshman legislator in the minority, that doesn't happen too often, so I'm very pleased that Senate Bill 356 is now ready to be sent to the governor for his signature.

At its core, Senate Bill 356 is really about government efficiency.

The ideas contained in it were sparked last summer when we returned to the Statehouse for "study committees" in preparation for this year's session.

It contains many more law changes now than it did originally, everything in the bill pertains in some way to professional licens-

Granting licenses is one of the most important duties of the state.

Because standards for various professions are different from state to state, licenses to practice each profession — be they teaching licenses, beautician licenses or nursing licenses, for example—must be administered by the state (vs. being administered by the federal government).

The process of research and administration required to dispense these thousands of licenses each year can be expensive and cumbersome.

However, it is a vital process because it ensures that Hoosiers will be kept safe from people who are not actually qualified to sell the services they want to sell.

This bill will streamline some of these processes.

For example, this bill allows private agencies to do criminal history checks for employees of home health agencies.

Private agencies are perfectly qualified to do this kind of work, and it becomes one more function the state doesn't have to per-

Another thing it does is to merge and change the membership on the cosmetology and barber boards.

It also eliminates the controlled substances advisory committee and transfers those responsibilities to the Indiana board of pharmacy.

Again, it's all about streamlining and consolidating government functions in order to save you, the taxpayer, a few dollars.

By making sure that two different state boards are not both doing the same work, we'll save money.

Representative Peggy Welch, a Democrat from Bloomington, was also a sponsor of Senate Bill 356, and it was a pleasure to collaborate with her on this project

In fact, the whole bill was really a bipartisan effort.

It passed out of committee unanimously, and passed both the House and Senate unanimously as well.

Now, the next step is for it to be signed by the governor.

As always, feel free to contact me with questions or concerns at 1-800-382-9841 or h63@in.gov.

Your State Representative, Mark Messmer

News from the Statehouse By District 62 State Representative Sandy Blanton

This has seemed like the longest short session of the Indiana General Assembly ever. We had our own version of March

Our work is done for 2010. In the final push toward completion, we were able to pass a number of substantial proposals that will benefit the people of our state.

There will be time in the days and weeks ahead to discuss the accomplishments of the 2010 session. Here are some of the highlights of our work these past few months:

- passage of job creation proposals that can bring hope for more than 300,000 Hoosiers who are out of work;
- greater accountability from employers who receive taxpayer incentives and better protections for their workers;
- funding flexibility to help schools reeling from the loss of $500 million in state support ordered by the governor;
- ethics reform to restore public trust in state government; and
- allowing Hoosier voters to decide if the 1–2–3 property tax caps should go into the Indiana Constitution.

I will tell you about some other achievements in more detail in my next report. This week, I want to focus on the work we did in this session's final hours, when it seemed that nothing would be done.

I am happy to report that we passed legislation to address the top priority for this session: creating jobs. Almost every provision of the Hoosiers First plan that received strong bipartisan support in the Indiana House earlier this session was approved and will be going to the governor for his signature. It was important legislation, and it was the right thing to do.

Once in place, this plan is expected to put as many as 60,000 Hoosiers back to work. It provides assistance for Indiana's small businesses, which often get neglected in our state's economic development programs, even though they employ 1.3 million Hoosiers.

Small businesses will have access to EDGE (Economic Development for a Growing Economy) credits for the first time. An ombudsman will be brought on line to help small businesses work more efficiently with state government, and explore

Two new programs will target job creation. A new employer tax credit will be offered to encourage companies to come to Indiana and the new HIRE (Helping Indiana Restart Employment) program will go after $100 million in federal stimulus dollars to reimburse companies that hire new workers.

We listened to the concerns expressed by the business community and provided a one-year delay in the unemployment premium increase approved by the Legislature in 2009. This will help companies during tough economic times. No new taxes, no new levies in a time of economic stress.

As we lend employers a helping hand, we also are asking them to be more accountable. A new "clawback" program will enable state government to reclaim taxpayer–financed benefits from companies that do not live up to promises of creating new jobs. We set up a system to take action against employers who wrongly fail to provide health insurance, Social Security, pensions, workers compensation, and other benefits for their employees.

I also want to mention passage of a separate bill (House Bill 1367) that will help our schools as they try to cope with the cuts ordered by the governor. This added financial flexibility will not keep our schools from cutting programs, laying off teachers, and increasing class sizes, but it will give local school boards more tools to use to reduce the impact of the governor's funding cuts. It will allow for more local control of finances and provide more local flexibility in dealing with economic issues.

These accomplishments are substantial, and it is good to note that they all passed with bipartisan support in both the Indiana House and Senate. Next week, I will take a longer look at some other achievements.

If you wish to share your views or opinions about these issues or any other topics related to Indiana state government, please contact me at h62@in.gov.

Indiana not among states delaying tax refunds come tax refunds this year, Indiana is issuing refunds as usual.

The Indiana Department of Revenue reports it has issued right at one million refunds to date, compared to approximately one million refunds it issued the same time last year, too.

"Once again, it comes down to the solid leadership at the helm in our state," said Revenue Commissioner John Eckart. "Indiana has had to make adjustments in the face of this critical economic time, but its adjustments have still been marginal compared to INDIANAPOLIS - In stark contrast to many other states — and, as a result, the states like New York and Hawaii, who are money is available to ensure those taxpaydelaying or are considering delaying in- ers who overpaid their fair share in 2009 are getting their refunds just as soon as we can properly process them."

> The average refund has increased this year to $312, compared to $271 the same time last year.

> "Those who are filing electronically and have their accounts set up to receive their refunds via direct deposit are receiving those in about four to seven days, on average," said Eckart. "Paper filings take longer to process, so those refunds are being issued in six to 12 weeks, which is the annual average for a refund from a paper return."

It was in Boston in 1737.

It is critical that all census forms be completed and returned'

Dear Editor of The Journal:

The 2010 Census is here. This is a very important event in time. The participation of every resident in the city is critical to the outcome of this census.

The forms have been arriving in many homes in the last two weeks and many have already been completed and mailed back. This is great. However, the professional census people tell us that many will not be completed and returned. That is the reason that census takers are going door to door. They don't know the people are that will or will not respond without a personal invitation. To be sure, you should ask for identification before talking with them. They should have a photo ID card, a badge, and a handheld device to take the needed information. They should never ask for your social security number or any information about bank accounts or credit cards. They should treat everyone courteously and we ask that everyone return the courtesy.

The complete count of every person living the city of Loogootee is very important to the city. Your representation on the state and national legislature depends on everyone being counted.

There are also many government sources of funding which are allocated depending on population. These include highways, schools, health facilities, and many other programs. It has been said that for every person that is not counted, the city will lose $3,000 of funding. It is in our hands.

The bottom line is that it is critical that all census forms be completed and returned so that everyone will be counted.

returned the forms and please encourage everyone else to do so.

Thanks again, Don Bowling, Mayor City of Loogootee

I would sign the form with the last phrase deleted.

Dear Editor of The Journal:

In all 92 Indiana counties, a "4-H Youth Development Projects, Events, & Activities Release Form" is required for participation

It reads like this....I understand that participating in 4-H activities can involve certain risks to my child. On behalf of my child I accept those risks. I hereby release and discharge Purdue University, The Trustees of Purdue University, the Franklin County Commissioners, the Franklin County Cooperative Extension Service, and each of their trustees, officers, appointees, agents, employees, and volunteers ("Released Parties") from all claims which my child or myself might have for any injury or harm to my child, including death, arising out of my child's participation in any activity relating to the 4-H your development program, EVEN IF SUCH INJURY OR HARM IS CAUSED BY THE NEGLIGENCE OR FAULT OF ANY OF THE RELEASED PARTIES. (The emphasis is mine.)

Even if such injury or harm is caused by the Released Parties??? Since when are we not responsible for any harm we cause through our own negligence or fault? Is injury or harm caused by the negligence or fault of the Released Parties now considered a risk to participating in 4-H? 4-H is asking us to sign a release form stating that if our children are injured or harmed through negligence or fault that we consider this an ACCEPTABLE risk. How does this protect our children?

I understand accidents and I understand the need for 4-H to protect itself especially against frivolous lawsuits. What I do not understand is the last phrase of the form relieving individuals of responsibility for their own actions and not being held accountable for them. I would sign the form with the last phrase deleted.

4-H parents, former 4-H members, 4-H supporters, Purdue alumni, anyone uncomfortable with this strong language, I ask you to come together to petition for this phrase to be eliminated by visiting our website, www.indianafourhreleaseformopposition.org and/or contacting www.four-Thank you to everyone who has already h.purdue.edu/contactus.cfm to express your concern. Get the word out! Contact your state ate change if we stand together.

Most Sincerely, Resa M. Sucietto Brookville, Indiana

Point of

Courtney Hughett

I am so not a morning person and until I morning. And they complain, every mornhave had my coffee I don't like to talk to anyone and I really, really don't like to answer questions. On the weekdays, when I get up, my husband has already been at work for a few hours and since I get my kids up for school I typically do my "waking up" before I attempt to get them out of bed. I get my coffee and sit in my bedroom and watch the Today Show until I've finished that first cup. During the school week, as soon as I wake the boys, I know that it will be craziness until we pile in the car to leave. I hate the mornings that I oversleep, it ruins the entire day.

Wyatt, my 12-year-old, is like me and does not like mornings. He always looks so sad when he comes down the stairs rubbing his eyes, and almost every morning he climbs back in my bed and goes back to sleep. I am sure that I say my children's names about 300 times every morning before school.

Alex, my 10-year-old, is the "picky clothes kid" and is never satisfied with what I chose for him to wear. By school time my bedroom floor looks like we have been robbed with the amount of rejected clothes that have been tossed. Usually by the fourth try we get it right.

During the time I am playing 'personal fashion assistant' with Alex, Wyatt is still nestled, on my side of the bed, sound asleep. Wyatt doesn't care what he wears. He has actually tried to get out of the door wearing Alex's pants on many occasions. Wyatt is about a foot taller than Alex so you can imagine. He also doesn't care if the clothing he wears is clean or if he just wore the same outfit the day before. I think he figures if he is dressed then he has the okay to go back to sleep, one of his favorite pas-

After the clothes are finally approved I take each boy in the bathroom, one at a time, to make their hair presentable. Most people find it strange that, at their age, I still brush my boys' hair, but if you saw what they looked like when they did their own hair, you would understand. I am not sure what they do at night but I've told them many times, they should just shower when their hair and start from scratch, every year. I think it's 53 days.

After the clothes and hair are acceptable and after they have eaten it's usually time to go. This is when the meltdowns, if that is a morning for meltdowns, take place. Despite my attempts to get my boys to give us papers that need to be signed or to tell us if they need something for school the night before, they just don't get it. They wait until the 11th hour when we are in the car headed down the street. Naturally I usually flip out and yell, but I absolutely hate sending my kids to school after a fight, so I try to keep my cool. I don't remember doing that when I was a child but I am sure I did.

Sometimes when I get back home, after dropping them off, I just sit and wonder what my mornings will be like when they are grown. Other mornings, when I have been too hard on them, I fight the urge to go down to the school just to make sure they are okay.

I never had a parent at home to get us up for school, my older sister, Tyra, always had that pleasure. Poor Tyra would fight to get me up. I would finally give in and almost always took my blanket and curled up on the heater vent on our bedroom floor and went back to sleep. Tyra would get so mad, she hated being late. Just like Wyatt I never cared what I looked like and wore some interesting outfit combinations. The difference between me and Wyatt was I actually went to school like that.

There has only been one morning that I didn't see my kids off to school. I think maybe I was sick and my husband was home from work that day, so he let me sleep. When I woke up and realized the boys were gone I started crying. Josh was baffled and couldn't figure out what the big deal was. Since I almost never had a parent home to see me off to school, I vowed that my boys would, every single day, and, when possible, I would be there when they got home. It's funny how your childhood affects you. Through my tears I explained to Josh, that although I may have been overreacting, I couldn't help how I felt. He didn't do it again.

I want my boys to remember me always representative and state senator. We can crethey get up, it would be easier. I have never being there. I'm lucky that, so far, I have seen hair stick up in so many places. So, one been able to do it. Like them, I also count by one, I have to pretty much soak down down the days until summer vacation every
