Township coffers hold over $1 million in unused funds

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

Martin County has six township trustees' offices – Perry, Halbert, Lost River, Mitcheltree, Rutherford, and Center. At the end of 2018, the six townships combined had $1,040,770.31 in unused funds that rolled over to this year. All six townships spent a total of $309,973.42 in 2018. Of that $150,958 was spent on salaries and office expenses.

Each township has a trustee, an elected official with a four-year term. Each trustee also can have a paid secretary (Lost River Township chooses not to) and a paid advisory board of three people. All six township trustees in Martin County in 2018, operated the trustee's office from their homes and were reimbursed for rent, utilities, phone, and travel, in one case.

There are 1,008 townships in Indiana. One of the main jobs of a township trustee is to provide money to people in need. Township assistance is given to individuals who are in an emergency situation and have no other means to provide the basic essentials of life. Residents in need can request help paying for utilities, rent, medical and dental expenses, prescriptions, vehicle repairs, fuel, groceries, and clothing.

The trustee also provides fire protection to its citizens when the township is not incorporated into a city or town. This includes writing a check to fire departments, annually, to provide fire service to their township residents. Townships, such as Lost River, also help by providing funds for buildings, equipment, and vehicles for the department.

The trustee also maintains cemeteries by hiring people to provide mowing services. Other duties, per state statute, can include helping with funeral expenses, providing and maintaining township parks and community centers, destroying detrimental plants, noxious weeds, and rank vegetation; and providing insulin to the poor.

Each year the township trustees are required by state law to file an annual report. Those reports, according to the state Gateway site, must be provided to the state for upload onto the state database 60 days after the end of the year. To view all reports, visit https://gateway.ifonline.org/report\_builder/. Information directly from the state reports is broken down below for each township.

All six townships were recently audited and those audit results can be found here: <https://secure.in.gov/apps/sboa/audit-reports/#/>

Middle School Principal Austin Malone gave his report to the board first. The reported average attendance for January - March was 96.6 percent in 6th grade, 94 percent in 7th grade, and 93.7 percent in 8th grade. These numbers are reflective of the flu season in full swing. Testing season is coming with practice testing of the IREAD 3 being completed today, ISTEP retesting finishing up and ILEARN preparations starting. The new test will be using the new AIR interface. IREAD 3 will start Monday March 18, 2019. This is a high stakes timed test that students must pass in order to advance. There are many benefits to the new ILEARN including no time limits, no testing tickets, predictive testing and there is only one testing window. The drawbacks are that it is in the brand new interface that the kids have never seen before, still high stakes, there are still kids that are not great test takers and they are still basing a test off of nine months of instruction. However, Mr. Malone stated that they will give it their best as they always do. The ILEARN testing will begin for 3rd-8th in late April. Spring Break is fast approaching in just five days. The new structure of the middle school design is taking shape. The 2019-2020 school year will be the introduction of the new Middle School Cohorts. There will be seven cohorts, or teams/houses. Each cohort will have a faculty leader and they will help the teams compete for prizes throughout the year. There will be a dedicated block schedule periods 1-6 that will eliminate the need for passing periods. This will help cut-down on tardies and any unnecessary disruptions in the hallways. There will also be a dedicated guided study time for each cohort that will help cut-down on homework. Mr. Malone gives a huge shout out to the bus drivers for getting the kids to school safely, Doug Wagoner and Roger Wraley for keeping the parking lots clear and safe and to the multiple teachers that have happily covered classes when they are short substitutes.

Elementary Principal Shannon Wagoner reported next. The VEX Robotics and their sponsor Lindsey Douglas competed for the first time this year. Although they did not place, they felt accomplished and are gearing up for next school year. Mrs. Douglas gave the students a great introduction into the world of robotics. The Jr. FLL Robotics season is getting ready to start. The selection process has begun for the 1st-3rd graders that will be invited to join. A big thank you goes to the FTC High School Team for helping Mrs. Douglas and the VEX Robotics team through their first year. Also, congratulations to the SHS team on their advancement to state finals this weekend and good luck. The Math Bowl teams both placed this year. The 5th grade team placed 1st and the 4th grade team placed 2nd. There were 26 elementary students inducted into the National Beta group on Tuesday evening. This brings the total of elementary students in 4th and 5th grade Beta to 45. The second grade went on a trip to Westgate Academy for a STEM presentation. There is an upcoming 4th grade trip to Westgate Academy for STEM as well. Again, IREAD3 practice testing was completed today and testing will begin Monday. They are reminding all parents that there will be a retest in June for any 3rd grader that does not pass this test. It is a high stakes test that determines advancement to 4th grade. The preparation for ILEARN is in full swing. The American Red Cross Blood Drive will be on April 3 from 2:30-7:30 p.m. Mrs. Wagoner completed her School Safety Specialist training and is now certified. There have been many Project Based School visits for the elementary teachers. They are inspired and are striving to implement an intentional personalized way of learning for each student. A huge thank you to Cindy McNabb for writing the Project Lead the Way Grant, the elementary was awarded $2,500.

High School Principal Kindra Hovis closed the reports. The attendance for the high school was 93 percent for the month of February. The incoming freshman parent night was a huge success. There were 25 of the 38 eighth graders and their parents in attendance. They were introduced to the new graduation pathways and were able to do their course requests. A huge thank you to Mrs. Hert for all of her hard work on the evening. The sophomore College and Careers class will be participating in the first ever "Jug Rox Make a Difference Day" on April 12. The students will be painting at the Senior Citizens Center, landscaping around town, cleaning up the ball park, and working at the town hall. More business will be added along the way. The High School Beta Club inducted 22 new members on Tuesday night. Shoals Community Schools has also received the National Beta Merit Award for the 3rd year in a row. This signifies acknowledgement of the Senior Beta, Junior Beta and Elementary Beta in all three of the schools. The FFA students will be participating in Martin County Ag day this Saturday. They plan to show pigs and chickens as well as showcase the variety of projects that have been completed in the Shop class. Bill Willis will once again be speaking to the 8th and 11th graders in regard to Liberty Day. He will be covering the contents of our Constitution.

Dr. Roush congratulated that fall sports teams on their seasons and wished the high school robotics team good luck at their state competition. The Beta Club induction went very well, and they had many students inducted this year. Dr. Roush is applying for an agriculture grant to partner with Vincennes University on school related projects. The school is still in the middle of the ROI grant process with Mitchell and Orleans and the coordinators would like to attend the April board meeting to discuss the new ideas for the one million dollar Lilly grant. All three schools have been traveling around the surrounding states looking at some really neat schools to try to develop an idea that would really put Shoals Schools at the forefront school innovation. Spring break will be the last week of March. The school is looking into cyber liability insurance to help protect all the school's sensitive information housed online. The school also applied for a $10,000 AT&T grant and they should find out in the next few weeks if the grant application was successful.

Highways 231 and 50 to be resurfaced by next spring

Governor Eric J. Holcomb joined Indiana Department of Transportation Commissioner Joe McGuinness, law enforcement, and road construction industry partners on Tuesday to kick off the 2019 Next Level Roads construction season. The kickoff event was held at INDOT's Office of Materials Management in Indianapolis. The office develops, inspects and tests materials used to construct and maintain highways to ensure products used are efficient and effective. INDOT is embarking on its second full year of delivering Gov. Holcomb's Next Level Roads plan, which leverages long-term, sustainable funding to make record-setting investments in Indiana's transportation system.

"Maintaining our leading position as the Crossroads of America is vital to growing Indiana's economy, attracting new employers, expanding existing businesses and providing a quality of life we can be proud of," Gov. Holcomb said. "Because of our state's fully-funded plan, INDOT and local communities are making meaningful infrastructure investments with results that will be felt throughout Indiana for years to come."

More than 1,100 projects are scheduled for construction along INDOT routes in 2019. When combined with preventative maintenance activities, the state is investing more than $2 billion in its highway network this year. Gov. Holcomb's Next Level Roads plan spends an estimated $10 billion on construction and maintenance of state highways over the next five years and more than $30 billion in the next 20 years. Additionally, INDOT is making available an estimated $140 million to help address winter damage for projects like repaving portions of I-465 in Indianapolis.

With construction season kicking into high gear, Indiana residents and travelers to the Crossroads of America will see an increasing number of "Road Work Ahead" signs.

"INDOT is delivering a record number of projects in 2019 on top of many cities, towns, and counties that are also delivering more construction projects than ever before," INDOT Commissioner Joe McGuinness said. "In the short term, that means that Hoosiers will see a lot of orange barrels this year and should expect some delays. The payoff will be thousands of miles of smoother pavement and hundreds of improved bridges in all corners of Indiana."

Hoosiers are encouraged to visit www.nextlevelroads.com to use INDOT's Google Map tool to find projects happening near them. Motorists should also check INDOT's CARS program for real time-traffic conditions and construction project updates. To report a roadway concern, call 855-INDOT4U or visit www.indot4u.com.

In the Garden

By Ralph Purkhiser
Purdue University Master Gardener

Spring officially begins Wednesday, March 20 at 5:58 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time. It is gardening time. On the first day of spring, the daylight hours and night-time hours are equal and from now until the summer solstice in June, each day, the daylight period will grow longer. That means more hours to spend in the gardens.

There is plenty to do this time of year. Clean-up efforts continue. Not only is there still debris from last summer's plants, but winds last week scattered limbs and blown-in trash throughout the gardens. I cannot say that clean-up is my favorite activity, but at least it means time in the garden, where each day I find some other signs of the awakening of plants.

I finally have daffodils in bloom at Sandhill Gardens. It is the first time in recent memory that I did not have early daffodils in February. I hope that this late beginning means that the daffodil season will continue into May. However, I fear that some of the bulbs which sprouted during the warm days in January may not bloom at all this year. There is a lot of dark foliage on those clumps, and I fear the extreme cold that we had later nipped the buds on these daffodils. I plan to give the area some organic fertilizer, hoping that the bulbs will be able to set buds for next year.

In the vegetable garden, it is time to plant cool-season crops. As soon as the soil is dry enough to work, you may plant garden peas or snow peas. I recommend soaking the seeds overnight in lukewarm water to hasten germination. You may wish to use an inoculant on the seeds, which is available at most garden centers. Be sure to give peas some sort of trellis on which to climb. This a traditional way to use some of those tree branches which have blown down.

You may also plant potatoes whenever the ground is workable. It is best to use new certified seed potatoes, but I admit that I will probably plant some of the tubers I have from last year, which have already begun to sprout. I do not use many potatoes and they are not a major crop for me, so I can afford to take a chance on using the old potatoes. Whatever you use, make sure that each piece of potato has at least one eye. I will again plant my small crop in a bin, adding compost and organic matter around the plants as they grow. Potatoes are heavy feeders, so you should side dress the furrows with some type of fertilizer.

Cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower and other cole crops should soon be available as transplants. These crops can take some light frost, but if you plant this early, you may need some protection should we have a late period of extremely cold temperatures. There is still time to plant seeds for these crops and expect to get a harvest before the summer heat causes them to bolt.

In the ornamental garden, there are some annuals that also thrive in the cool weather of early spring. Pansies and other members of the viola family will take some frost and will give color to planters or gardens during the cool weather. You may even eat the leaves and flowers of these plants.

The stores have bulb displays out and I encourage you to buy while the bulbs are in good condition. The stores do not provide optimal conditions for storing bulbs, so buying now and storing them in the vegetable crisper of a refrigerator is a good way to ensure that you have good bulbs to plant. However, most of these summer bulbs should not be set out until the ground warms. Two notable exceptions are irises and peonies. Both of these may be planted now, and neither should be planted too deeply. With any luck, these perennials may give you blooms this first year. They may be a little later than those which were planted in the fall, but they need to get planted as soon as possible.

Get out and get started. Gardening season is here.

Radius Indiana unifies region with new tourism initiative

After a year-long effort, Radius Indiana has unveiled its new tourism initiative: 'Discover Southern Indiana'. The region-wide tourism drive is the first of its kind for the area and gives an identity to the opportunities the Radius region has to offer to its visitors.

Tourists looking to visit the Radius region will soon be able to visit the 'Discover Southern Indiana' website, a one-stop shop for all and any resources they may need to plan a trip to the region. From luxurious accommodations to outdoor recreational adventures, the region has vacation activities for people of all ages.

Unifying the tourism initiative across the region allows community leaders and tourism businesses to cost-share practices to more effectively implement the branding because multiple counties are likely to be visited by a single visitor. The communities recognize the need to work together to invite travelers to the Radius region.

According to Rockport Analytics, tourism is one of the leading industries in the Radius region, accounting for $290.4 million in tourism spending and providing 3,930 jobs in 2017. With such a level of economic impact on the region, tourism serves as a large economic driver for jobs and quality of place initiatives.

Radius Indiana releases update to Manufacturing Index

Radius Indiana released a quarterly update today to its Radius Manufacturing Index (RMI). The new index showed continued growth in the eight-county region, powered by an increase in manufacturing employment in the region to a level of more than 21,000 jobs out of a total regional workforce of over 91,000.

RMI was developed by Radius Indiana and gives the organization an analytic tool that monitors several facets to gauge the strength of the manufacturing industry in the region and provides cumulative information about 12 data indicators of the manufacturing sector.

This first quarter 2019 RMI update reflects data from first quarter 2018 and shows how the region is performing in comparison to the state of Indiana. The raw number of the RMI is 57.97 for the quarter, which represents the total scores of the 12 factors included in the index. The overall state index saw a score of 57.92.

According to the report, the number of manufacturing establishments, as well as total business establishments in the Radius region, grew during the quarter. For the region, the average manufacturing wage reflected a higher wage than the previous quarter, rising from $46,051 to $46,370.

The positive portrayal of manufacturing strength in the region corroborated the findings in the 2018 Wage and Benefit Survey of businesses in the Radius region and surrounding counties. In that survey, a manufacturing-heavy sample of businesses self-reported that 71 percent of companies in a 15-county region expect to add workers in the next year, while only 5 percent anticipate potential layoffs.

"The RMI allows Radius to continuously see how manufacturing is growing in our region," said Jeff Quyle, president and CEO of Radius. "Gathering this information for our LEDOs allows us to keep them updated on how our region compares to the state regarding the manufacturing sector."

The Radius Manufacturing Index uses statistics from publicly available sources to provide an estimate of the state of health of the manufacturing sector in the region. The index is a backward-looking tool that reflects conditions approximately six-12 months in the past, based on the dates for some of the statistics used. Data used for this RMI update was gathered on March 7, 2019, using JobSEQ.

"The Radius Manufacturing Index provides us with a measure of the overall health of our regional economy which relies heavily on our strong manufacturing base," said Ed Cole, President of Dubois Strong. "Manufacturing plays a huge role in the Dubois County economy. Just over half our workforce is employed in manufacturing jobs. Out of the nearly 23,000 who are employed in our county, almost 12,000 are employed in manufacturing."

For the state, manufacturing jobs decreased as a percentage of total employment, which appears to corroborate the state's ongoing economic diversification.
