The body and vehicle of a missing Loogootee woman has been located.

Monday, March 21 at approximately 1 p.m., investigators received a call from a resident in Shoals that lives on the White River. While overlooking the river from his back yard he noticed something under the water that normally is not there. After looking at for awhile he could see that the color kind of matched that of Wanda Warren's vehicle.

Indiana Conservation Officers went out on the river and discovered that it was a purple car but due to the currents of the river and the time of day decided to wait until Tuesday to attempt to recover the vehicle.

Woman arrested for stealing $22,000

On Wednesday, March 23 at approximately 11 a.m., the Indiana State Police arrested a Huntingburg woman for stealing more than $22,000 from the Indiana Fukang Fur Corporation.

On February 3, the Indiana State Police Criminal Investigation Division launched a criminal investigation after receiving information that Crystal D. White, 33, Huntingburg had allegedly misappropriated approximately $22,000 of the company's funds.

According to the investigation Crystal had office responsibilities with the company and wrote six company checks to herself without the approval of the company.

Throughout the course of the investigation Detective Troy Fischer was able to obtain enough information for the Dubois Superior Court to issue an arrest warrant for theft for her arrest.

Today shortly after 11 a.m., Trooper Phil Hensley went to Crystal's residence and served the arrest warrant. Crystal was taken into custody without incident and transported to the Dubois County Jail. She is charged with theft, a Class D Felony.

State GOVERNMENT

Week in Review at the Indiana General Assembly

The State Senate continues to move forward with legislative business while the House of Representatives is still at an impasse. As the House Democrats' protest over anti-worker and anti-public school legislation continues to stall House legislative action due to their absence, rallies at the Statehouse draw hundreds of workers and teachers to voice their opposition to those measures.

In an unusual move by the Republican-led Senate, members have begun a chaotic schedule of bill hearings in committees. Senate committee chairs have started to amend multiple bills into one bill and allow House members to participate during the discussion. On Wednesday, the Senate Health and Provider Services Committee considered combining ten different bills into one bill. Senate Democrats expressed concerns that these decisions will add confusion and chaos to the legislative process and hinder the public's ability to participate. Hoosiers have the greatest opportunity to express their views and concerns on pending legislation during committee deliberations.

Much still depends on whether a compromise can be reached in the House that will bring House Democrats back. The following brief summary highlights recent action taken on legislation by the Senate and other Statehouse activities.

State budget now under Senate consideration

The Senate Appropriations Committee has begun its review of the state budget, which will provide funding for state government services for July 1, 2011 through June 30, 2013. As a starting point, members began last week considering the version of House Bill (HB) 1001 that passed the House Ways and Means Committee earlier this session, which has yet to be approved by the full House. In a second meeting, the Superintendent of Public Instruction provided testimony on the major components of his and the governor's education reform agenda. The largest percentage of the state budget goes toward K-12 school funding. The committee also heard presentations from the Commission for Higher Education, State Student Assistance Commission and the Horse Racing Commission. Budget hearings will continue this week.

In addition, the committee received testimony and approved HB 1002, which would allow for the creation of additional charter schools around the state. Charter schools are publicly-funded schools that operate outside the jurisdiction of a school corporation and under different state regulations. Several changes already made to the bill include one that would allow for the conversion of a public school to a charter school if either the school board votes in favor of the conversion or if 51 percent of the parents as well as 51 percent of the teachers sign a petition requesting the conversion. Another change removed language that would allow the mayors of second class cities to sponsor charter schools. The bill now advances to the full Senate for its consideration.

Other education issues under review

The Senate Education and Career Development Committee considered several bills including HB 1341. Another form of school vouchers, this legislation includes a plan to use public funds for tuition at private schools for special education students. HB 1369 was also reviewed which pertains to merit pay for school administrators and would eliminate the requirement that superintendents hold a teacher's or superintendent's license. In addition, the bill would repeal a requirement that a county superintendent of schools must have five years of successful teaching experience and hold a superintendent's license. Both bills are still under consideration by the committee.

Smoking ban

Legislation which includes a proposed statewide smoking ban received a hearing in the Senate Public Policy Committee. Specifically HB 1018 would ban smoking in public places and in enclosed areas at work. As amended by the House, casinos, bars, nursing homes and fraternal clubs would be exempt from the smoking prohibition. Testimony revealed that Indiana is the only Midwest state that has yet to enact some sort of statewide smoke-free legislation. The committee will continue its review of the

Sentencing overhaul bill in trouble

The governor announced that he will veto a bill aimed at reforming Indiana's criminal sentencing laws if approved in its current form. The original proposal, authored by Senator Lindel Hume, is a result of a yearlong study conducted by the Pew Center on the States and the Council of State Governments, in response to the fact that over the past eight years Indiana's prison population grew at a rate three times faster than neighboring states, due in part to lengthy prison sentences. SB 561 in its original form would have saved money and lessened the need for new prisons by reducing sentences for lowlevel, nonviolent drug offenders. However, the bill now includes an amendment pushed by prosecutors to require those convicted of more severe crimes to serve at least 85 percent of their sentence behind bars. These prisoners are the most expensive for the state to maintain. According to the Indiana Department of Correction, the maximum-security inmate population today is 8,493. Under the amended bill, by 2045, that population would increase by 15,227 prisoners and require new prisons to be built.

Bills signed into law

The governor recently signed several more bills into law including HEA 1133, which provides that an agritourism provider is not liable for the injury or death of a participant if the cause is an inherent risk of the activity. The new law requires warning signs to be posted and a warning notice be included in any contracts signed by participants. Another new law, HEA 1251, requires the Indiana Economic Development Corporation to establish a young entrepreneurs program to promote the business proposals of students in entrepreneurial programs at state universities. In addition, the program must include at least one auction per year in which communities bid for the opportunity to locate a young entrepreneur's start-up business in a particular community.

The Messmer Report

By District 63 State Representative

Exercising our commitment to Hoosiers

In what is now the fifth week of the House Democrats' strike, the legislators that faithfully show up to work every day to perform the people's business have been able to make good on the announcement made by the House and Senate leaders last week and work together to make progress on pending legislation. Working with our legislative colleagues in the Senate, the House has begun committee hearings on bills that are coming over to us from the Senate. No votes can be taken on any of the bills until my Democrat colleagues return, but we are at least able to receive public input and testimony on these bills and discuss them at

I am sponsoring one of the Senate Bills assigned to a House committee that would bring about cost savings for government agencies. Senate Bill 533 makes changes to design-build projects undertaken by state agencies, which are projects in which a single contractor designs and constructs the Current law requires a multi-step process that state agencies must follow in which the agency must create a committee to find qualified contractors for the project and select at least three after rating and scoring the contractors and reviewing their bids. After the committee selects three contractors, the agency must then send a request to each contractor for proposed designs for the project. Each contractor must then submit, in two parts, a proposal containing specific items that the agency will then review.

This is a long process for an agency to go through, and it creates added costs for the do the work they were elected to do.

agency and for those bidding on them. SB 533 streamlines the process for design-build projects that will cost less than $1 million by combining steps and adjusting other requirements. Through shortening this process, our public schools, local governments, and other state agencies will all be able to save some money on these projects. Historical data shows that most projects can see a five to 10 percent overall savings using the design-build process.

Many of the bills that we were able to pass in the House before the Democrat walkout began have also been able to progress through the Senate these past few weeks. Six bills that began in the House have already made it through the Senate and signed into law by the governor. One of my bills, House Bill 1297, was unanimously accepted by a Senate committee and now goes to the Senate floor. HB 1297 allows more financial institutions to hold public deposits without any added risk by changing the requirements of financial institutions and how or if they are able to hold public deposits of

I am greatly pleased that we have been able to continue the people's business in at least a limited fashion despite the House Democrats' unwillingness to work. However, I hope that they return soon, because our constitutional obligations to enact a state budget and draw new legislative districts are approaching quickly. By them not returning, they are pushing us closer and closer to a costly special session. I can only hope that my Democrat colleagues will soon come to their senses, end their strike, and return to

State welcomes hundreds of defense contractors

Corporation, together with the South Central Indiana regional economic development group, Radius, participated in Crane Division, Naval Surface Warfare Center's (NSWC Crane) Advance Planning Briefings for Industry 2011 this week to recruit more business for Indiana's defense indus-

The event, which was expected to bring more than 450 defense industry leaders from across the country, provided the private sector and academic institutions with information on future NSWC Crane technology efforts and ways to do business with NSWC Crane. NSWC Crane directly employs nearly 3,000 people in southern Indiana and pumps $2 million a day into the state's economy.

"Indiana's defense industry employs thousands of Hoosiers, not only in southern Indiana, but throughout the state and our efforts this week will be on growing that number through new and expanded relationships with some of the industry's top firms," said Mitch Roob, Secretary of Commerce and chief executive officer of the Indiana Economic Development Corporation.

The IEDC and Radius Indiana delivered

The Indiana Economic Development opening remarks at a networking reception this evening. The conference continued yesterday with presentations from NSWC Crane senior leadership. Representatives from companies including General Dynamics, Raytheon, Lockheed Martin, URS and SAIC attended the two-day event.

Indiana is home to a $6.6 billion defense contracting industry that employs thousands of Hoosiers across the state. Just last month, Gryphon Technologies, an engineering and technical services firm, announced plans to expand its operations in Bloomington, creating up to 60 new jobs by 2013. Last fall, MDV, a grocery distributor for military commissaries, announced plans to invest $10.6 million to locate a new operation in Bloomington, creating up to 100 new jobs by 2014. The company will supply Indiana commissaries, including NSWC Crane.

> -West Central Indiana: 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Wednesday, April 13 at North Montgomery High School, 5945 North U.S. Highway 231, Crawfordsville, Indiana.

> Citizens can also review the draft documents and submit written comments through INDOT's website. The draft Statewide Transportation Improvement Program is posted at http://indot.IN.gov/ 2926.htm, while the draft Long Range Transportation Plan will be posted to http://www.in.gov/indot/div/2035LongRangePlan.htm. A 30-day public comment period is one of several public involvement steps in developing and finalizing short- and long-range transportation plans.

INDOT is adopting a more flexible and opportunistic planning approach by identifving transportation needs in the timeframe that capital improvement projects can be developed.

Short- and long-range transportation planning is designed to support the state's economy and environment by selecting the most context appropriate transportation solutions for moving people and freight.

Public involvement in the planning process is essential both to determine citizens' transportation priorities and to deaccountable, velop an efficient transportation system.

Senate Democrats launch redistricting website

Senate Democrats have launched a redistricting website to encourage constituent participation in the redrawing of legislative and congressional district maps. The site focuses on public access and visitor interactivity. Senate Democrats hope that by encouraging public access to redistricting information and seeking public input, they may preserve Hoosiers' best interests and lend accountability to the redistricting

At www.SenateDemocrats.IN.gov/redistricting.htm, constituents can learn about the redistricting process and share their thoughts and opinions on how new maps could affect their representation. The new site also provides access to interactive Census maps, Indiana's 2010 Census data and the state's current district maps.

The state has also established three locations where the public can access mapmaking software and Census data to draw their own district maps. On the campuses of Indiana University-Bloomington, Indiana University-South Bend and Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis, members of the public can design their own proposals to share with legislators.

State Senator Tim Lanane (D-Anderson), the Democrat lead in the redistricting effort, says public input is vital in informing legislators how districts can best serve Hoosiers' needs. "Every resident of Indiana is affected by state and federal laws, and they deserve to have representatives in Indianapolis and Washington who truly represent their interests and their community," Sen. Lanane said. "Local perspective is what will make this the most effective process in protecting voter interests.'

Each of the four caucuses in the General Assembly will review the data and propose new district maps to account for population shifts within the state. After the proposed maps are made public, it will be imperative for Hoosiers to review the proposals and provide input on how the new maps could affect voters' rights and access. Maps drawn by this General Assembly will play a part in constituent representation for the

As this process moves forward, Senate Democrats hope to encourage public input to promote:

- -Preservation of neighborhoods
- -Preservation of communities of interest
- -Protection of minority voters
- -Compactness to ensure connection between elected officials and their constituents

-Simply shaped districts

Senate Democrat Leader Vi Simpson (D-Ellettsville) says the caucus will also continue to push for an independent commission to redraw district maps. This year, the measure contained within Senate Bill 468 did not receive a hearing in the Republican-controlled Senate Elections Com-

"It is disappointing that Indiana has not joined so many other states to allow an independent group to develop proposals," Sen. Simpson said. "It would be a great benefit for voters if the maps were drawn with their best interests in mind, instead of protection of incumbent officials. Competitive races where voters have a real choice of candidates are best for the democratic process."

Currently 21 U.S. states have a redistricting commission that draws a plan for new district maps, advises the legislature on how to draw a plan or acts as a backup if the legislature fails to draw a plan for new

Statewide effort to clean up Indiana roadways begins April 2

Warmer weather means it is time for spring cleaning in the Hoosier State - and Indiana's highways are no exception. This weekend, the Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT), the Indiana Department of Correction (DOC) and Adopt-A-Highway groups will begin a major statewide effort to clean up Indiana's highways during Trash Bash, from April 2-24, 2011.

Each year, hundreds of tons of trash are collected, sprucing up highways in time for spring. In 2010, 11,083 bags of trash and 79.5 tons of loose debris were collected from state highways and right-of-way areas. A total of 621 Adopt-A-Highway volunteer groups logged 14,975 hours in this effort along with additional hours by available INDOT staff and DOC forces.

"We are happy to be a part of the state's annual Trash Bash effort," said Indiana Department of Correction Commissioner Bruce Lemmon. "Cleaning up Hoosier can give back to the community and turn traffic patterns.

doing time into doing good."

INDOT encourages all Hoosiers to keep Indiana's highways clean by following these tips:

Don't litter: Set a good example for everyone, especially children. Be responsible: Carry a litter bag in your car instead of tossing trash out the window. Report it: Report areas where people have illegally dumped garbage to your local transportation, public works or conservation office. Adopt it: Individuals, families, school groups, sports teams, civic groups, scouting organizations, businesses and others are encouraged to participate in Adopt-A-Highway or other highway beautification efforts. For more information on various programs, please contact Linda Loxley at (260) 399-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

We are so grateful for the longterm support the Martin County communities have provided

To the editor of the Martin County Journal

There are a number of high-profile issues commanding the attention of Indiana's General Assembly. Right now, decisions are being made about how much to invest in programs and services for people with disabilities - decisions that affect about 90,000 Hoosiers with disabilities and, more specifically, Hoosiers with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

In our current economy, many government programs have been cut or eliminated. These cuts have contributed to what many believe is a growing state of quiet crisis for individuals with disabilities who rely on those vital services and the providers who support them. Right now, the decisions made by Indiana's General Assembly have the power to worsen this crisis or stabilize it by preserving the current available resource and making a commitment to long-term solutions.

INARF, a membership organization of Indiana community providers, has taken the lead in raising awareness of these issues. Right now, the INquietCrisis.org Campaign is educating all Hoosiers about the value that people with developmental disabilities and the providers that support them bring to local communities.

Four Rivers Resource Services is proud to support the efforts of this campaign. We believe that an investment in the services that support the inclusion of individuals with disabilities in our community makes a better Indiana for all Hoosiers. We are so grateful for the long-term support the Martin County communities have provided Four Rivers Resource Services and the individuals we serve. Right now, we ask that you continue your support by joining us in making INquietCrisis.org heard.

'Doesn't this violate students and families' privacy rights?'

To the editor of the Martin County Journal,

Did you know the U.S. Department of Education is using its power to force principals and teachers to monitor your child's lunchtime chats? In October, 2010, all school officials were sent a letter threatening them with lawsuits if they failed to "monitor and curb students' lunchtime chats and evening Facebook time for expressing ideas and words that are deemed to be harassment of some students." Their mandate stems from the department's "new interpretation" of civil rights laws dealing with harassment. Teachers and principals already have enough to do without adding the job of "eavesdropping" on students.

Doesn't this violate students and families' privacy rights? Doesn't this policy disregard student's constitutional free-speech rights? Won't this bring expensive lawsuits against schools that take funding away from school program operation? Why can't schools continue to choose and use their own anti-bullying policies to manage harassment?

The leading force behind the new regulation is Kevin Jennings, who heads the Education Department's Office of Safe and Drug-Free schools. He founded the Gay Lesbian Straight Education Network, also known as GLSEN, and raised at least $100,000 for the Democratic presidential candidate in 2008. The administration is asking for $365 million of your tax dollars in the new budget proposal now before Congress to conduct bullying "surveys" in schools in 2012.

The National School Boards Association responded to the Department of Education letter in December 2010 by stating that schools' legal risks are being expanded under the new rules. Schools can be sued even when they do not know students have made harassing statements! Won't that take tax dollars away from education programs in schools?

For more information on the new regulation, you can check out the Internet using search words "fed instructs schools to facebook creep students", and especially educationnews.org.

LETTER POLICY

The Martin County Journal encourages letters to the editor. Letters, however, should refrain from defaming anyone and must be signed. A phone number must also be included with the letter for verification purposes. Send letters to courtney@martincountyjournal.com or fax to 1-877-471-2907 or mail to P.O. Box 148 Loogootee, IN 47553.

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS OF EAST FORK WATER, INC.

Letters are being received in this area from a company that is urging residents to send monthly payments to "insure" their outside water lines. East Fork Water, Inc. is not affiliated with this company.

For clarification, East Fork Water, Inc. is responsible for the mains, service lines to the meter and the actual meter, and performs all maintenance and absorbs all water loss in those areas. It is the customer's responsibility to repair if a leak occurs between the meter and the house (or other point of delivery).

It is very important that each customer monitor their system for water loss and rarely should you experience trouble.

There is no need to purchase insurance for your outside water lines. We have many reputable local contractors that can help with whatever issue you might have, at a reasonable price, without the additional payment each month for water line insurance. PVC pipe is cheap and even if you had to replace your whole line, it would be cheaper than paying a monthly premium to an unknown company in a far-away land.

This is a scam; another way someone has thought to make a buck on your fear of the unknown. We highly recommend you toss that letter and think nothing more about it!

Sincerely, The Board of Directors East Fork Water, Inc.

Two Jasper troopers receive awards

Yesterday, the Indiana State Police held the Annual Indiana State Police Recognition and Awards ceremony at the Indianapolis Post. At this ceremony two troopers from the Jasper Post were honored and recognized. Senior Trooper Aaric Correll was named Jasper District "Trooper of the Year," and Trooper Brock Werne received the Jasper District's Life Award for DUI enforcement.

Correll, who is an eleven-year member of the Indiana State Police, was chosen for the award by the command staff at the Jasper Post. Criteria used to give the award included effort in criminal and traffic enforcement as well as community involvement that was performed beyond normal expectations. In 2010 Trooper Correll issued a total of 1,672 tickets and warnings, arrested 26 people for Operating a Vehicle While Impaired, and had 93 criminal arrests and 334 police services. Correll primarily works late shifts in Daviess County. He was awarded a plaque by Indiana State Police Superintendent Dr. Paul Whitesell for his outstanding service.

Trooper Werne, a three-and-a-half-year member of the Indiana State Police received the 2010 Life Award for leading the Jasper Post in DUI enforcement with 80 arrests. Werne was awarded a plaque by Indiana State Police Superintendent Dr. Paul Whitesell for his effort in helping to reduce the number of deaths on Indiana highways.

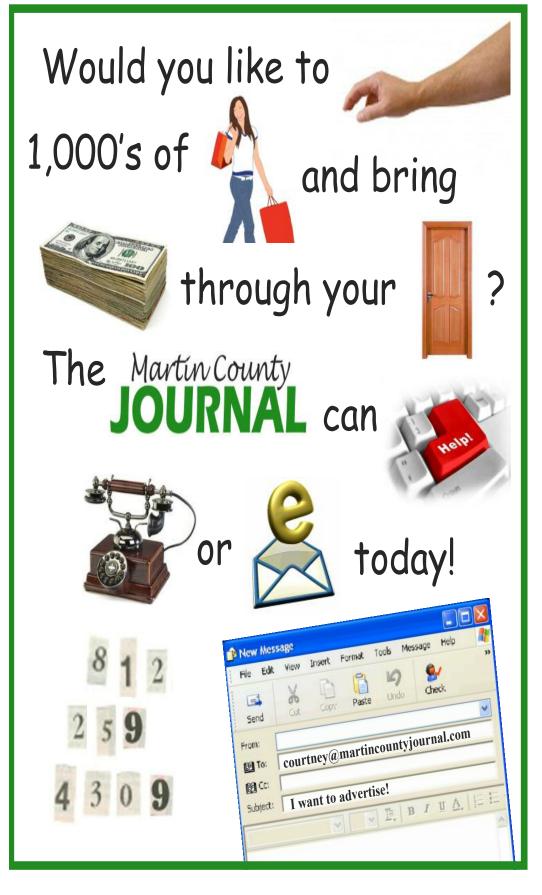

"Both of the Troopers are an asset to the Indiana State Police and the communities to which they serve, said Lieutenant Don Bolen, commander of the Jasper Post.

New Beginnings Church WEEKLY MESSAGE

BY SHIRLEY CANELL Pastor's wife

> Deciding to be a Disciple. John 6:66 – 69

What comes to mind when you are asked if you are a disciple of Christ? What did Jesus mean when He said go and make disciples?

It's someone who wants to become like the teacher. Unless you have a strong desire to follow Jesus and become like Him it cannot be said that you are truly His disciple.

Last week we looked at Jesus living in us and what that reality would do to our lives if we would make it part of us. We have talked about the word of God and what it can do and about being a slave to Christ.

Do you remember the story about the rich young ruler? The young man said to Him, "All these things I have kept, what am I still lacking?" Jesus said to him, "If you wish to be complete, go and sell your possessions and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven, and come, follow Me." But when the young man heard this statement, he went away grieving, for he was one who owned much property. Matthew 19:20-22

In the story we saw Jesus does not have levels of followers. He doesn't have the devoted and the leisure and the occasional. He only has one standard that He calls us all to live by. That standard is complete devotion to Him that shows in obedience to whatever He

Jesus calls us to a life of surrender and devotion, a life of submission to him. We can never shake the truth of that. The reality is that we can't do it. The truth is we can never fully be the people Jesus calls us to be, not while there is sin in our lives, not while there is a hint of self-centeredness. Sometimes it seems as though it's impossible to be a genuine disciple of Jesus Christ, to follow him exclusively, love Him above all others, and serve Him devotedly.

To be a disciple of Jesus we need to seek after what Jesus was offering, true bread from heaven, the bread that fulfills the spiritual hunger and the spiritual thirsts. That bread is faith in all that Jesus is suppose to mean to us. True disciples don't follow Jesus to see what they can get. More miracles, more healing, more tangible things, they even asked in John 6:28, "therefore they said to Him, "What shall we do, so that we may work the works of God?" Jesus answers in verse 29, "This is the work of God; that you believe in Him who He has sent." A false disciple thinks about their fleshy desires, themselves and their own needs rather than looking at the spiritual or being kingdom minded.

Being a true disciple comes with the belief in Jesus' sacrificial death on the cross, which was necessary for eternal life. The debt for sin had to be paid, the consequences for sin is death. Total surrender and belief in what Jesus has done out of love for us.

Many get caught up in the works, they love the works, they love the character but hate His word. There are many who like the idea of Jesus and would follow Him as long as it was to their benefit. Their lives don't match with the word of Jesus so they hate and twist His word because it reveals truths about their own lives and lies.

In John 6:68-69, "Simon Peter answered Him, Lord to whom shall we go? You have words of eternal life. We have believed and have come to know that You are the Holy One of God." Peter's answer gives us insight into what a true disciple is. You have the words of eternal life. True disciples believe with all their heart and lives that the word of God is true. They abide in it, believe in it and come to know that Jesus, was sent by God and He is God. A true disciple understands that He has been chosen to be part of God's kingdom.

John 13:34-35, "A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another, even as I have loved you, that you also love one another. By this all men will know that you are My disciples, if you have love for one an-

Prayer Shawl Ministry to begin

The Loogootee United Methodist Church is starting a new Prayer Shawl non-denominational ministry beginning April 4. On that date, all interested participants should attend the 1st informational meeting at 6 p.m. at LUMC.

Knitters and crocheters, beginners and advanced, are all welcome. Patterns, yarn, needles and hooks will be provided, if needed. Completed shawls will be available upon request.

Prayer shawls will be crafted and prayed over by the members of the group before presentation to the recipient. Prayer shawl ministry has a long history and are given as gifts of caring, to express empathy, support or happiness.

For more information, call Dianna Overall at 295-2639 or Teresa Davis at 295that you bear much fruit, and so prove you are My disciples."

John 8:31, "So Jesus was saying to those Jews who had believed Him, "If you continue in My word, then you are truly disciples of Mine,"

Being consumed by prayer, reading the bible, studying God's word, loving one another, bearing fruit and being a part of the Church body are characteristics of being a disciple. The whole of being a Christian is being a disciple of Jesus Christ, wanting to be able to say what Peter said. Lord to whom shall we go?

Practicing the presence of Jesus, knowing He is right beside you. Praying, Lord share my life, share my trials, share my joys, share my decisions, share my temptations. Lord constantly be involved in my life. Amen. Having constant involvement with Jesus is discipleship. Have faith, be faithful believe that Jesus Christ is the Holy one of God.

Your photo ID must meet four criteria to be acceptable for voting purposes. It must:

1. Display your photo

2. Display your name, and the name must conform to your voter registration record. Conform does not mean identical.

3. Display an expiration date and either be current or have expired sometime after the date of the last General Election (November 4, 2008) Including Military IDs with expiration dates of "INDEF"

4. Be issued by the State of Indiana or the U.S. government

A student ID from an Indiana State school may only be used if it meets all of the four criteria specified above. A student ID from a private institution may not be used for voting purposes.

If you are unable or unwilling to present ID meeting these requirements, you may cast a provisional ballot. If you cast a provisional ballot, you have until noon 10 days after the election to follow up with the county election board and either provide the necessary documentation or affirm one of the law's exemptions applies to you.
