Recycling center to re-open May 4, looking for new director

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT Martin County Journal Publisher

The Martin County Solid Waste Management Board met last Wednesday, April 22, to discuss the future of the recycling center. January Roush has submitted her resignation as director of solid waste, effective May 8. Roush said she has received a better job opportunity. She has been in the position since August of last year. The solid waste board voted to re-hire Laura Albertson as interim director while a replacement for Roush is found.

The board discussed whether to bring

Indiana's stay at home order, due to COVID-19, is expected to expire at 11:59 p.m. on May 1. Indiana Governor Eric Halcomb will provide more information on the stay at home executive order at his daily briefing at 2:30 p.m. on Friday.

Residents are still required to stay home unless they must leave for work, get medical care or purchase essential household items. Anyone who must go out is advised to stay at least six feet away from others. Some businesses, such as greenhouses, garden stores and pet groomers, have been allowed to reopen.

Indiana Department of Health Chief Medical Officer Dr. Lindsay Weaver announced, on Tuesday, a partnership with OptumServe Health Services to expand COVID-19 testing in Indiana.

Starting next week, Optum will open 20 testing sites in Indiana National Guard armories across the state, including Jasper. Each site will be open for at least eight hours a day, Monday-Friday. According to Dr. Weaver, no one will be charged for the testing, and having insurance is not a requirement. However, if you do have private health care insurance, you are asked to bring that to the testing site. Optum is providing its own supplies, PPE, testing kits, staffing and lab, which the state health department says will increase Indiana's overall testing capacity. Optum will receive her previous pay as a stipulation of her return. The board decided to rehire Albertson at her ending salary. Board Member Paul George said the recycling center needs to get back up and running, especially collecting cardboard.

Board Member Teresa Nolley said the cardboard prices are good right now and agreed that it needs to be collected and sold. "I just want to be back up and going," said Board Member Paul George. The board voted to re-start operations on May 4.

Director Roush noted that some employees may not return due to fear of COVID-19. Currently, there are four employees drawing unemployment, she said, and only she and one other employee are being paid regular salary. The board decided that it will be up to each employee if they want to come back to work.

The recycling center will go back to full operations with safety precautions in place. They will resume their normal business hours of Tuesday through Friday 9-4:30 p.m., closed 12-1 p.m. for lunch; and Saturday 8 a.m.- noon, at the Loogootee cen-

The board felt it was a good idea to bring Laura Albertson back on May 4. Roush said she didn't think that was necessary since she wouldn't be leaving until May 8. She said there was no reason to pay double for a director for a week. The board agreed and decided to have Albertson back on May 11. Albertson will stay on after a new director is chosen, to train them, and will continue to receive salary. Albertson trained Roush for five months.

The board discussed the fact that they have some applications from the last time they did interviews for solid waste director. Roush said she didn't know where those applications are. The board, at the direction of Attorney Dave Lett, decided to re-advertise for the next 30 days.

Roush said the solid waste account currently contains $290,000 and she has one or two bills outstanding to pay. She said the only bills she has neen paying through the COVID-19 shutdown are standard month-

Tim Bliven, a Team Lead at NSWC Crane, says he has made more than 300 ear guards out of his home 3D printer.

"I've been making them for the past two weeks," says Bliven. "The ear guards attach the straps of a mask so that they are not being held on with a person's ears. With long-term use, the ears get very raw and tender. These ear guards alleviate that issue. It is important to me to do what I can to help the healthcare providers that are working to fight COVID-19."

Eric Scott, a Section Supervisor at NSWC Crane, says he has been making hundreds of ear guards for anyone that needs them while prioritizing the current requests of medical professionals. Scott says he is using the guide posted by the National Institute of Health (NIH).

"I've been able to supply hospitals, nurses, doctors, nursing home staff, and home health care professionals," says Scott. "I've been reaching out to find the current healthcare worker needs through personal networks; I've contacted people working in the field, pitch what I can make at home, and it has kind of taken a life of its own. Originally, I was being asked for a few dozen straps, and now requests are coming in for 100 or 200 at a time."

Brock McMullen and Casey Collins have also been making ear guards. Mc-Mullen, a Mechanical Engineer at NSWC Crane, says they were compelled to volunteer to help the community.

"We're acting solely as concerned citizens that saw a need and are just trying to help in any way that we can," says Mc-Mullen. "There are many across the nation that are printing these and we wanted to help. We're donating everything that

Northern cardinals are monogamous birds that may mate for life. If the pair is able to produce healthy offspring, they may remain together for some time, though cardinals will separate or "divorce" if necessary to find a more suitable mate with which to raise more chicks. A mated pair is often seen feeding together, with the male gently offering a seed to his mate in a kiss-like gesture. Above, the male is on the left and the female on the right.

Community foundation scholarship applications due Friday, May 29

The Martin County Community Foundation (MCCF) is pleased to announce it is accepting applications for three non-traditional scholarships.

There are many paths to higher education. Many students choose to postpone college; many move directly into the workforce, bypassing a university education altogether; others put their college careers on hold, choosing the more difficult task of raising a family. It is only later that they decide to pursue a higher education, either to improve their personal and professional opportunities, or to expand their general knowledge. We are grateful for the donors in our community who have established non-traditional scholarships for returning students. These scholarships give preference to helping a student begin or return to college or trade school, years after leaving high school. The scholarships and criteria are below.

Martin County Non-Traditional Scholarship

This scholarship is for non-traditional students who meet the following criteria:

-Must be a resident of Martin County

-Must have graduated or left high school at least one year prior to applying for the scholarship

-Must seek to further their education at an accredited college, university, vocational or trade school

-Must demonstrate a need for assistance. The Second Door Scholarship is named after the saying "When one door closes, another one opens..."

ly expenses, like electricity. The board gave the go ahead to pay any standard claims prior to the next solid waste board meeting.

In other business, the board discussed the compactor truck losing power when going down the highway. Roush requested that board members Paul George and Richard Summers drive it and see if they could diagnose the problem. George and Summers said they would be able to do that on Monday. They will take it to be repaired if they can figure out what is wrong.

The next solid waste management board meeting will be held Wednesday, May 22 at 6 p.m. at the recycling center.

This scholarship is for non-traditional students who meet the following criteria:

-Must be a resident of Martin County

-Must have graduated or left high school at least two years prior to applying for the scholarship

-Must demonstrate a financial need

-The scholarship cannot be used for GED test fees

-The scholarship cannot exceed the cost of course and course materials

-Applicant must provide evidence of program acceptance

-Program must be administered by a qualified institution/organization. Terri Sullivan Callaway Scholarship.

This scholarship is for non-traditional students who meet the following criteria:

-Resident of Martin County

-Must have graduated or left high school at least one year prior to applying for the scholarship

-The applicant must have been accepted into a school for continuing education

-The applicant recipient must be pursuing a career in the field of nursing

-The applicant must be a member of a Christian faith church

-Priority to members of St. John Catholic Church in Martin County, Indiana.

Applications are available online at www.cfpartner.org/scholarships. If a copy is needed before the COVID-19 restrictions are lifted, call or email the MCCF office and leave a message. Once the MCCF is re-opened, applications will also be available at the MCCF office located in the Community Learning Center on the Martin County 4-H fairgrounds, 2668 U.S. Highway 50, Loogootee.

Applications must be returned to the Community Foundation by 4 p.m. on Friday, May 29 by either hand-delivering to the MCCF office or by mailing to MCCF, PO Box 28, Loogootee, IN 47553. The MCCF office hours are Tuesdays and Wednesdays, 8 a.m. to 4 pm; call ahead to be sure someone is in the office. If mailing, be sure to allow delivery time so that the application is received by the deadline in order to be considered for a scholarship.

If you have any questions, please e-mail the MCCF Director, Curt Johnson, at mccf@cfpartner.org or call 812-295-1022.

collect the swabs, manage the testing and report the data to the state. This testing will provide a more complete picture of the spread of the virus.

Widespread testing would allow the state to better track infections and isolate sick people and monitor the spread of the virus. Testing is a key part of the strategy to reopen the country and loosen social distancing rules.

State Health Commissioner Dr. Kristina Box is issuing a standing order for the test for any Hoosier who has COVID-19 symptoms like a fever, shortness of breath, cough, etc. No visit to a health care provider will be needed. Additionally, Optum will be testing close contacts to infected

All testing will be by appointment only. The registration portal will be open 48 hours before testing site opens. You will go to the portal and self-report your symptoms using the online screening tool. If you qualify, an option will appear to register for an appointment date and time. A call-in option will available as well.

People can expect to get the results within 48 hours. Optum will send a text or email to the patient if the test is negative. A phone call will be given if there is a positive test results.

Although visitor restrictions remain in place, Memorial Hospital in Jasper has started doing certain elective procedures and surgeries again and will be contacting patients whose procedures and surgeries were postponed due to the coronavirus shutdown. Other medical services, such as dentistry, is also opening back up.

Additionally, the Memorial Hospital Alternative Screening Site has adjusted hours, which began last Friday. Hours are be 9 a.m.-5 p.m., 7 days a week. Patients with respiratory symptoms are encouraged to call 812-996-6330 or visit the alternative screening site, located at 695 West Second Street (entrance on the west side of the building- follow the yellow signs). This site is for patients who do not require emergency department services, but who have symptoms of fever, cough, and respiratory congestion or shortness of breath.

The Daviess Community Hospital, in Washington, has a respiratory care screening site, located at the corner of NE 15th Street and Grand Avenue in the parking lot on the east side of the DCH Medical clinic. Hours of operation are Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sunday 12 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The Daviess Community Hospital COVID-19 triage help line is 812-254-2764. Telehealth is available by calling 812-254-6696 or 812-257-7566.

As of publication time today, Dubois County had 22 positive cases of COVID-19 with zero deaths, Lawrence County had 94 cases with 13 deaths, Orange County has had 64 cases with nine deaths, Greene County had 55 cases with six deaths, Daviess County has seen 47 cases with 11 deaths and Martin County has had 7 cases with zero deaths.

McMullen says this is an easy way to give back to those sacrificing in the med-

"We realize that the nation is going through hardships and while many are teleworking, we still see healthcare workers battling this virus tooth and nail," says McMullen. "The least we can do is make some parts that provide a little comfort while they're being the superheroes our nation and world needs. We're more than happy to donate the plastic, use of the machine, and time to help out."

Scott says everything he has used can be bought commercially.

"The internet makes it easy to connect with those who need the straps," says Scott. "I had the means to make them and there was a need, so why wouldn't I help?"

Planting season begins across Indiana: be alert, slow down, share the road

As spring arrives and temperatures rise, farmers across Indiana will begin to plant the state's 15 million acres of crops. To keep motorists and farmers safe this planting season, several state agencies have partnered together to encourage Hoosiers to be alert, slow down and share the road with farm equipment.

"Farming season can be both a joyful and anxious time as farmers begin to plant their crops," said Lt. Governor Suzanne Crouch, Secretary of Agriculture and Rural Development. "Farmers on tractors and heavy equipment use the same roads we do, let's save them some unneeded anxiety and be cautious and alert while out on the road."

According to the most recent data from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, farm vehicles other than trucks were involved in 98 crashes across the U.S., with two of those accidents occurring in Indiana.

Indiana State Department of Agriculture Director Bruce Kettler says farmers want to move their equipment as quickly and safely as possible.

"Normally people don't think of roadway accidents when they think of one of the dangers of farming," said Kettler. "But, each year lives are lost due to accidents on our rural roads and highways. That is why we are encouraging motorists and farmers to be cautious this spring. Please be alert, slow down and share the road."

While the term "farm equipment" encompasses a wide range of vehicles, the most common types motorists will encounter during planting season include sprayers, tractors pulling planters or tillage equipment and large trucks hauling agricultural products. These vehicles are wide, sometimes taking up most of the roadway, and often travel at speeds no greater than 25 mph.

The following list includes several safety tips for motorists approaching large farm equipment:

-Farmers will pull over when they are able to let you pass, but it may take time for them to get to a safe place to do so.

Be patient.

-Farm equipment is wide, sometimes taking up most of the roadway. Be careful when passing.

-Do not pass if you are in a designated "No Passing Zone" or within 100 feet of any intersection, railroad grade crossing, bridge, elevation structure or tunnel.

-Do not try to pass a slow-moving vehicle on the left without ensuring that the vehicle is not planning a left turn. It may appear that the driver is pulling over for you to pass when it is actually preparing to turn. You will drive right into its path, endangering yourself and the farmer.

-Avoid tailgating, as some farm equipment might have to make sudden stops along the road.

-Allow plenty of time to get to your destination, be aware of alternate routes and avoid distractions.

"Springtime in Indiana means crisp cool mornings and farm machinery of all sizes crossing county and state roads as they move from field to field," said Indiana State Police Superintendent Doug Carter. "It's important for everyone's safety - farmer and motorist - to be attentive when driving in rural Indiana during the active planting season."

For a list of safety tips, visit isda.in-.gov. The following organizations will be working together to share this important safety message during planting season: Hoosier Ag Today, Indiana Department of Homeland Security, Indiana Department of Transportation and Indiana State

COMMUNITY & EVENTS

Here's another story that I've been asked to repeat. It was written by Ben Griffin.

A man and his dog were walking along a road. The man was enjoying the scenery, when it suddenly occurred to him that he was dead. He remembered dying, and that the dog walking beside him had been dead for years. He wondered where the road was leading them.

After a while, they came to a high, white stone wall along one side of the road. It looked like fine marble. At the top of a long hill, it was broken by a tall arch that glowed in the sunlight.

When he was standing before it he saw a magnificent gate in the arch that looked like mother-of-pearl, and the street that led to the gate looked like pure gold. He and the dog walked toward the gate, and as he got closer, he saw a man at a desk to one side.

When he was close enough, he called out, "Excuse me, where are we?"

"This is Heaven, sir," the man an-

"Would you happen to have some water?" the man asked.

"Of course, sir. Come right in, and I'll have some ice water brought right up." The man gestured, and the gate began to

After another long walk, and at the top of another long hill, he came to a dirt road leading through a farm gate that looked as if it had never been closed. There was no fence.

As he approached the gate, he saw a man inside, leaning against a tree and reading a book.

"Excuse me!" he called to the man. "Do you have any water?"

"Yeah, sure, there's a pump over there, come on in."

"How about my friend here?" the traveler gestured to the dog. "There should be a bowl by the pump."

They went through the gate, and sure enough, there was an old-fashioned hand pump with a bowl beside it. The traveler filled the water bowl and took a long drink himself, then he gave some to the dog.

When they were full, he and the dog walked back toward the man who was standing by the tree.

"What do you call this place?" the trav-

"This is Heaven," he answered.

"Well, that's confusing," the traveler said. "The man down the road said that was Heaven, too."

"Oh, you mean the place with the gold street and pearly gates? Nope. That's hell."

"Doesn't it make you mad for them to use your name like that?"

"No, we're just happy that they screen out the folks who would leave their best friends behind."

Two Loogootee girls receive DCH Foundation scholarships

Daviess Community Hospital Foundation is pleased to announce this year's winners of the 2020 Health Career Scholarship Awards. Due to the gathering restrictions as a result of the current pandemic, they are unable to celebrate these recipients with a reception. Ten area students have been recognized for their academic accomplishments and awarded scholarships totaling $10,000 from the Health Careers Scholarship Fund. The Daviess Community Hospital Foundation also awards one nursing student $500 from the Helen Arthur Memorial Scholarship for Nursing. The DCH Auxiliary donated $1,000 this year which was also given to one deserving student.

Since the beginning of the scholarship program, 163 recipients have received $184,850 in Health Career Scholarship awards from the DCH Foundation. Students from Daviess, Martin, and Pike counties, as well as employees and dependents of Daviess Community Hospital attending accredited educational institutions pursuing health care fields of study are eligible to apply.

Three students received a second year Health Careers Scholarship award of $1,000 from the DCH Foundation:

Marina Lents has been awarded a $1,000 scholarship from the Daviess Community Hospital Foundation. Marina is the daughter of Kelly and Michelle Lents. She is a member of the 2018 graduating class at Loogootee High School. Marina continues to pursue the field of nursing at Indiana University with plans to become a Nurse Practitioner.

Purdue Fast Start program offers giant leaps in opportunity

Every promising Indiana student deserves the opportunity to pursue an affordable, world-class education. With its new Fast Start program, which could easily save Indiana families thousands of dollars, Purdue University has taken yet another step toward making this possible.

Fast Start, created by Purdue in partnership with the philanthropic online learning program Modern States, is designed to help Indiana high school students earn access to up to a year of college credit through free online courses and the corresponding College Level Examination Program (CLEP) exams. Students receive assured admission into Purdue if they complete five courses, pass the corresponding CLEP exams and meet the University's standard admissions requirements.

This partnership with Modern States creates opportunities for Indiana students to take giant leaps in their education with a direct track to Purdue. The move also aligns with Purdue's land-grant mission and its continued commitment to affordability and accessibility — a longtime University priority that has led to nearly 60% of Purdue students now graduating debt-free.

Too many young Hoosiers miss out on college either because of its cost or simply a disbelief that they can succeed there," says Purdue President Mitch Daniels. "Our Purdue-sponsored high schools are one attempt to open a new pathway to Purdue, and this new venture is another, with special relevance to rural and small-town youth."

Steve Klinsky, CEO and founder of Modern States, says, "Modern States and my family are pleased to partner with Purdue to make college more attainable for students throughout Indiana. Purdue has long been a leader in innovations to help students, and we hope this effort will both help families throughout the state and create a model for many other universities nationwide."

The program officially launches in Fall 2020, with inaugural students granted admission for the Fall 2021 semester. As Purdue Fast Start begins outreach to prospective students this spring, Purdue Extension, which has offices in every Indiana county, will be a vital resource in helping reach students and their families.

Fast Start is available to all Indiana residents. But it's especially beneficial to students in rural Indiana, in inner-city schools that often lack access to the full offering of Advanced Placement courses, or those for whom college education is less affordable. Purdue assures admission to students who pass a minimum of five CLEP exams through the program.

Purdue, the No. 6 most innovative school in the country according to U.S. News & World report, also is ranked as the No. 7 best value school in the U.S. by The Wall Street Journal/Times Higher Education.

The Fast Start program marks the University's latest innovation in affordability and accessibility, a priority that dates to its 2012 tuition freeze. Other innovative initiatives include the creation of statewide Purdue Polytechnic High School locations, the Back a Boilermaker income-share agreement program and the Degree in 3 fast-track program, among others.

"This is a great opportunity for us to improve the lives of Indiana residents by working with students to increase educational attainment all across the state," says Jason Henderson, senior associate dean and director of Purdue Extension.

Celebrate Arbor Day by planting a tree

Arbor Day, which was last Friday, is a chance to encourage responsible tree planting and recognize the many Hoosier communities that have committed to urban forest management.

The Indiana DNR Community & Urban Forestry program promotes the responsible planting of trees on Arbor Day, and reminds those who wish to plant a tree to practice social distancing and consider the tree's characteristics and needs before planting:

Know how big your tree can get and plant it where it can grow to its full potential.

When planting, be aware of overhead and underground utilities.

Looking up and calling 811 before selecting a planting site can save a lot of trouble and time.

Care for your tree as it gets established, which takes two to five years. Providing water weekly and being careful while mowing is essential. Mower decks and string trimmers can mortally wound young trees.

A series of posts on the Division of Forestry Facebook page (facebook.com/INd-nrforestry) will help you celebrate Arbor Day.

You can also watch videos on how to select trees at mdc.itap.purdue.edu/item. asp?Item_Number=FNR-541-WV and properly plant mdc.itap.purdue.edu/item. asp?Item_Number=FNR-540-WV a tree from Purdue Urban Forestry Extension Specialist, Lindsey Purcell.

For more information on finding a professional to help care for your existing trees visit isa-arbor.com/ to find an ISA Certified Arborist near you.

Arbor Day was first celebrated in 1872, when an estimated one million trees were planted in Nebraska, the home state of then-U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Sterling Morton. For more on Arbor Day history, see dnr.IN.gov/forestry/5314.htm.

National Tree City USA, Tree Campus USA and Tree Line USA are programs run through the Arbor Day Foundation that recognize cities, college campuses and utility companies for excelling in planting and caring for urban trees. More about these programs is at arborday.org.

Trees enhance the urban landscape and help to improve air and water quality, making communities healthier, safer and more beautiful places.

In Indiana, 65 communities have earned Tree City USA designation. These communities meet criteria that include having a tree-preservation ordinance, having a tree board or department with staff, spending $2 per capita on tree care and maintenance, and holding an Arbor Day observation with a proclamation.

For more information on Indiana Tree City USA, visit the Community & Urban Forestry page at dnr.IN.gov/forestry/2854.htm. Communities that go above and beyond these criteria in a certain year can attain a Tree City Growth Award. Communities that receive 10 Growth Awards can earn the designation as a Sterling Community, as listed at arborday.org/programs/treecityusa/sterling.cfm.

In the Garden By Ralph Purkhiser Purdue University Master Gardener

Last week I urged my readers to participate in the Indiana Arbor Day celebration by planting a tree on Friday. I actually planted two that day and have acquired some more that will be planted in the coming days.

On Arbor Day, I planted two small Lilac Sunday lilacs. As I have mentioned before, I have several kinds of lilacs at Sandhill Gardens, with various bloom times, allowing me and my visitors to enjoy that wonderful scent for an extended time. Lilac Sunday is a cultivar introduced by Harvard University's Arnold Arboretum in 1997. It was to commemorate the annual Lilac Sunday festival held at the arboretum since 1908. (Unfortunately, like most other events, this year's Lilac Sunday, scheduled for May 10, has been cancelled.) Arnold Arboretum boasts 197 kinds of lilacs, so the lilac season is a long one and the arboretum remains open. Should you be in the Boston area, you may visit and take in the smell and sight of all of those lilacs in bloom. They are just asking you to come in small groups, refrain from touching anything, and practice social distancing. My lilacs arrived on Thursday, just in time to plant them on Arbor Day. The special attribute of Lilac Sunday is that while most lilacs have an inflorescence of about six inches, the panicles on Lilac Sunday may be measured in feet. The tiny specimens that I was able to afford will not mature and have such great flowers for a few years, but, as I always say, gardeners are optimistic about the future.

Another tree or large shrub I will be planting in coming days is a hepticodium. Commonly known as a seven sons flower, this plant will grow to 14 to 30 feet. I was excited to find an affordable 6-foot specimen at Lutz Nursery in Sulphur, so I may even see blooms this year. Hepticodium blooms in late summer into early autumn, when few other trees and shrubs are blooming. The seven sons are actually seven buds that form a cluster.

However, only six of the buds will open into flowers. The seventh, in the middle, is a continuation of the inflorescence and when the flowers begin to fade, that bud will extend and another round of flowers will appear. Sometimes, this may occur three times in a season, so the wonderfully-scented white flowers will continue for several weeks. The show does not stop with the blooms. As the flower petals die and drop, the sepals turn a rosy pink and often hang on into November. The leaves do not offer fall color, but once they drop, the beautiful tan bark with exfoliating foliage supplies interest into the winter. Hepticodiums are fairly easy to grow. They are not picky about the soil and will grow in full sun to partial shade. They are not prone to disease and rarely are attacked by insects. This tree will be planted in the white garden. I guess I will just have to live with those pink sepals in the fall.

Another tree that I have ordered may present more of a challenge. Franklinia, also known as Ben Franklin tree, has a reputation of being finicky. It prefers sandy, acidic soil, so I will have to be careful about the site I choose. It also does not respond well to transplanting, so the use of a root stimulator and regular watering will be important to help it get established. However, once established, Franklinia may live for a century. It is another late summer bloomer, with camellia-like white blooms and a scent often likened to orange blossoms or honeysuckle. Franklinia is native to the Altamaha River basin in Georgia but has not been seen growing in the wild since 1803. However, the tree remains in cultivation, especially around Philadelphia, where seeds were sent in the mid 1700's and all of the trees found today are descended from those seeds.

Finally, I bought an addition for the rhodo-road. This cultivar sports light pink trumpet blooms and will add a different look to the collection. Come walk the road sometime.

Trout season opened Saturday, April 25

DNR fisheries staff have been busy in recent days stocking thousands of trout in preparation for the opening of inland stream trout season last Saturday.

By opening day, DNR had stocked over 23,000 rainbow trout in 17 streams in 12 different counties. To find a stocked stream near you, see the 2020 Trout Stocking Plan at wildlife.IN.gov/5457.htm.

The stocked trout come from Curtis Creek Trout Rearing Station near Howe in LaGrange County and average roughly 11 inches in length.

Trout will bite on a variety of different artificial baits such as spinners and flies, but natural baits such as worms and bee moths tend to be the most popular.

The bag limit for trout in inland waters, other than Lake Michigan and its tributaries, is five fish per day with a minimum size of 7 inches. No more than one of these can be a brown trout. Any brown trout kept from the Whitewater River must be at least 18 inches in length.

Anglers 18 years and older need an Indiana fishing license and a Trout/Salmon Stamp Privilege to fish for trout. Per Indiana Executive Order, 2019-20 annual licenses and stamps, including fishing licenses and Trout/Salmon Stamp Privileges, are valid until May 22, 2020.

Hoosiers should follow posted restrictions and practice social distancing while outdoors. For the most up-to-date information regarding DNR and COVID-19, visit on.IN.gov/dnrcovid19.

Dubois County crop season underway

Crop surveys completed by Purdue Extension - Dubois County on Sunday, April 26, 2020 found 44% of all corn fields planted and 23% of soybean fields planted, with most of these fields planted during the first few days of last week. Heavy rains totaling well over 2 inches from Thursday through Sunday have temporarily halted planting as farmers continue to ready additional fields for crops through the application of fertilizers, livestock manures, and herbicides.

Farmers should understand that even when fields are again fit to plant as field dry, producers need to keep an eye on air and soil temperatures that may drop again in the coming days. Burn-down sprays can be very slow to work during cold weather as weeds are slow to move the herbicides throughout the plants, and growers should make adjustments on chemistry or wait until it warms up for application. For nitrogen, moist soil conditions will actually be favorable for N retention and most losses should be minimal.

Low soil temperatures can be problematic for corn, especially if temperatures drop into the low 40's following planting. For soybeans "imbibitional chilling" is a concern for soybeans that have been planted in cool/wet conditions, mainly if soybeans take up moisture during the first 24 hours of planting. There are several factors affecting this, but soybeans typically require 140-160 heat units for emergence. Growers who are planting in cool/wet conditions are encouraged to make sure to "insure" their seeds with seed treatments, especially in fields with disease history.

Overall, growing degree days have been below normal, and the seven-day outlook shows likely below normal temperatures and average precipitation. For May, the southern half of Indiana may be looking at increased precipitation, while models are currently showing average temperatures. The three-month outlook indicates a high degree of confidence that temperatures and precipitation will be above normal.
