Only 20 percent turn out to vote in Primary

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

Martin County's voter turnout for last night's Primary Election was just 20 percent. Four years ago, that number was 31 percent and in the 2014 Primary, 28 percent voted.

For Perry Township Trustee, incumbent Jason Hennette received 127 votes, Darla Harper-Wagler received 124 and Brenda Smith got 37 votes. According to the Martin County Clerk, there were 10 provisional ballots that were counted this morning.

JASON HENNETTE

Only one of those ballots was valid. That ballot only had one vote, for Andrew Beaver, that was added to his total. Provisional ballots are cast when, for example, a voter's photo ID showed the wrong address, the voter forgot photo ID or the voter's name was not in the poll book.

In the other contested races, Andrew Beaver (R) defeated incumbent Sheri Bowling (R) to take the Martin County Council District 4 race, 108-83. If a Democrat opponent isn't appointment, Beaver will take that seat starting next year.

JIM HAMBY

Stiles was the incumbent. Hamby will also be the new county council member at the first of the year if no Democrat opponent is appointed before the General Election.

In the other two county council races for Martin, Republican Jordan Dant ran unopposed through the Primary and if it remains that way, with no Democrat challenger, he will take the seat of Randy Wininger who chose not to seek re-election.

In Martin County Council District 3, Monty Gregory (R) will go up against Richard Summers (D) in November.

Commissioner District 2 incumbent Paul George (D) defeated Primary challenger John Collins (D), 264-197. George currently does not have an opponent in the November election.

Top Ten LHS students honored at 13th Annual Tri Kappa Dinner

The 13th Annual Tri Kappa Top 10 Academic Dinner was held on Sunday, April 24, in the Family Life Center of the Loogootee United Methodist Church. Members of the local Tri Kappa chapter hosted the event to honor the top ten academic students in the Loogootee Junior/Senior High School Class of 2022. Also attending were the parents of the students as well as the mentor chosen by each student – someone who had greatly influenced them in their lives.

Audrey Robinson, co-chairman of the dinner, served as emcee. President Pam Loughmiller welcomed everyone. Robinson spoke of the work that Tri Kappa does promoting charity, culture and education. Donations are given annually to Riley Hospital for Children and in our county, especially to the school systems including a scholarship and valedictorian and salutatorian awards. The funds for the donations are raised through the birthday calendar and assorted nut projects the chapter conducts each fall.

Following the blessing given by past chapter President Barb McFeaters, members served a meal of salad, rosemary chicken, roasted potatoes, green beans and a roll, prepared by co-chairman Kathy Lingenfelter and her committee. An assortment of desserts, made by chapter members, were also served. Guests dined at decorated tables accented in black and gold and included pictures of the honored students.

The honored students, their parents and their chosen mentors were, respectively, Tessa Bradley, Savannah Aiman and Matthew Bradley, Mentor Shelly Lengacher; Grace Gingerich, Jessica and Nick Sayles and Matthew and Tiffany Gingerich, Mentor Lindsey Walton; Mikenna Jones, Michael and Kristy Jones, Mentor Brian Whitney; Nick Keller, Clint and Robin Keller and Angel Keller, Mentor Rachel Tedrow; Hannah Lengacher, Derek and Sara Lengacher, Mentor Bo Gibson; Rachel Lents, Kelly and Michelle Lents, Mentor Marina Stoll; Haylie Mathies, Jared and Tonya Mathies, Mentor Anita Hart, Reece Tippery, Mike and Brandy Tippery, Mentor Debbie Streepy, Rory Tippery, Mike and Brandy Tippery, Mentor Leroy Streepy, Kylie VanHoy, Bob and Leslie VanHoy, Mentor Brian Smith.

Loogootee High School Superintendent Dr. Brian Harmon and Principal Chris Walker attended the event. They both thanked Tri Kappa for their continued support of this event and thanked the students for their excellent academics.

Before Sunday's dinner, the students had been asked to write a letter to the person whom they had chosen as their mentor telling them why they had made a positive influence on them. The letter was included on a framed Certificate of Appreciation which was presented to the mentor as a gift after being read by the student at the dinner.

On behalf of the chapter, President Pam Loughmiller presented each of the students with a large, personalized laundry bag for college and a copy of the Certificate of Appreciation given to their mentor.

Audrey Robinson closed the dinner by congratulating the students on their academic achievements in high school and wishing them the best in the future from the members of the Loogootee-Shoals Delta Tau Chapter of Tri Kappa.

This Saturday is one of the biggest days of the year for garden centers. Sunday is Mother's Day, and flowers are a big part of the celebration. Years ago, florists dominated the Mother's Day market. However, my mother never liked receiving cut flowers or corsages. She always said she would prefer something she could enjoy longer. It seems other mothers had the same feelings. Soon, the hanging basket replaced the cut-flower bouquet as the choice Mother's Day gift. Mom could then enjoy her basket of petunias, geraniums or verbena all summer, as long as she remembered to water it. Soon, more exotic flowers became the baskets of choice—bougainvillia, mandevilla and other colorful tropical plants.

A few years ago, the Knock-out rose knocked the hanging basket out of first place as Mother's Day gifts. It seems that the hardy roses caught the eyes of mothers around the country, and everyone wanted one. That has led to trends that involve the total landscape.

Of course, there is no single must-have plant that dominates Mother's Day purchases these days. Still, come Saturday, garden centers will be teeming with sons, daughters, and husbands, desperately seeking a gift that will express their love for a very special woman. Many will go beyond the plants in the garden centers to find many other gifts. Fountains have become popular choices, as have decorative flowerpots. If mother is an avid gardener, a special garden tool or accessory may place the desired gleam in her eyes. In short, for many mothers, a garden center is the perfect place to shop.

The time for me to purchase Mother's Day gifts is gone. However, Sandhill Gardens still reflects a lot of her influence and the influence of her mother as well. My mother's favorite color was pink, and there is a lot of pink in the gardens. In fact, a pink koussa dogwood I purchased as a gift for her should be in peak bloom by Sunday. It is adjacent to the sidewalk from my drive to the house, so her memory visits me each time I come and go. Mom always enjoyed being in the gardens with me, but in her later years could not stand for long periods. I placed a lot of benches throughout the gardens on which she could rest, and most of them remain in place. I find that I need to sit on the benches to rest now, but they always remind me of her presence.

I cannot walk through the gardens without seeing plants that my grandmother set out nearly a century ago. Lilacs, snowball viburnum, flowering quince, and old-fashioned roses still grow where she planted them. Her favorite perennials, biennials and annuals still grow in the gardens, their seed having dropped and spread around over the years. Bertha Hooten passed from this life in 1979, but my gardens still harbor her scents and beauty.

Regular readers know that I take pride in having a succession of blooms at Sandhill Gardens. It is difficult to determine when the gardens are at peak season. However, it appears that may be happening right now. The cool spring has prolonged the bloom period of many early bulbs and perennials and the recent warmth has brought on the blooms of later flowers. The result is a tapestry of blooms that stretches around the gardens. There are shrubs, trees and perennials blooming everywhere and many other plants add to the color with interesting colors in emerging foliage. It truly is beautiful where I live.

If you are blessed to have your mother still alive, treat her like a queen this week. I will be treasuring bittersweet memories as I walk through the gardens. I wish all the mothers out there a very Happy Mother's Day.

It has been a few years since I mentioned one of my uncle's usual spring declarations. He used to talk about grass being in head by May 5, and he usually was correct. It probably will be pushing it to get there this year. Forages have been nipped a bit by cold spells, but certainly moisture is not lacking in this part of the country. Some areas could possibly have some reduced yield in spots because of freezing of new growth, but I don't see that as too much of an issue and in fact, for quite a bit of the state forage growth is in full swing.

The northern part of the state appears to be still waiting for spring to fully appear. Wet and cold conditions have kept them from doing much grazing on new growth.

I am pleased so far by the forage stands and their early growth. Most producers have already started grazing. I know of several producers who are still grazing or just started grazing fall planted annuals. Their main hesitation was wet soils. If you are grazing fall annuals, especially cereal rye, then you know that once it really starts taking off, the livestock can barely keep up with it. That is a good thing!

For most people, hay supplies are either limited or gone by now and there is no more waiting ... you just have to graze. So, the rules of thumb for these conditions: First, start or continue grazing the fields or paddocks with the most growth present, ideally with a fair amount left over from last year if that is possible. The heavier amount of material will help to protect the soil and provide some "cushion" to slow down pugging if wet.

Second, keep the animals moving. If they are in any one area for any extended period under saturated conditions, they will do more damage. If paddocks are fairly good sized, then leave them long enough to just top the growth and then move them to the next area. This actually will serve more than one purpose; the topping will hamper seed head development slightly right now (more deferment as the plant matures) and it is allowing the plant to maintain that solar panel and keep producing roots and leaf which will help give structure to the site and it will help maintain quality. It will also help stage the paddocks for future grazing.

Third, keep grazing new paddocks until the first paddocks grazed have re-grown back to a desirable height (for most cool-season tall grass combinations 8-10 inches) and then start back on them. With all that said, that is assuming that you have enough paddocks that each of these areas will have ample time to rest and recover prior to being grazed again.

By the second round of grazing or before, you will want to start really slowing down the rotation and making sure to graze each allotment more evenly. That doesn't mean even and level with the ground. It means to the appropriate stop grazing height. The stop grazing height will be three to four inches for most cool season forages, e.g., tall fescue and orchardgrass. The ideal stop grazing height for perennial warm season forages is 6-12 inches; those include switchgrass, big bluestem and Indiangrass.

Please remember, the stop grazing height is the shortest forage left standing, not the tallest. You can quickly and easily assess each paddock or allotment with a yardstick or with time, a point on your boot.

Allowing the plant to recover as much as possible prior to being grazed again will not only boost forage yield above ground, but also root growth below ground. Not applying too much fertilizer, especially nitrogen, in the early spring will help keep this furious growth under a little more control. I really don't think that is going to be much of a problem this year with the price of nitrogen. This will be the year to hopefully have a very good stand of nitrogen producing legumes present – which is always pretty much true.

I don't see any hay making weather in the near future, but I would be hesitant to graze fields that will be cut for hay that are extremely wet until they dried up enough that they are less likely to pug.

I would take the fields that are the hardest to hay/mow and graze them in the early rotated half and leave the better fields for haying/mowing if that was my plan. If I did not plan on doing any hay or clipping, then I would think more about which fields really need more rest this spring. Rest is good. Just remember – more green growth, more solar panel, more roots, and more production equals more grazing.

Hay could potentially be of higher value this year. Not particularly because of supply and demand per se, but because of increase cost of inputs. You will want to graze as much and as long as you can this year and reduce the amount of hay requirements. Hay certainly is not free or even cheap, especially when you take into account just two things – fuel and nutrients.

Areas where you fed hay this winter and early spring are probably by now a muddy mess. With discarded and uneaten hay, manure and just mud, these areas will take a while to dry out enough to do anything with. Once they do, rotten hay and manure can be pushed up in piles to compost and later spread on fields for some added fertility and organic matter. The feeding area if left will turn into a "healthy" stand of weeds usually including some of our favorites such as prickly pig weed, lambs-quarter, crabgrass and an assortment of other opportunists that like high phosphorus and organic matter. These areas can often be worked slightly and sown to sorghum-sudangrass, sudangrass, or millets for summer grazing and for a little cover. I've also seen brassicas sown into these areas with success, but I'd still mix them with some annual grass such as the ones mentioned above.

It is probably a wise decision to continue feeding a mineral mix with sufficient magnesium for a while until we get past the early fast flush of new grass growth. When we have cooler temperatures and lush forage in front of the cows, a high-magnesium mineral supplement should be used. High-magnesium mineral mixes usually have about 16.5% magnesium.

Remember, it's not about maximizing a grazing event, but maximizing a grazing season! Keep on grazing!

Producer sentiment improves with strengthened commodity prices, but high cost inflation worries farmers

BY KAMI GOODWIN
Purdue University News Service

The Purdue University/CME Group Ag Economy Barometer improved in April, up 8 points to a reading of 121; however, it remains 32 percent below its reading from the same time last year. Producers' perspective on current conditions and future expectations saw an uptick over the past month. The Index of Current Conditions improved 7 points to a reading of 120, and the Index of Future Expectations improved 9 points to a reading of 122. The Ag Economy Barometer is calculated each month from 400 U.S. agricultural producers' responses to a telephone survey. This month's survey was conducted April 18-22.

"Rising prices for major commodities, especially corn and soybeans, appear to be leading the change in producers' improved financial outlook," said James Mintert, the barometer's principal investigator and director of Purdue University's Center for Commercial Agriculture. "However, it's hard to overstate the magnitude of the cost increases producers say they are facing."

The Farm Financial Performance Index improved to a reading of 95, up 8 points from March, and 12 points higher than in January and February. As Mintert suggests, much of this could be attributed to the strengthened commodity prices. For example, Eastern Corn Belt cash prices for corn in mid-April rose more than 10 percent above their mid-March levels while bids for fall delivery of 2022 crop corn climbed 20 percent over the same period. Soybean prices rose as well. Near-term delivery prices for soybeans rose about 7 percent from mid-March to mid-April, while elevator bids for fall delivery of new crop soybeans climbed 5 percent over the one-month span.

Even as commodity prices have strengthened, producers continue to say higher input costs are the top concern for their farming operation. In April, 42 percent of producers chose higher input costs as their biggest concern, which was more than twice as many who chose government policies (21 percent) or lower output prices (19 percent). In April, 60 percent of survey respondents said they expect input prices to rise by 30 percent over the next 12 months. This compares to an average of 37 percent of respondents who said they were expecting a cost increase of this magnitude when the same question was posed in the December 2021 through March 2022 surveys.

When asked specifically for their expectations for 2023 crop input prices compared with prices paid for 2022 crop inputs, 36 percent of respondents said they expect prices to rise 10 percent or more and 21 percent of crop producers said input price rises of 20 percent or more are likely. The war in Ukraine has also added a new level of uncertainty for producers. Sixty percent of survey respondents said the biggest impact of the war on U.S. agriculture will be on input prices.

Crop input challenges extend beyond their inflated cost to their availability. In April, 34 percent of producers said they experienced some difficulty in purchasing inputs for the 2022 crop season, up from 27 percent in March. In a follow-up question, producers who said they had some difficulty obtaining inputs said that herbicides (30 percent of respondents) were most problematic, followed closely by farm machinery parts (27 percent), fertilizer (26 percent), and insecticides (17 percent). In a related question, 11 percent of crop producers said they received notice an input supplier would not be able to deliver one or more crop inputs they had already purchased for use in 2022. Of those, herbicide availability was the top problem reported.

Despite an overall improved financial performance outlook, the Farm Capital Investment Index remains at its all-time low. Supply chain problems remain a key reason many producers feel now is not a good time for making large investments in their farming operations. For example, just over 40 percent of producers said their farm machinery purchase plans were impacted by low machinery inventories. The rising cost of all inputs, including machinery, buildings, and grain bins, is likely another factor causing producers to say now is not a good time for large investments.

LHS Dual-Credit Junior English Class presents . . .

Small Businesses, BIG Stories

BY SHAWN MASON, MADISON ESCH & MATTHEW GREENE
LHS Dual-Credit Junior English Class

The dual-credit junior English class at Loogootee High School is working with the City of Loogootee Recast Team to promote locally-owned small businesses. The class is interviewing business owners in Loogootee and Shoals. Below is their next interview.

Tania Brown, Tania's Touch Hair Salon
"I've always loved doing hair, I did hair before I ever even went to school. But what inspired me to do hair here was my kids. I worked in teaching before I did hair, but I knew I wanted to be home with my kids. So that's why I decided to do hair. I cut my brother's and my family's hair when I was young. So, that's how it all started.

Way before I was a mom or an adult, I went to cosmetology school and got my license. And then at that time, you had to work under somebody for six months. And, so, I did that and my internship, and then I opened my own business. This used to be my garage, and then we turned it into a beauty shop. I was happy that I accomplished the opening. There was maybe a little bit of nervousness, but not really.

Some of my clients I knew, but most of them I didn't. I just did hair in my house while I was going to school, built my business up, and then went from there. I mainly work solo here, so doing hair takes passion. You have to make sure you have all your supplies, you know the color, and scissors, and blow dryers, and there's a lot of expense behind it that you don't see.

I have a lot of repeat clientele, who are good people. Probably the biggest challenge is not getting your feelings hurt if somebody doesn't come back or becoming close with clients, and you have to not take that personal because this is a business and when you've seen somebody on the street, that's not the same thing. You have to make sure that you don't cross the two. Doing hair is very time consuming. You have to use your time wisely.

I've been here for a long time, and so I could have expanded, started in the city. But I chose to be home with my kids, and I'm still very involved even with the grandkids. For me, it's better for my family. Now if I worked in town, I could double or triple my income. But I'm a very big family person.

I love what I do. I love seeing the people. I love meeting people.

I mean, some of them sort of become grandparents to my kids because they're here every week, you know, so I'm very involved. I love being in Martin County; I love being in the country. So, I have a good connection with the people, the clients. For any young person that wants to go to cosmetology school, it's great, definitely a great career."

Indiana environmental and community organizations issue joint statement on proposed Mid-States Corridor

In response to the State of Indiana's recent announcement of a preferred route for the proposed "Mid-States Corridor," five environmental and community organizations released a joint statement opposing any new-terrain highway construction due to the negative environmental impact it will bring to southern Indiana's forests and wildlife habitats, water quality, air quality and the communities along the highway's path.

The groups' statement reads: "We are categorically opposed to any new-terrain highway routes - including Route P - based on the following:

-The costs of building a new terrain highway do not justify the devastation to the environment.

-Building any new-terrain highway through the farms, forests, and wetlands of southern Indiana will increase pollution, and decrease air, water and soil quality.

-Hundreds of Hoosiers will see their family's homes, farms, and businesses destroyed.

-Displacing Hoosiers does not justify the proposed project need.

-The time saved for motorists is negligible, as per the stated goals of the project.

-There is a far greater need to fix existing roadways and explore alternative transportation options."

The groups are asking concerned Hoosiers to submit comments during the formal comment period which ends May 31, 2022. All comments are considered equally, regardless of how they're submitted and will be included in the Final Environmental Impact Statement. Concerned citizens may:

-Submit a comment online at <https://midstatescorridor.com/deis/>.

-Email a comment to Info@Mid-StatesCorridor.com

-Write a letter or print a form online, and mail or drop off at: VUJC Administration Building, Room 216, Jasper, IN 47546

-Visit the project office to share feedback

On April 15, 2022, the Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) published their Tier 1 Draft Environmental Impact Study for the proposed "Mid-States Corridor," a highly contested project originated by the Mid-States Corridor Regional Development Authority. In the study, INDOT consultant the Lochmueller Group studied five routes - B, C, M, O, and P - and identified Route P as having the "lowest impacts to environmental resources among Alternatives M, O and P that meet core Purpose and Need goals." Route P connects I-64 to I-69 through Dubois, Martin, and Daviess counties. The route will parallel US 231 with bypasses around Huntingburg, Jasper, and Loogootee. Dubois County resident and representative for the Coalition Against the Mid-States Corridor Mark Nowotarski says his group supports the announced improvements to the existing US 231 from I-64 to I-69 which will allow for better traffic flow, without the destruction that a new terrain highway will have.

"This project represents ridiculous extravagance and fiscal waste on the part of the political leaders supporting this project," said Indiana Forest Alliance Executive Director Jeff Stant. "There is zero need - unless you own a trucking company - to build a new-terrain road right beside 231 when the state has already committed $75 million to upgrade to 231."

"We are asking every Hoosier, no matter where you live, to write Governor Holcomb today, and urge him to withdraw the plan for a new-terrain Mid-States highway - on any route - and to reevaluate the best approach to providing true mobility, safe roads and bridges, and meaningful choices for alternative transportation including public transit and pedestrian/bicycle facilities. Tell the Governor that a new-terrain highway that takes thousands of acres of land, destroying forests, wetlands and farmland, will degrade the region's quality of life rather than improve it," said Tim Maloney, Senior Policy Director for the Hoosier Environmental Council.

2022-2023 migratory bird hunting seasons announced

Indiana's migratory bird hunting seasons for 2022-2023 have been submitted to the US Fish and Wildlife Service. These seasons include those for mourning doves, waterfowl (ducks, coots, mergansers, and geese), woodcock, snipe, and sora rails. The seasons are as follows:

The daily bag limit for all dark geese (i.e., Canada geese, white-fronted geese, and brant) in the aggregate is five, with no other limitations by species, meaning hunters can harvest any amount of each species if the total does not exceed five for the season. This may include five Canada geese during the entire season. The daily bag limit for light geese (snow and Ross's geese) remains 20.

There are no changes in duck bag limits from 2021-22. This includes the scaup daily bag limit, which is one during the first 15 days of the season and two for the remainder of the season.
