first with 3, two-out singles to push a run across of their own. The score stayed the same until the 4th inning when the Lions worked a little two-out magic of their own. Paige Walton singled up the middle and then Shelby Graber singled to right. The North Daviess right fielder thought she might have a play at first on Graber, but the throw squirted away from the Cougar first baseman and that allowed both Walton and Graber to move up to third and second base respectfully. Calli Wininger came to the batter's box and promptly ripped a double, scoring both Walton and Graber to give the Lady Lions a 3-1 edge.

But we all know the Lady Cougars are never done, especially with 4 frames yet to play. Addison Wittmer lead of the bottom of the 6th for the Cougars with a double down the left field line and came in to score on the Abby Sanders single to right center. Loogootee hurler, Sydney Davis got the next Cougar to fly out to center, and after a walk, struck out the next two Lady Cougars to end that threat with the Cougars still trailing by 1, 3 to 2 after six Loogootee had the top of their order coming up in the top of the seventh, and Julianne Bell started the top off with a walk. After the solo shot in the first, the Lady Cougars pitched to Tyanna Graber very carefully and Tyanna also drew a base on balls, moving Bell over to second base. Bailey Davis came to the plate and hit a shot at the Cougar second baseman and the Lady Cougar picked up the ball tagged Graber and then threw low to first allowing Davis to reach first on the fielder's choice. What the Cougars failed to notice, was the speedy Bell racing around third and going in to score the Lions 4th, and winning, run.

But the Cougars, staying true to form, were not about to go quietly. Abby Cecil, on to pinch hit, doubled to right center. Alyssa Dyal then flew out to center fielder Calli Wininger for out number one. Leadoff hitter Taylor Swartzentruber grounded out to third for the Cougars second out, and the Lady Lions were one out away from their 5th Sectional title in school history. But Lady Cougar Addison Wittmer had other ideas as she doubled home Cecil and cut the Lions lead to 1 run at 4-3. Cassie Knepp came on to hit, and ripped a ground ball to the Lady Lions Senior first baseman, Paige Walton, who gobbled it up and raced to first for the final out and the first Sectional Championship for the Lady Lions since the 2012 season. statements were completed, and Lents and Keller went back to the address to locate James Stewart. After knocking on the door at 502 South Kentucky Avenue, officers received no answer. They knew from being on scene earlier that a family member had come out of 422 South Kentucky Avenue, so officers went to that address and knocked on the door. James Stewart hastily exited the residence and attempted to immediately close the door. In the process of his stepping outside, Lents could smell the odor of burnt marijuana from inside the home. Lents opened the door and ordered all of the occupants out of the residence. Six additional adults exited, along with two small children and a 17-year-old juvenile.

Lents quickly checked the residence to make sure no additional persons were inside. In the process, Lents noticed marijuana sitting in plain sight on a table and a glass smoking pipe on a sofa in the living room. Lents contacted the Martin County Prosecutor's Office and applied for and obtained a search warrant through the Martin County Circuit Court.

While searching the residence, officers found numerous articles of drug paraphernalia in a bedroom. Additionally, in a safe in the same room, paraphernalia with white powder that field tested positive for methamphetamine was found.

Five adults were arrested and transported to the Martin County Jail, while two juveniles were summonsed into

Indiana State Police remind motorists

Memorial Day weekend traditionally starts off the summer travel season, and this weekend is shaping up to be the busiest in the Hoosier State in years. With the 100th running of the Indianapolis 500 Race this weekend, along with lower fuel prices, travelers can expect a record number of motorists on the road-

Law enforcement throughout the state, including the Indiana State Police, will be participating in the Click it or Ticket Campaign and Operation CARE, or Combined Accident Reduction Effort. Troopers will be looking for aggressive drivers, impaired drivers, and those that don't buckle up. According to NHTSA, (National Highway Traffic Safety Administration) seatbelts reduce your risk of injury and death in a crash by 50 percent.

"The Indiana State Police welcome the thousands of visitors from across the nation and around the world coming to central Indiana this weekend to enjoy the 'The Greatest Spectacle in Racing", stated ISP Superintendent Doug Carter. "I encourage everyone to buckle up for safety, just as the 33 drivers in the Indianapolis 500 do each race car or their own car.

With the expected increase in traffic, it's important that motorists follow the safety tips below:

•Obey all speed limits and always use your turn signals.

•Never drink and drive. Always have a designated driver.

•Make sure everyone is buckled up and children are properly restrained in child seats.

•Watch for and expect slowed or stopped traffic when approaching construction zones.

•Make sure you are well rested. A fatigued driver is as dangerous as an impaired driver.

•Avoid following too close. Use the two-second rule. Maintain following distance in construction zones.

•Don't text and drive.

•SLOW DOWN AND MOVE OVER for emergency, utility and highway service vehicles.

Motorists are encouraged to report suspected impaired drivers by calling 9-1-1. Give a vehicle description, location, and direction of travel. Never follow an impaired driver.

There's nothing quite like childhood

- 1. A little boy got lost at the YMCA and found himself in the women's locker room. When he was spotted, the room burst into shrieks, with ladies grabbing towels and running for cover. The little boy watched in amazement and then asked, "What's the matter haven't you ever seen a little boy before?
- 2. My four-year-old son Zachary came screaming out of the bathroom to tell me he'd dropped his toothbrush in the toilet. So I fished it out and threw it in the garbage. Zachary stood there thinking for a moment, then ran to my bathroom and came out with my toothbrush. He held it up and said with a charming little smile, "We better throw this one out too then, 'cause it fell in the toilet a few days ago."
- 3. On the first day of school, a first grader handed his teacher a note from his mother. The note read, "The opinions expressed by this child are not necessarily those of his parents."
- 4. A woman was trying hard to get the ketchup to come out of the jar. During her struggle the phone rang so she asked her four-year-old daughter to answer the phone. "It's the minister, Mommy," the child said to her mother. Then she added, "Mommy can't come to the phone to talk to you right now. She's hitting the bottle.'
- 5. While taking a routine vandalism report at an elementary school, I was interrupted by a little girl about six years old. Looking up and down at my uniform, she asked, "Are you a cop?" "Yes," I answered and continued writing the report. "My mother said if I ever needed help I should ask the police. Is that right?" "Yes, that's right," I told her. "Well, then," she said as she extended her foot toward me, "would you please tie my shoe?"
- 6. It was the end of the day when I parked my police van in front of the station. As I gathered my equipment, my K-9 partner, Jake, was barking, and I saw a little boy staring in at me. "Is that a dog you got back there?" he asked. "It sure is," I replied. Puzzled, the boy looked at me and then towards the back of the van. Finally he said, "What'd he do?"
- 7. While working for an organization that delivers lunches to elderly shutins, I used to take my four-year-old daughter on my afternoon rounds. She was unfailingly intrigued by the various appliances of old age, particularly the canes, walkers and wheelchairs. One day I found her staring at a pair of false teeth soaking in a glass. As I braced myself for the inevitable barrage of questions, she merely turned and whispered, "The tooth fairy will never believe this!"
- 8. A little girl was watching her parents dress for a party. When she saw her dad donning his tuxedo, she warned, "Daddy, you shouldn't wear that suit." "And why not, darling?" "You know that it always gives you a headache next morning."
- 9. While walking along the sidewalk in front of his church, our minister heard the intoning of a prayer that nearly made his collar wilt. Apparently, his five-year-old son and his playmates had found a dead robin. Feeling that proper burial should be performed, they had secured a small box and cotton batting, then dug a hole and made ready for the disposal of the deceased. The minister's son was chosen to say the appropriate prayers and with sonorous dignity intoned his version of what he thought his father always said: "Glory be unto the Faaaather. and unto the Sonnn.... and into the hole he gooooes."

10. A little girl had just finished her first week of school. "I'm just wasting my time," she said to her mother. "I can't read, I can't write and they won't

11. A little boy opened the big family bible. He was fascinated as he fingered through the old pages. Suddenly, something fell out of the Bible. He picked up the object and looked at it. What he saw was an old leaf that had been pressed in between the pages. "Mama, look what I found", the boy called out. "What have you got there, dear"? With astonishment in the young boy's voice, he answered, "I think it's Adam's underwear!"

In the Garden

By Ralph Purkhiser

Purdue University Master Gardener

Twice this week, I have had calls asking if it is too late to plant a garden. By this, they meant a vegetable garden. The answer is a resounding "No". In fact, there is plenty of time yet for spring planting. In fact, I have had several people complain that they have planted beans and corn, and have had no germination. The reason is likely that the soil temperatures are still too cool to support rapid germination. Soil temperatures rise much more slowly than air temperatures. Since the air temperatures have been cooler than normal for this time of year, the soil temperatures are also lagging behind. In fact, the seeds may have rotted in the cool, wet soil. As temperatures rise over the next couple of weeks, germination rates will improve. Even with transplants, the soil temperatures play an important role. Tomato and pepper plants love warm soil, and planting them in cool soil will often result in delayed growth. Instead of taking root and growing, the plants may seem to just sit there until the temperatures are warm enough for good root development. Therefore, the best garden planting time is yet to come, at least for this year. Late planting will mean a later harvest, but there is plenty of growing time before the early frost date of October 10.

There are actually some advantages to late planting. Sometimes, it interrupts the life cycles of insect pests. If there are no beans available when the bean beetles arrive, they will not have host plants for their eggs and it may mean that your late beans will be free of beetles. If we continue to have wet, cool weather, it may result in increased fungal disease problems. Some of the spores for fungal diseases have over-wintered in the soil, so a good layer of mulch around the plants will help prevent splashing of soil during rains and therefore will help in the prevention of some fungal diseases. The mulch will also help keep soil temperatures and moisture from fluctuating and will keep weeds down.

The cool weather has had some beneficial results in the ornamental gardens. The French lilacs at Sandhill gardens have held their blooms for more than two weeks. The herbaceous peonies are now blooming well, but there are still buds that will continue to open for a while. The rains, however, often are detrimental to the peony blooms. Another fragrant shrub now in bloom at Sandhill Gardens is the Mock Orange. The beautiful arched canes of the bushes are covered with white blooms. I have only the single-bloom variety, which is one of those plants that my grandmother planted nearly a century ago. The double blooms are beautiful, but many of the double blooms lack the fragrance of the old-fashioned blooms.

While the weather may have caused some people to stay away last Saturday, several people did make it out for the plant exchange. I think everyone had a good time and left with several plants. My lost plants found their way home and I ended up with some new plants to try. Now if it will dry up enough to actually plant them.

Indiana's planting process being held back by rain

BY DARRIN PACK
Purdue University News Service

After a brief stretch of dry weather midweek, rain was expected to return to parts of central and southern Indiana Friday night into Saturday (May 19 and 20), dealing another setback to farmers who have fallen significantly behind schedule in planting the state's grain crops

According to the latest U.S. Department of Agriculture's Crop Progress report released Monday (May 16), Hoosier farmers had just 45 percent of the corn crop in, compared with the five-year average of 61 percent and 68 percent at this time last year.

Analysts were especially concerned about the lack of progress during the week ending May 15. With fields in many parts of the state muddy and inaccessible, only 7 percent of the crop was planted during what should have been one of the busiest weeks of the season.

"The rains have certainly been a problem," said Bob Nielsen, Purdue Extension corn specialist. "A late start doesn't necessarily mean lower yields, but we have to hope the weather starts to cooperate soon."

Further delays could force some farmers to switch to shorter-season hybrids, which could be less productive than full-season varieties, or plant soybeans instead, Nielsen said.

The Indiana State Climate Office, based at Purdue, said precipitation has been above normal for the past month in nearly all parts of the state, especially in southern counties. And there have been few warm, sunny days to help dry out rain-soaked fields.

"It's cold and wet and the farmers are understandably stressed," said Amanda Mosiman, Extension educator in Warrick County.

Don Biehle, superintendent of the Southeast Purdue Agricultural Center in Butlerville, said about a quarter-inch of rain fell there Tuesday (May 17).

"That doesn't sound like a lot, but the soil is saturated and we still don't have the sun and warmer temperatures to dry out the soil," he said.

David Osborne, Extension educator in Yellowish corn plants in this Fountain County field in July 2015 indicate nitrogen deficiency from weeks of rain. Some farmers in southern Indiana are seeing signs of nitrogen deficiency in young corn plants emerging this spring. (Purdue Agricultural Communication file photo/Keith Robinson)

Ripley County, said only about 10 percent of the corn crop had been planted in his area and that some plants were showing signs of nitrogen deficiency.

"It's been almost three weeks since we've done any field work, and the plants that are up are very yellow," he said.

Wet conditions were also hampering the state's other major grain crop - soybeans. The Crop Progress report showed only 15 percent of Indiana's soybean acreage had been planted as of the May 16 update, compared with a five-year average of 31 percent for the same date.

Purdue agricultural economist Chris Hurt said the planting delays could frustrate farmers who were hoping to benefit from higher soybean prices after reports last week of shrinking production in South America and greater-than-expected global demand.

"There is a sense of immediacy," Hurt

Enjoy crafts and activities at "Faerie Gathering"

Monroe Lake's third annual Faerie Gathering will be held at Paynetown State Recreation Area on Saturday, June

Most crafts and activities are targeted for children ages 6 to 12; however, the program is open to all ages. Several activities may appeal to older teens and adults.

Participants can paint a garden gnome, create watercolor faerie art, design a faerie mask, craft a wooden faerie tic-tactoe game set and go on a faerie habitat hike. There also will be two faerie accessory workshops where you can craft a tiny dining table or a pantry shelf for outfitting a faerie garden.

Most programs are free after paying property admission; however, there is an additional fee for the two faerie accessory workshops and the tic-tac-toe set. Some programs have limited supplies.

To admire a peony in full bloom is a fitting way to celebrate our full arrival into spring and preview a hint of the colors that summer will bring to our gardens.

Although it is native to Asia, the peony has become a staple of Midwestern flower gardens – so much so that the Indiana Legislature in 1957 adopted the peony as the state flower. Zinnia was the state flower from 1931 to 1957 and the carnation prior to that. Though there have been recent efforts to replace the peony with a native species such as the fire pink as the state flower, the peony continues to hold the designation.

Peonies are hardy perennial plants that adapt easily to average garden conditions without much maintenance. There are two basic types of peonies that can be grown in the Midwest - garden (herbaceous) peonies and tree peonies. Garden peonies have thick, bushy foliage that reaches 2-4 feet in height and dies back to the ground each winter. Tree peonies are not truly tree-size but are generally larger than garden peonies and produce their annual growth from woody stems. They are generally a little less winter-hardy then the garden types.

Though there is a vast array of cultivars available, most gardeners are only familiar with the large, double-flowered garden forms in white, pale pink and magenta. In addition, garden peonies are available in single-flowered, semi-double, Japanese and anemone-type blossoms. Other colors include yellow, cream and red.

Tree peonies also come in single, semi-double and double-flowered forms, and the color range extends to include several shades of red and purple. Depending on the cultivar and weather conditions, peonies will blossom as early as April or as late as June. In many years the herbaceous peonies hit their peak bloom around Memorial Day, making them popular for gravesite plantings.

Peonies grow best in well-drained, sunny locations but can adapt to a wide range of soils. Garden peonies can be purchased as either potted plants or divisions of the tubers (underground stems). The more buds on the tuber, the faster the plant will make a good showing in the garden. Planting depth is critical for good garden performance. The buds of the tuber should be set no deeper than 2 inches below the soil surface. Peonies planted too deep will produce foliage each year, but they may never bloom.

Tree peonies are propagated either by seed or by grafting a certain cultivar onto a vigorous rootstock. Seed-grown plants usually require six or more years to become mature enough to flower. Grafted tree peonies generally bloom several years earlier.

Late summer or early autumn has long been the recommended planting time for both types of peonies. This allows the plants the opportunity to establish new root growth during the cooler, moister conditions. Spring planting is possible, but be prepared to pamper the plants throughout the stressful summer with about an inch of water per week and perhaps protection from hot afternoon sun.

Double-flowered forms often get so top heavy from the weight of the blooms that they bend over the ground and sometimes break off the stem. The flower stalks can be supported by tying them to a stake, surrounding them with a wire cage, or other support.

Making A Difference MCCF Executive Director

-- PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE --

Have you ever thought about how many years you work to accumulate assets, that you could spend 10-20 years conserving what you've accumulated, and then that it only takes a few hours or less to plan for the distribution of the assets after you are gone? With good planning, a wonderful chapter in your book of life can be completed. With not enough planning, that last chapter can be burdensome for your family members. So spend some time putting your affairs in order and have the satisfaction of knowing you've taken steps to more smoothly close your book of life and pass it on to your loved ones.

-- WHAT TO PREPARE --

So what kind of information do you need to document or prepare? I've talked before about wills, which are a key component of your plan. Aside from that, there are a lot of things you're amassed over your lifetime that are important to pass on. Some items seem so matter-offact that many don't think about putting them down on paper.

-- ITEMS TO CONSIDER --

"Every day" information about you and your family is important (i.e., marriage(s) and dates, SSN, birth dates, phone numbers, etc.). And then, of course, there is all the assets that you've accumulated such as land, stock/bonds, CDs, other investments, bank accounts, and any insurance policies, which include life, medical, disability or real estate insurances. And have you created any trusts that need documented? On the other side of your assets, you also need to document any liabilities.

-- WHERE IS IT --

Be sure to leave a record of where all your key documents are located. Think about your birth and marriage certificates, passports, tax returns, wills and trusts, deeds, funeral instructions, safety deposit box, etc. And with today's Internet, you need to document your user names and passwords for any online accounts so that your loved ones can have access to them.

-- WHO IS NEEDED --

You should pass on the names, phone numbers, addresses and email of your personal advisors. These people can include your physicians(s), clergy, attorney, financial advisors, and insurance agents.

There are key people (and alternates) that you need to identify in your planning. One is the Executor of your will; this person should be responsible and trustworthy. If you have children, who would you want to be their Guardian if both you and your spouse die? A Trust Officer may also be needed to carry out the provisions of your trust; this could be the same person as your Executor.

-- POWER OF ATTORNEYS -

While you are planning for your future after you leave, you should also identify your Power of Attorneys for while you are still here. They will be empowered to make key decisions for you in the event you are unable.

You should select a Power of Attorney for Healthcare for decisions which could include operations or other major healthcare decisions. A Power of Attorney for Finances will have the legal authority to buy, sell and manage your property and provide for your health care.

-- THEN WHAT --

Once you have all your information recorded, transfer your documentation to an attorney. They will review your plan and prepare any other needed documents. Once you review those documents, sign them and rest well knowing that you have provided for those you love.

-- MORE INFORMATION --

If you would like to hear more about planning for YOUR future, please contact the MCCF Executive Director, Curt Johnson, at 812-295-1022 or mccf@cfpartner.org. We have planning guides and information that can walk you through the process.

You are also welcome to visit our website at www.cfpartner.org/mccf.htm or "like" the MCCF Facebook page at www. facebook.com/mccommunityfoundation.

The Martin County Veteran Service Officer has an office in the Martin County Courthouse. An appointment isn't required but suggested as most of the time I am out of the office transporting veterans to medical appointments or meeting with or visiting veterans in the community.

During the month of April, the CVSO assisted 13 veterans, had five meetings, took zero veteran runs, participated in no funerals, and visited the Legion's and VFW's in Crane, Loogootee and Shoals once. The veteran's van took seven trips transporting eight veterans to VA medical centers and clinics.

DRIVERS NEEDED for the veteran's van. I am aware that we all have very busy lives and very little free time which is why I am looking for reliable drivers to add to my call list. I am looking for VOLUNTEERS that are willing to transport a veteran possibly one trip a week to medical appointments in the surrounding area. This is not a paid position but I am able to provide $10 a trip as long as there is money in the "Thank the Driver Fund". You must have an Indiana license and a clean driving record. If interested, please contact me.

Project L.E.A.D. concludes 23rd year

The Loogootee fifth graders recently concluded their participation in Project L.E.A.D. (Legal Education to Arrest Delinquency) by participating in a mock trial held in the courtroom of the Martin Circuit Court. Judge Lynne Ellis presided over the events of the day. In conjunction with the mock trial, the students toured the Martin County Security Center. Project L.E.A.D. is a special curriculum sponsored by the Purdue University Cooperative Service. This was the 23rd year the program has been taught to Martin County youth. This year's program was conducted by Chief Probation Officer Lisa Brittain with assistance from Probation Officer Melissa Lottes and the Purdue Cooperative Extension Service Extension Educator Stacy Brown, along with fifth-grade teachers.

The program was designed to teach fifth graders about the law, the need for laws, and the legal system with emphasis on the juvenile justice system. In addition, the program emphasized decision-making and the consequences of their actions.

The program combined classroom work, hands-on experiences, and speakers from various agencies. The following persons volunteered their time by speaking with the students about various law enforcement-related topics: Judge Lynne Ellis, Sheriff Travis Roush, Prosecutor Michael Steiner, Gunner with Southwest Indiana Regional Youth Village, State Trooper Robbie Lambert, K-9 Officer Diesel, State Trooper Jarred Lents, Excise Police Officer Brian Stewart, Loss Prevention Officer Gary Sprinkle, and Director Kathy Collins with Martin County Community Corrections.

As a part of the program, students were asked to submit drawings/logos for a new L.E.A.D.

t-shirt. Each student was provided a t-shirt with the winning logo. This year's design winner was Judd Bledsoe. In addition, each student was required to submit an essay regarding their L.E.A.D. experience. The essay winners are as follows: Kyleigh Courter, 1st place girl; Wayden Wagoner, 1st place boy; Madison Esch, 2nd place girl; Ethan White, 2nd place boy; Ashley Nail, 3rd place girl; and Matthew Wagler, 3rd place boy. Chief Probation Officer Lisa Brittain presented the winners with a certificate and prize sponsored by the program's financial supporter.

Project L.E.A.D. received financial support the Martin County Probation Department. Organizers would like to take this opportunity to thank all of the students for their participation as well as the speakers and fifth grade teachers for their help in administering this pro-

L.E.A.D. Essays: 1ST PLACE BOY How L.E.A.D. Has Influenced My Life By Wayden Wagoner

Legal, of, pertaining to, or concerned with the law or lawyers; something based on or authorized by law. Education, the process of educating or of being educated; the knowledge resulting from the process; the field of study of methods of teaching. Arrest, to stop or to bring to an end to; to capture; to seize; to hold in custody by the authority of law. Delinquency, neglecting to do what is required by obligation or law; a juvenile who is out of control, as violating the law. All these things combined is what the Lead Program is! Lead has influenced me very much to make good choices and has taught me some of the consequences that come with making bad choices.

The person that influenced me the most was Gunner Stiles, who talked about the Juvenile Correction Center. The reason for this is because he explained the consequences of committing a criminal act. Although I had already planned on making good choices, this program influenced the thought even more!

We all know that good and bad choices have good and bad consequences, but did you know that these have an effect on your life too? They most certainly do! As a matter of fact, they determine your life! Now that doesn't mean that if you make bad choices that it will be impossible to get a good job and have a good life, it will just make it harder to get. My dream is to be an electrical engineer, but if I were to make a choice against the law, achieving that dream would be a whole lot harder than what it should be!

In conclusion, LEAD has influenced my thought of making good choices because if you want to have a good, easy life, then you need to start making them now!

1ST PLACE GIRL How the L.E.A.D. Program Has Influenced My Life By Kyleigh Courter

L.E.A.D. stands for legal education to arrest delinquency. L.E.A.D. is a wonderful program that has changed my life. My class and the other 5th grade classes go and listen to Lisa Brittain or guest speakers about making good choices and how they can affect our lives. We go to the auditorium every Friday to listen to them speak about the choices we make.

Choices are decisions we make every day. L.E.A.D. has taught me that the choices we make can affect our lives forever. To have a successful life you need to make good decisions by hanging with the good friends, not trying drugs, not drinking underage, and not drinking and driving. If you hang with bad friends they could make you try drugs, drinking underage, or drink and drive. You could end up in serious trouble. like in jail or prison, or even worse you could be killed.

There were many great speakers, but one speaker really spoke out to me. His name was Gunner Stiles. Gunner talked to us about the Southern Indiana Regional Youth Village (SIRYV). He told us about what it would be like at the SIRYV, and all the privileges we lose. Some things we would lose would be seeing our family regularly, not seeing your friends at all, or playing video games. Gunner also told us about a boy and how his choices affected his life. The boys ended up at SIRYV and

Gunner was very attached to him because he was such an amazing athlete and boy. When it was time for the boy to go back home, he begged Gunner to not send him home because he knew he could end up with his gang again and make bad choices. Gunner tried everything like trying to adopted him. But, none of that worked and Gunner had to send him home. A little while after the boy got home he was killed. This shows us that the choices we make can choose if we have a successful life or a horrible

L.E.A.D. has taught me a lot of things, but one thing that really struck me is that I need to be thankful for my parents because they are strict. This will help me make me make better choices in the future. Also, that choices can either make or break your life. It actually is really simple....good choices lead to a good life and bad choices lead to a bad life.

2ND PLACE BOY How the L.E.A.D. Program Has Influenced My Life By Ethan White

The L.E.A.D. [legal education to arrest delinquency] program has influenced me to make good choices by basically telling me if I don't make good decisions there is always consequences. I'm happy I had L.E.A.D. in my life.

I'm thankful L.E.A.D. has been part of my learning experience in 5th grade. It has encouraged me to strive to continue to make good choices. For example, I am careful about my selection of friends, because your friends have a large part in your decisions. Another example L.E.A. D. has been so important to me because of my own experience of how bad choices affected my life. I am now a child of a divorced couple due to my parents making bad decisions. However, I get to watch them try to correct their mistakes.

These are just a couple of reasons why my future will be brighter if I continue to use the tools I learned during the L.E.A.D. program. I look forward to encouraging underclassmen and friends on the importance of making good choices to have a brighter future.

L.E.A.D. stands for Legal Education to Arrest Delinquency. This is the program that we have participated in this semester. We've had many great speakers in this program, but I enjoyed listening to Mrs. Brittain the most. She has organized this whole program from the fun Jeopardy game focusing on law enforcement facts to the eagerly awaited mock trial. I learned a lot from listening to Lisa Brittain, the probation officer for Martin County. She helps rehabilitate juveniles who have lost their way on life's path.

She told us many stories about sad cases that she's had to handle. In her stories, having high morals and good character had a gigantic effect on young people trying to turn their lives around. Mrs. Brittain told a story about two sons from the same household. They got in trouble and were sent to juvenile detention centers. One of them made the right choices that led to repeated assignments in a group home and juvenile detention center. Mrs. Brittain's story shows that the first brother had better morals and character and was able to turn his life towards a better path, while the other brother's morals and character were very poor and he was not able to turn his life around.

Mrs. Brittain also talked about the importance of making good choices every day. Each day we have the opportunity to make choices that can improve our lives or choices that could deteriorate our lives for years to come. For instance, if you hang out with the wrong people you could end up choosing to do drugs and be hooked for life. As some people say, "Birds of a feather flock together."

Mrs. Brittain was very nice and very good at explaining things. She always seemed to be at each and every L.E.A. D. meeting and each time she spoke with us she was very informative. Overall, I believe Mrs. Brittain has been an amazing planner for the L. E.A.D. program. Lisa Brittain has influenced many children in my grade positively because she has shown us what can happen when bad choices are made. This will impact us by showing that positive decisions LEAD to a great life.

3RD PLACE BOY How the L.E.A.D. Program Has Influenced My Life By Matthew Wagler

Helllo! My name is Matthew Wagler. I am going to tell you about L.E.A.D. In case you don't know, L.E.A.D. stands for legal education to arrest delinquency. L.E.A.D. has helped me realize how illegal drugs and underage drinking can really mess up your life.

One of the guest speakers, named Gunner, really helped out because he actually frightened me on what it would be like in a detention center. I am actually glad he scared me because now I realize how scary it would be in that kind of place. It would not be fun and I would not get to make any decisions about my day. I would not get to watch TV or use my phone, or any of the things that I enjoy.

The state police with the K-9 dog also made me realize that if I ever would be doing something wrong, they would track me down. Those consequences from my actions would not be good!

Even though my parents have made mistakes, that doesn't mean I will. Some people say that you will go down the wrong path if your parents did, but I don't believe that. I am not saying my parents are bad people, I am just saying I won't make those same mistakes.

In conclusion, I really think that L.E.A.D. really influenced me. I know that good choices will give good results. I know I have dreams and goals I want to accomplish, and I'm not letting stupid choices get in my way.

3RD PLACE GIRL How the L.E.A.D. Program Has Influenced My Life By Ashley Nail

L.E.A.D. stands for "Legal Education to Arrest Delinquency." I was very lucky to get to be a part of this program because I have learned to think before I act. I have learned that actions have consequences.

I learned a lot about making choices. We make many choices a day. It is sometimes hard to make the right decisions. There is a way to help. You can just do the thing that you would do if your teacher was watching, or if your parents were there watching you. Do what you know is right, and you won't have to worry about messing up your life.

Alcohol impairs your judgement and can keep you from being true to yourself. Alcohol and drugs can cause you to do things or make stupid decisions that you would normally not do. I don't want to go through life with regrets. I know there are no "do-overs" in life.

I learned that laws and rules are in place to keep me safe as well as others, too. Now that I have thought about rules and laws, I see why we have to have them. I don't want to break them because we need them so life isn't pure chaos and tragedy.

Bad choices lead to bad results, and good choices lead to good results. I love to spend time with family and friends, but sadly, that can't happen if you make the wrong decisions. If I want to have a happy, easy life spending it with family and friends, then I need to think before I act!

I will respect myself and others. I dream of what I want my life to be. I want a family, a nice house, and a good job. That can only happen if I do what I am supposed to do, make good choices.

I want to thank L.E.A.D. for teaching me that being responsible is a big deal! I just need to do what I know is right, and to be brave and do the right thing even if it's not the easy thing. Thank you L.E.A.D. for giving me a lot to think about!

SOAR promotes family and childhood literacy

Since the pre-school year began in September, Head Start families have been completing reading activities at home to earn entries into a drawing for a reading chair created by local artist, Bill Whorrall. Beverly McIntosh, Program Director of Martin County SOAR, explained, "After Bill donated the reading chair to SOAR, we presented it to the Head Start families during a workshop called Enjoying Books with your Child. We gave every family a sight word book and showed them how pre-reading skills develop in children ages 0-5. We also described how one lucky family could earn the reading chair for their home."

The families worked hard to earn entry slips for the reading chair. Deb Terry, Family Case Manager at Martin County Head Start, revealed their efforts: "Our families completed 3,878 literacy activities at home after reading 554 books." Every time a family completed an activity, their name was entered into the drawing for the chair.

Kip Trotter, treasurer of SOAR, visits the Head Start pre-school every week to read to the children. "Each week, we get out the reading chair, and I read to both classes. The joy of working with the kids is unsurpassed and watching them develop a love of reading is very rewarding," said Trotter of the experience.

Every Head Start child received a reading cushion to make a reading spot in their homes to enjoy their books. McIntosh said, "We also gave each child an Animal ABC book to 'break in' in the cushions. The children loved making a reading spot and exploring the books. Lucas Boyd was thrilled to win the reading chair."

SOAR and Head Start have teamed up for several years to provide this project to the Head Start families and children with financial support from the Martin

Thanks in part a grant from the Martin County Community Foundation, the Loogootee Middle School sixth grade class were rocket engineers for a day! Working in teams of two, students built their own rocket then fired the rocket. They learned about velocity, propulsion, angles and the design process. Shown in the photos above are Jon Whitworth, Kylie VanHoy, Grace Lingenfelter, Reece Tippery and Nick Keller firing their rockets.

Learning recycling

Loogootee Middle School 6th grade students joined the Martin County Recycling Center's 20th Anniversary Celebration. Sixth grade students end the school year studying ecology. A field trip to the recycle center is an enjoyable way to end the year! Students learned about the kinds of materials the Martin County Recycle Center processes. They toured the facility and learned about how the equipment works from recycle center staff. Mrs. Nikki Wagoner, Ms. Nicole Bays and Mr. Tim Sanders would like to thank Laura Albertson and the recycle center staff for their time and hospitality.

PLEASE BRING A COVERED DISH AND YOUR LAWN CHAIR. Come join us for an evening of family fun, great food, games, fellowship and music by Ralph Clark.

Secretary of State releases Primary Election voter turnout report announced that 38 percent or 1,771,753 of Indiana's 4.7 million registered voters cast a vote in the May 3 Primary Election. The complete 2016 Primary Election Turnout and Absentee Chart with voter statistics for each county can be viewed online at www.in.gov/sos/ elections/files/2016_May_3_Primary_ Turnout_and_Absentee Information. pdf. The report was compiled by the Secretary of State's office using voter data gathered in Indiana's 92 counties.

Candidates and issues continue to drive turnout in elections. Voter Turnout in the 2016 primary is comparable to the 2008 primary. In 2008, 40 percent of registered Hoosiers voted in the primary election. In 2012, 22 percent provided to make voting easier.

Secretary of State Connie Lawson of Hoosiers voted in the primary.

"When Hoosiers are excited about candidates, it drives turnout," said Secretary Lawson. "When you compare the turnout numbers for this year and 2008, the last time presidential candidates were in the state, you can see a correlation. When voters are motivated, it gets them to the polls."

"I would also like to congratulate Vermillion County on having the highest turnout in the state at 51 percent."

Early voting continues to rise in popularity. In 2008, early voting was at 11 percent for the primary election. It grew to 12 percent in 2012. This year, it reached 16 percent. Hoosiers are taking advantage of options the state has

Hoosier voters to receive postcard with election information in the mail

Hoosier voters are beginning to receive postcards in the mail from the Secretary of State's office. The card reminds Hoosiers that Election Day is Tuesday, November 8, 2016 and to visit www. indianavoters.com for election information. The office is mailing these post cards as part of a statewide voter list refresh. The goal is to identify outdated and inaccurate voter registration information to improve the accuracy and integrity of Indiana's voter registration list. "In 2014, we were able to identify 731,585 records that needed updating or were no longer valid," said Secretary Lawson. "Updating these records, helps us create a more accurate picture of voter turnout for the state, while protecting the integrity of our elections. Hoosiers deserve to know we have accurate voter lists." Postcards that are returned to the office as undeliverable will be used to identify outdated voter information. The office will send a second first-class forwardable mailing asking those voters to take action by updating their registration information, if necessary.

Hoosiers should use the postcard as a reminder to verify, update or start a voter registration online at www.indianavoters.com. Voters may also visit their local county clerk's office or any branch of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles to register to vote or update their voter registration.

Cybercriminals target Hoosiers with ransomware scams

The recent experience of an Indiana healthcare firm should serve as a reminder to all Hoosier citizens, businesses and public agencies to follow strict online security practices, warns the Indiana Information Sharing and Analysis Center.

A not-for-profit healthcare facility fell victim to a ransomware attack in recent weeks, forcing it to transfer some patients to a different hospital and reroute emergency medical responders to another facility.

Ransomware incidents typically occur when a user of a computer system is duped into clicking on an infected popup advertisement, visiting an infected website or downloading an infected file. This mistake allows the cybercriminal to take control of the computer and lock the computer screen. The cybercriminal then demands the user make an online ransom payment in order to regain access to the system.

The best method of fighting ransomware is to avoid it in the first place. Do this by abstaining from ever clicking on popups that you do not know you can trust - or even disabling popups altogether. Don't click on links in emails from people you don't know or that seem out of character from the supposed senders.

If you do fall victim to ransomware, you should report the crime to the Internet Crime Complaint Center at www.ic3.gov. You should also Sometimes there are ways to remove ransomware yourself. One method is by using "system restore" to load your system's last known working configuration. For more on this method and other information involving ransomware, you may log onto www.in.gov/cybersecurity/.

Many times, victims of ransomware may wind up going ahead and making online payments to the cybercriminals in order to regain access to their systems. Remember that there is never any guarantee that paying off the ransom will bring the promised result. Only resort to paying the ransom after first working with authorities and deciding you're willing to assume this risk.

The Indiana Information Sharing and Analysis Center (IN-ISAC) -- a joint effort of the Indiana State Police, Indiana Office of Technology, the Indiana Fusion Center and the Indiana Department of Homeland Security -- was established in Fall 2015 to help further secure state government from cyber threats and to help educate the public about cybersecurity.
