Council split on purchasing decisions

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

The Loogootee City Council was split on two decisions at their meeting Monday night, June 10, and a tie breaking vote had to be cast by the mayor. Council Member Ruth Smith was not present for the meeting.

The first issue involved the fire department purchasing a 2001 model brush truck for $45,000. Fire Chief JD Flynn said the truck is one and a half ton and holds 600 gallons of water. The department's current model holds 200 gallons of water and is a half-ton. Flynn also noted that a new brush truck is $125,000. He told the council that the owner of the brush truck will hold it through Monday only, so he needed a decision. He said they have around $75,000 in their budget to make the purchase.

Council Member Roger Downey asked what would be done with the current brush truck if they purchased the newer model. Flynn replied that the current truck belongs to the DNR so if they decided to get rid of it, they would have to contact them. He said he plans to keep both trucks, however.

Council Member Downey said he would prefer to table a decision until next month.

Council Member Carroll Rayhill made the motion to purchase the brush truck but no one made a second, so the motion died.

At the end of the meeting, Jason Greene, with the fire department, asked if the council would reconsider letting them purchase the brush truck.

Council Member Nolley said it sounds like a "heck of a salesman" who would offer a truck but then need a decision by the end of the day.

Members of the fire department said the truck just became available last week in Texas and the Loogootee Fire Chief has been talking to the fire chief in Texas via text for the past few days.

Council Member Downey said he would like to see an up-to-date budget prior to approving the purchase. The accounts have not been updated since last year. Clerk-Treasurer Carol Harder has been on leave for medical reasons.

Council Member Collin Padgett made a motion to allow the fire department to purchase the truck with Council Member Rayhill making the second. Nolley and Downey voted against but Mayor Harty broke the tie and the truck purchase was approved.

The second issue started when Council Member Downey questioned how bills are being paid without the council's approval. He said receipts are also not being included with the claims and he was told by the clerk-treasurer's office that they are not required to provide those anymore. Mayor Harty said he didn't change the way claims are done however some bills are paid with a credit card. Council Member Downey said that nothing should be paid without council approval. The mayor replied that the credit card bill isn't paid until after the council approves the claims. Downey replied that this may be the case, but the charge was already on the credit card, so the bill was essentially paid without council approval. The mayor said he would look into it.

Council Member Teresa Nolley also asked why trees were cut down on High Street and Bloomfield Road and the bill was on the claims docket to be paid but the council never approved cutting the trees.

Superintendent Bo Wilson said the board of public works approved the work to be done at last month's meeting. Mayor Harty added that the money was budgeted to do tree cutting in the city and therefore it didn't have to be approved by the council.

Nolley replied that everything is being done differently now. "We don't do anything consistently is my problem," she said. She went on to say that last year they went through the city and chose trees that were in the worst condition and needed to be taken down. City Su-

Council President thanked the Lions Club for placing an order for new banners for the light poles to be placed on Main Street. He was unaware of the details but wanted to thank them. Audra Deckard stated she believed they are flags with brackets to be placed out on Holidays.

Next on the agenda was the Beautification Board update. President Amber Hoffman presented the council with meeting minutes from the board's last meeting. President Hoffmann stated the board received a very thoughtful donation from a resident. The resident ordered all new edging from Indian Creek Stone for the flower bed that is located between RJ's ad Bo-mac's. Hoffman asked if a town vehicle could be used to pick up the edging to help save money on a delivery fee. The council let Hoffman know they would allow use of the vehicle. Utilities Manager Crecelius will use the dump truck to pick up the edging.

perintendent Bo Wilson said that the tree on High Street was a serious risk and needed to come down. Nolley replied that the tree didn't make it on the list last year because it is not in the city's right of way. Wilson said that yes, this is the case however the tree was still a danger. "I saw it as a hazard for the public," he said. He said he talked to the mayor about it and the mayor told him to get quotes to take it down. Nolley asked if the homeowner was approached about the tree. Wilson said the homeowner was not. He said he felt it was a safety hazard so made the decision to have it removed.

Nolley said she isn't denying that the tree was a hazard, as are several trees in the city. She said she wanted to know why the tree was so dangerous now and wasn't last year. She said, again, that her concern was not following proper procedure by bringing issues involving money to the city council for approval.

Silence fell over the city council chambers with no one making a motion to approve the claims. Mayor Harty then said, "I guess we won't pay the claims this month."

Council Member Nolley then made a motion to approve all claims except the one for the tree removal. The council approved with Council Member Roger Downey voting against because he wasn't present for last month's meeting.

Wilson asked what he was supposed to tell the tree cutting company as to why their bill is not getting paid. Nolley replied that he could tell the vendor that proper procedure was not followed.

The mayor then said again that money budgeted didn't require council approval.

Council Member Collin Padgett said he agreed that the request should have been brought to the council prior to work being done. He said he didn't know the city could spend money without the council approving it. The mayor said again that they can.

Downey said that the homeowner typically pays half when trees are removed in this fashion. Wilson said that no one paid for half of tree removal last year. Downey argued that they did. Wilson said they did not. Someone mentioned that it was in 2017 and prior that the city asked homeowners to pay for half of the cost for tree removal.

Wilson said there has been $9,000 a year approved for tree removal for the past two years. Nolley said again that last year, they went around and assessed the trees in the city and chose the ones that were the most dangerous to have removed. She said those were put out for bids and she felt that a lot got done for the money by doing them together. "Then this year, all of the sudden, we are back to the old way," she said. Wilson said they are not back to the old way, he said he presented the danger of the tree, on High Street, to the mayor's office and got approval to have it cut down. The mayor said that there was no quorum at last month's meeting, and it was an emergency to have the tree removed so the board of works approved it. Nolley said she questioned whether the tree coming down was an emergency.

Council Member Padgett said if it was an emergency, a special meeting could have been called. The mayor replied that this isn't how they usually do things.

Don Greene, who was in the audience, said that the tree on High Street should have been put on the list last year. He said he called in and reported it last year because a limb fell and blocked the road. The other tree, on Bloomfield Road, he said is across from his house and semi-trucks hit the limbs all the time dropping them in the roadway. He said the tree is right on the road and should have been cut last year. Nolley said the stump is still on the road, despite being topped, and she feels that is a bigger hazard than the limbs were. Greene said he complained multiple times to the mayor about the two trees in question.

Wilson said he had a lot of complaints about the tree on High Street. Nolley said she questions the legality of trespassing on a property, not owned by the city, and cutting it. Wilson said he doesn't know about that, but it was a matter of public safety.

Council Member Padgett said that if it is indeed the case that the council doesn't need to approve money spent, then he made the motion to approve all claims, including the bill for the tree cutting. Council Member Carroll Rayhill made the second. Nolley and Downey voted against, but the mayor used his tiebreaking power to vote to pay all the claims.

Superintendent Wilson then spoke to the council about purchasing a new vacuum truck for the water/sewer department. The current vacuum truck, a 1994 model, has problems with the debris body. The cost to repair the debris body is $40,000, said Wilson, and the cost to replace the debris body is $90,000.

Wilson said he found a 2003 vacuum truck for $110,000. A new truck is $405,000 and the company has offered a demo truck at a discount of $350,000. The current vac truck has a trade in value of $10,000. He recommended purchasing a new model.

Wilson said financing through German American for the 2003 model would be $35,000 a year for three years. To purchase the demo model it would be $41,110 per year for 10 years. He noted that the new truck comes with a warranty for the debris body for the life of the truck. Wilson said a new truck could last 25 years and a used truck may last only a few.

When asked how often the vacuum truck is used, Wilson replied that they use it around once a week except in the winter when it can't be used due to freezing. He said they would use a vacuum truck more if it was properly equipped.

After discussion about how expensive a new truck would be, Council Member Carroll Rayhill asked Council Member Downey what he thought. Downey said he would like to see them get back to including big purchases like this in the budget each year. He said that if the vacuum truck was in this bad of shape, it should have been discussed last year at budget time. Wilson said he had no idea it was in this bad of shape. Downey said he thinks it's time to give back to the taxpayers of Loogootee by repairing things when they need repaired instead of just buying new equipment. He said with the roads, potholes, wastewater and drainage problems, they need to start giving something back to the citizens. "There's got to be a balance somewhere," he said. He suggested putting it in the budget for next year.

Padgett said he thinks repairing or replacing the debris body would be the best idea because they have no idea what is in the equipment fund for the department since it's not been updated in six months.

The council agreed to table the discussion until next month so they can find out how much is in the fund.

Four Rivers, a/k/a The Red Door, said they recently discovered that they don't own their building. They said they have put a lot of money into improving the building and would like to own it prior to putting more money into it. They would like to know what steps they need to take to get the building transferred to them.

It was mentioned that no one has read the lease because it cannot be found however the mayor said they know the city owns the 1.65 acres and Four Rivers have occupied the building for 30 years. They believe the lease is for $1 a year for 100 years. The city attorney is going to look into finding the lease and report back. She said she will not be at the July meeting but will have information for the August meeting.

Susan Harrawood, Loogootee Public Library Board Member, told the council that there has been a lot of controversy with the construction of the new library. She said the first complaint was about safety with children playing in the construction area. They did what they could to correct this complaint. Now, residents in the area are complaining about construction noise. The current city ordinance states that nuisance noise cannot start prior to 8 a.m. or go past 10 p.m. Violation of the ordinance comes with a fine of $50 per day.

Negotiations were done and the residents agreed to allow the construction crew to start at 7 a.m. instead of 8 a.m.

Library Director Darla Wagler said she would like the city to amend the ordinance to not include construction noise at all. She said with all the rain and the heat coming, any construction crew needs to get working on the jobsite as soon as they can each morning and having construction noise considered a nuisance, slows progress on any development in the city.

The mayor said he has never, until now, had a complaint about construction noise.

Harrawood said she believes the complaints are coming from the same people who didn't want the library built in that area at all. Someone else in the audience noted that even after the library is built, those same complainants will find another issue.

City Attorney Isha Wright-Ryan said the council can vote to suspend any fines incurred however changing the ordinance would take some time and include a public hearing.

The board voted to exempt construction noise and start the process of changing the ordinance.

Harrawood also told the council that they plan to ask the city council for a financial contribution for the new library in the future. She said they don't have a specific dollar amount at this time.

During the board of public works and safety meeting, the board voted to accept bids from Adam Greene for $1,500 and Donald Mann for $1,800 to sell the city's two 2003 model trucks they no longer need.

The board of works also voted to allow the Town of Shoals to use the city's street sweeper at the end of the month, prior to the Catfish Festival. The city would also provide an operator for the sweeper at $50 per hour.

During the council meeting, Council Member Teresa Nolley questioned the minutes from the previous meeting. She said it states that all the council members were in agreement to items that were never voted on. She said no vote was taken so she isn't sure how all the council was in agreement. She asked that the minutes be corrected. The council approved.

Kyle Hembree-Lifesaving Award

Officer Kyle Hembree was awarded a lifesaving award for saving a person from the East Fork of White River on June 18, 2018. Hembree was off duty when he overheard radio traffic of there being an unoccupied vehicle near the Haysville Bridge and a person floating down the river. Having strong knowledge of the river and knowing that the water was high and had a lot of current, Hembree launched his boat and headed upstream toward where the person was last seen. He observed the person was struggling to stay afloat near a log jam. Hembree ran his boat onto a submerged log and wrapped a rope around a tree to hold his position. He then grabbed one of the person's arms and held him against the boat while he attempted to get a life jacket on him. Hembree dragged the nearly lifeless person onto the log jam, and then onto the bow of his boat.

Hembree then transported the person to the Portersville Ramp, where he was met by EMS and other emergency responders. The person had traveled nearly five miles in the water before being rescued. Hembree is assigned to Daviess County.

Remember, if a dog was the teacher you would learn things like:

- When your loved ones come home, always run to greet them.
 - Never pass up the opportunity to go for a joyride.
 - Allow the experience of fresh air and the wind in your face to be pure ecstasy.
 - Take naps.
 - Stretch before rising.
 - Run, romp, and play daily.
 - Thrive on attention and let people touch you.
 - Avoid biting when a simple growl will do.
 - On warm days, stop to lie on your back on the grass.
 - On hot days, drink lots of water and lie under a shady tree.
 - When you’re happy, dance around and wag your entire body.
 - Delight in the simple joy of a long walk.
 - Be faithful.
 - Never pretend to be something you’re not.
 - If what you want lies buried, dig until you find it.
 - When someone is having a bad day, be silent, sit close by, and nuzzle them gently.
- That’s the secret of happiness that we can learn from a good dog.

Community Foundation scholarships available

The Martin County Community Foundation (MCCF) is pleased to announce it is accepting applications for two non-traditional scholarships.

There are many paths to higher education... many students choose to postpone college; many move directly into the workforce, bypassing a university education altogether; others put their college careers on hold, choosing the more difficult task of raising a family. It is only later that they decide to pursue a higher education, either to improve their personal and professional opportunities, or to expand their general knowledge. The community foundation is grateful for the donors in the community who have established non-traditional scholarships for returning students. These scholarships give preference to helping a student begin or return to college or trade school, years after leaving high school. The two scholarships and criteria are below.

Martin County Non-Traditional Scholarship

This scholarship is for non-traditional students who meet the following criteria:

- Must be a resident of Martin County
- Must have graduated or left high school at least one year prior to applying for the scholarship
- Must seek to further their education at an accredited college, university, vocational or trade school
- Must demonstrate a need for assistance.

The Second Door Scholarship is named after the saying "When one door closes, another one opens..."

This scholarship is for non-traditional students who meet the following criteria:

- Must be a resident of Martin County
- Must have graduated or left high school at least two years prior to applying for the scholarship
- Must demonstrate a financial need
- The scholarship cannot be used for GED test fees
- The scholarship cannot exceed the cost of course and course materials
- Applicant must provide evidence of program acceptance
- Program must be administered by a qualified institution/organization.

Applications are available online at <http://www.cfpartner.org/mccfgrants.htm> or at the MCCF office located in the Community Learning Center on the Martin County 4-H fairgrounds, 2668 U.S. Highway 50, Loogootee.

Applications must be returned to the Community Foundation by 4 p.m. on Friday, June 28 by either hand-delivering to the MCCF office or by mailing to MCCF, PO Box 28, Loogootee, IN 47553. The MCCF office hours are Tuesdays and Wednesdays, 8 a.m. to 4 pm; call ahead to be sure someone is in the office. If mailing, be sure to allow delivery time so that the application is received by the deadline in order to be considered for a scholarship.

If you have any questions, please e-mail the MCCF Director, Curt Johnson, at mccf@cfpartner.org or call 812-295-1022.

In the Garden

By Ralph Purkhiser
Purdue University Master Gardener

June 17 through 23 is National Pollinator Week. Actually, it has become an international observation, with events being held throughout the United States and in several other countries to draw attention to the plight of pollinators and their importance in the environment. Pollinators are insects, birds, bats and even other animals who do the important task of carrying the pollen from one plant to another of the same species, resulting in pollination. Successful pollination results in the formation of fruits and seeds. Many of those fruits are useful as food for men and animals.

While some plants, such as grains and grasses, are pollinated by releasing pollen into the wind, most of our food crops depend on some sort of pollinator to do the job. That is the purpose of flowers. Flowers attract pollinators, promising nectar, and tricking the pollinator into carrying out the process of pollination.

In recent years, scientists have noticed a decline in the number of pollinators. The reasons are not always clear. In some cases, disease has resulted in the death of pollinators. In other cases, the loss of habitat is the culprit. The use of insecticides also plays a role in pollinator decline.

Pollinator Week is all about what you can do to improve the situation. Building a pollinator garden is something that anyone can do. It does not take great acreage. Even a balcony garden may be pollinator friendly.

The most important step is to eliminate or severely limit the use of insecticides. Most insecticides are indeterminate, meaning they kill all types of insects—the good and the bad. There are often residual effects for other pollinators. Birds which eat insects that have consumed insecticide may also be poisoned and die. In other cases, the insecticide may be responsible for weak eggshells, resulting in the loss of young.

Providing a pollinator-friendly habitat means providing what is needed for life—food, water and shelter. Leaving a portion of your yard a little wild will go a long way toward providing habitat. Many butterflies have specific host plants, and those plants are often “weeds”. Modern farming practices have eliminated the fence rows where many of the host plants have traditionally grown. Urban sprawl has also been responsible for habitat loss.

Variety is really the spice of life for pollinators. Different flowers attract different pollinators. Providing a variety of blooming plants will ensure your garden will attract pollinators. Native plants or cultivars of native plants are the best pollinator magnets, but any nectar-rich flower will provide the energy for pollinators.

Sandhill Gardens will be one of the sites hosting a pollinator program. The program will be Tuesday, June 18 beginning at 6 p.m. Expert speakers will provide information on a variety of topics, including invasive plants, honeybees and native bees. It will be an interesting and informative evening. Sandhill Gardens is located at 3061 N. County Road 810 W. (Sandhill Road), West Baden Springs. Come and join us.

Grazing Bites

By Victor Shelton
NRCS State Agronomist/Grazing Specialist

I cannot believe the weather. I have never seen a spring quite like this. After a long discussion recently with an old friend who is 79, he said he hadn't either and we both agreed that we would rather not see another, but only because the weather didn't repeat itself. We have gone from soggy wet pastures with forages that were hesitating to grow to runaway forage on wet or saturated soils.

I'm still an advocate for utilizing grazing first as the main means of forage management. The normal recommendation is to continue moving animals through the system until the first pasture or allotment is ready to be grazed again. Then go back to that first field and start over. The fields that are skipped can be used as summer stockpile as is, clipped to remove seed heads, or mowed for hay. I want to discuss these choices, but first I encourage you to do a simple assessment.

On average, by early to mid-June, most cool season forages have reached about two-thirds of their dry matter yield. Stop and think about that for a moment. By this point, most cool season grasses have gone from leaves only, to pollinating, to seed production. Removal of vegetation by grazing has slowed the process down some, but it won't stop it.

What you need to assess, is how much forage you have presently. You should not be able to completely control all forages by grazing this time of year. Consider this. If two-thirds of the potential forage that you can normally grow on the farm have now been grown, there had better be more forage out there than what you need for the time frame. If the cows are keeping up with the forages, then you either don't have enough forage or more likely, you have too many cows.

It would be nice if forages grew at approximately the same rate as consumption. There are times when this is possible, but it will not stay that way long. Pastures can be managed by what I call “put and take” grazing, which is actually more like a continuous grazed system, than a rotated system. Animals are added or removed to keep consumption more in balance with forage growth. This method is not very practical. This method, if workable at all, is probably best done with stocker cattle of which numbers might be slightly easier to adjust, as needed. If you have a cow-calf operation, it will not work.

Continuing with our discussion on making an assessment, do you have excess forage right now in early June? If yes, then good, animal numbers are at least somewhat in balance with forages long-term. If no, then forages will be even shorter in supply as the year progresses, reducing the number of grazing days and increasing the number of feeding days. The more “feeding” days, the more out-of-pocket expense in the cost of operation.

Our cool season forages grow with good soil moisture and moderate temperatures but will slow down drastically or stop growth in response to low soil moisture and high temperatures later in the summer. That's why you need to stockpile some growth for later. You also want to go into summer with as much vegetative forage and cover as possible because that live vegetative cover helps to keep the soil cooler and slow evaporation (although it certainly is not an issue right now), which helps promote at least some continued growth.

Grazing, especially when you graze just the top portion of the plant, helps to promote more growth, more tillering of grasses, as long as moisture is present and summer heat has not slowed the process down too much. Now getting back to the original discussion about your options: fields that are skipped can then be used as summer stockpile as is, clipped to remove seed heads, or mowed for hay.

If you skip the fields and stockpile them and do nothing else, the forages will mature. Mature forages are usually lower in protein and higher in carbon. There is still some good feed value in this forage, but animals will tend to eat the best and leave the rest. If the field could use some extra soil organic matter or benefit from extra rest, then this would be a very good choice. When you finally get through those earlier paddocks the second time and find that the first-grazed field is not ready to be grazed again, then you could go back to the skipped stockpiled field. It is best to either strip-graze or allocate out in sections to maintain some quality as you move across the field. While the livestock are grazing this summer's stockpile, the rest of the pastures are resting and recovering the best they can for later use.

There is some value in clipping or topping that summer stockpile with a rotary mower, but timing is important. It needs to be done early enough to help promote some continued growth. Once the seed heads start drying off, you are mainly only making the plants look better cosmetically. New growth is harder to achieve at this stage, especially as drier, hotter days increase. Clipping must be done while the seed stalks are still green and before the plants are too big.

It is almost impossible to mow high enough to only remove seed heads and not remove too much leaf. Mowing too short will remove potential feed and the better part of the solar panel or cover it up with the clippings. After it is clipped, stems and cut forage is often coarser and in some cases may be less desirable to the animal. I've seen this go both ways—again timing is everything. The more vegetative the field is when clipped the better. There is a cost to clipping, so the added value of forage, potential extra regrowth, or weed control needs to be obtained to justify the expense. Most pastures I've been in so far this year that have good fertility and have not been grazed yet, are too dense and tall to clip, so you would lose more than you would ever gain. You would be better off just grazing it as discussed earlier, or my least favorite option—haying it.

If you are in what I refer to as the “building” stage of soil fertility – in other words, it still needs some, then you would be better off bringing in (See 'GRAZING BITES' on page 10)

Clerk-Treasurer Rutledge presented an invoice to be sent to a property owner on Main Street for work that had been completed due to being in violation of Ordinance of 83-4. Councilman Albright made a motion to approve the invoice with councilman Hoffman making the second. All were in favor.

Rutledge stated she wanted to let the council know she would be attending a free Department of Local Government Finance training seminar in Evansville on June 20. Rutledge stated she would also be attending the State Board of Accounts School in Fort Wayne on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The council voted to approve a $500 donation for the Catfish Festival Fireworks.

Rutledge asked if the council would like for the street sweeping and mosquito fogging to be scheduled for a week before the festival and the council were all in agreement. She stated the trash cans, portable toilets, large dumpster had all been ordered for the festival. She stated a letter had been sent to CSX as well letting them know the festival dates.

Next, Rutledge stated membership was due for the Shoals Business Association in the amount of $50. Councilman Albright made a motion to renew the membership with councilman Hoffman making the second. She also presented an annual renewal policy from Travelers Insurance for the fire department workers compensation insurance in the amount of $978. The council approved. Rutledge let the council know Martin County Community Foundation will be hosting the grant seeker meeting June 18 if anyone would like to attend with her.

Council President Ragsdale stated Municipal Utilities Manager Kevin Crecelius had interviewed several applicants for the open general laborer position. Ragsdale stated he would like to bring before the board applicant Chase Heckard as the person to fill the position. Attorney Paul Vogler asked Clerk-Treasurer Rutledge to read the conditions. Rutledge stated the position would have a six month probation period with performance reviews being done at three months and six months, he will not be eligible for any full time employee benefits until completion of the probation period, his starting hourly wage will be $13.50, and his hire date will be dependent on the passing of a background check and pre-employment drug screen with being eligible to start the day after those results are received. Councilman Clint Hoffman made a motion to hire Chase Heckard for the general laborer position with Council President Ragsdale making the second. Councilman Albright abstained. The motion passed.

Rutledge stated she would like present and amended Salary & Wage Ordinance for approval. At the last meeting, the council appointed a Municipal Utilities Manager with a salary of $44,500 annually and gave the Town Marshal a fifty cents per hour rate increase. The amended ordinance reflected these changes. Councilman Hoffman made a motion to approve the amended #2 salary and wage ordinance with councilman Albright making the second. All were in favor.

Rutledge then stated she had a thank you card to be presented to the board from resident Pat Keefe. Ms. Keefe thanked the board having the drain cleared in front of her house as she had requested at the last regular meeting.

Councilman Albright said he wanted to state that himself and Clerk-Treasurer Rutledge had attended the AIM Budget Seminar that was held in Plainfield on May 16 to receive new information and updates concerning budgets and new bills trying to be passed.

Fire Chief Jim Hamby stated the pump for truck 383 was finished and came in under the original expected cost.

Amber Hoffman stated she would like to make a comment thanking all individuals, organizations and businesses for their contributions and efforts in supporting the new beautification board.

With no further business to discuss on the agenda, Council President Ragsdale opened the floor to those in attendance. James Brown stated he would like to know the town's stance on the topic of the letters that several cabin owners had received from the DNR. Brown stated he had received a letter and that several of the cabins that are in the town's corporate limits had received a letter. Town Attorney Paul Vogler stated that the town has no jurisdiction over the letters and that the letters had been sent under state statute. Vogler also stated he had no answer as to why the letters had been sent. He said he thought some of the owners had filed for permits and that there is a permit process. Brown stated he personally tried to get a permit and that he has an "abode or residence" and was told he couldn't file for a permit with having an "abode or structure". Brown stated the question he would like to ask was if this law had ever been brought to the town before specifically in the early 2000's. Vogler stated he was not aware of it ever being brought up. Brown stated it is his understanding it had been addressed during this time period on a county level. Ted Oshier stated he had traveled to Indianapolis the day before concerning the matter as he had filed an appeal. Tom Lake asked if the northwest side of the bridge along River Cabin Lane was in town limits. It was stated that it is in the town limits. Cori Lukomski, with The Washington Times Herald, stated that she has been researching the matter through county ordinances and was going to continue the research through more county documents. She stated the owners had been paying taxes all of this time according to the assessed values. Attorney Vogler said he advised that the group of owners seek legal assistance together. A discussion ensued and council President called the meeting back to order and stated that one person is to speak at a time. Adam Greene asked if the town was going to cut off the water utility service due to the letters the owners had received. Council Vice-President Albright stated the town would not take a stance at this time to disconnect the water service but asked that Attorney Vogler research proper procedure if the town receives notice from the state to disconnect the service. Attorney Vogler stated he would research the matter.

With no further business to discuss, the meeting adjourned at 6:43 p.m.

sources of fertility, such as hay, then to remove it. Hay harvested off a pasture will be removing nutrients from where they are needed and moving them to a "feeding" area where they are already high. When grazed, most nutrients which are present have a higher chance of remaining and being used for future forage growth.

Fields that you cannot graze for one reason or another, would be better choices for hay or fields where nutrients, especially phosphorus might be high from past heavy applications of manure. If a pasture is cut for hay, restore fertility back to that field as soon as possible to help promote and sustain the forage. Understand that those fields will take longer to recover than if they were grazed, especially as the days get hotter, and perhaps drier.

Keep on grazing!

Reminders & Opportunities

During hot and drier weather in July and August, warm-season forages grow quite well and are better suited while the cool-season forages usually take a vacation. Don't miss a chance to learn more about them later this month (information below).
