Shoals Council discusses Overlook project, grant

The Shoals Town Council met Wednesday, July 3. Those in attendance were: Council President Cecil Ragsdale, Council Vice-President Cary D. Albright, Council Member Clint Hoffman, Clerk-Treasurer Sierra Rutledge, Town Attorney Paul Vogler, Town Marshal Todd Eckert, S.V.F.D. Chief Jim Hamby, Sharon Lake and Zane Lake.

Council President Ragsdale asked that the dirt pile left in front of KRB be moved first thing in the morning with the start of the Catfish Festival. Fire Chief Hamby stated the fire department would go to the boat landing and spray off the shelter house since the flood water had receded.

Woman airlifted after ORV accident

A Springville woman was seriously injured in an off road vehicle (ORV) accident in Martin County on July 6.

Tyler George, 22, of Springville, was operating a 2013 Polaris Ranger in a private field near Bear Hill Road in Shoals at approximately 11 p.m. when the vehicle rolled over and ejected Kaitlyn Pund, 21, also of Springville. Pund sustained serious injuries and was flown by Air Evac to Deaconess Hospital in Evansville.

Pund was not wearing a seat belt when the incident occurred. The other two occupants were wearing seat belts.

Indiana Conservation Officers recommend always using safety equipment when operating or riding an ORV.

Responding units included the Martin County Sheriff's Department, Shoals Fire Department, Air Evac, and Martin County Ambulance.

he wanted to thank the Boy Scouts for taking their time yesterday and cleaning up the Overlook.

Zane Lake came before the board and stated he was in the boy scouts program and is going for his Eagle Scout badge. He stated he wanted to use the Overlook Park as his site to go for the badge. He would like to rebuild the trail, build picnic tables along with other projects. Lake presented pictures to the board. All of the board members thanked Lake for choosing the Overlook Park and said they strongly support him in any way for the project. The board informed Lake should he need any assistance to please ask.

Town Marshal Eckert gave an update on the property clean ups. He stated he has a better response than in the past and is happy with the progress. The council asked about the property located at 506 Lynwood Street. Officer Eckert stated a letter had been sent but the owner was not local. He is resending the letter certified.

A meter was brought into question on East River Road. A discussion ensued with several questions concerning meter service. Attorney Vogler will investigate and get back to the board.

Next, the board presented Town Marshal Todd Eckert with a certificate and plaque commemorating with 20 years of service to the community.

Clerk Treasurer Rutledge stated the park board had received a $1,000 donation from the REMC Operation Roundup Program. Rutledge then stated a couple of donations had been received at the Town Hall. Jon Rutledge had donated an American Flag bench that is located on the front sidewalk of the Town Hall. Boomer Heckard do-

Duke customers may see 19 percent rate increase

On July 2, 2019, Duke Energy Indiana made a request before the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission to increase the company's rates. The company is asking for an overall average rate increase of about 15 percent across all customer groups. Broken down, that would be 19 percent for residential customers, 16.7 percent for commercial customers, 11.3 percent for industrial HLF customers and 16.3 percent for industrial LLF customers. The new rates would be phased in over two years, starting in 2020.

According to Duke Energy, the increase is needed due to core utility investments such as adding miles of new power lines and substations to serve the more than 100,000 customers they have added to their customer base since just prior to their last full-scale rate review.

Duke Energy Indiana must demonstrate to state utility regulators why the rate increase is needed. The Office of Utility Consumer Counselor and other interested stakeholders review the filings and vet the company's request. The commission then thoroughly reviews Duke's request and holds public hearings to allow customers to comment. More information on public comment will be published in the future.

Duke serves roughly 840,000 customers across 69 counties in Indiana.

Graber plays in All-Star game Lions well represented at Elite North South Games

Tyanna Graber recently played in the ICGSA North/South All-Star game held at Andy Mohr Field on the Indiana University Campus in Bloomington. Graber, who was the second highest vote getter in District 5, played shortstop and caught in the rain shortened festivities. Normally, there are two, seven inning games played, but with inclement weather looming, the event was shortened to one, nine inning game.

Tyanna, who had one of the few hits for the South on the day, also scored a run, scoring all the way from first on a double to left field. Graber played very well on the day, according to her high school coach Greg Clark, "Ty was her exceptional self today, she had a nice single to right and scored from first on a double to left. She caught three or four innings and played third another inning. Ty called her the pitches and she did very well. She just has great field awareness and throw a couple runners going to second on throws to home and threw out another runner trying to steal."

TYANNA GRABER

While the South didn't win the game, Tyanna Graber did represent Loogootee and Southern Indiana very well. Tyanna will be attending Lake Land College in the Fall on a softball scholarship and plans to study Pre-Chiropractic.

Loogootee was well represented at the Elite North South games held recently at the Chuck Klein Sports Complex in Indianapolis. Sydney Davis played in the Senior Game, while Haylie Mathias and Grace Lingenfelter played in the Underclassman Game.

Sydney pitched, played shortstop and second base during her game and drove in two runs with a double to left center. "Syd pitched very well and played great defense for her team at short and at second. Sydney has always been so fun to watch play and this game was not any different. She just goes so hard and you can tell she has a passion for the game," said Lions Head Coach Greg Clark.

Grace Lingenfelter and Haylie Mathias both played very well in the Underclassman game. Haylie played first base and Grace caught and played second base. Both performed very well, and coach Clark sated that he is looking forward to watching them excel for the Lady Lions over the next three seasons.

National unemployment little changed for June

Total nonfarm payroll employment increased by 224,000 in June, and the unemployment rate was little changed at 3.7 percent, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported last week. Notable job gains occurred in professional and business services, in health care, and in transportation and warehousing.

This news release presents statistics from two monthly surveys. The household survey measures labor force status, including unemployment, by demographic characteristics. The establishment survey measures nonfarm employment, hours, and earnings by industry.

Household Survey Data

Both the unemployment rate, at 3.7 percent, and the number of unemployed persons, at 6.0 million, changed little in June.

Among the major worker groups, the unemployment rates for adult men (3.3 percent), adult women (3.3 percent), teenagers (12.7 percent), Whites (3.3 percent), Blacks (6.0 percent), Asians (2.1 percent), and Hispanics (4.3 percent) showed little or no change in June.

The number of long-term unemployed (those jobless for 27 weeks or more) was little changed at 1.4 million in June and accounted for 23.7 percent of the unemployed.

The labor force participation rate, at 62.9 percent, was little changed over the month and unchanged over the year. In June, the employment-population ratio was 60.6 percent for the fourth month in a row.

The number of persons employed part time for economic reasons (sometimes referred to as involuntary part-time workers) was essentially unchanged at 4.3 million in June. These individuals, who would have preferred full-time employment, were working part time because their hours had been reduced or they were unable to find full-time jobs.

In June, 1.6 million persons were marginally attached to the labor force, little different from a year earlier. (Data are not seasonally adjusted.) These individuals were not in the labor force, wanted and were available for work, and had looked for a job sometime in the prior 12 months. They were not counted as unemployed because they had not searched for work in the 4 weeks preceding the survey.

Among the marginally attached, there were 425,000 discouraged workers in June, little changed from a year earlier. (Data are not seasonally adjusted.) Discouraged workers are persons not currently looking for work because they believe no jobs are available for them. The remaining 1.1 million persons marginally attached to the labor force in June had not searched for work for reasons such as school attendance or family responsibilities.

Establishment Survey Data

Total nonfarm payroll employment increased by 224,000 in June. Employment growth has averaged 172,000 per month thus far this year, compared with an average monthly gain of 223,000 in 2018. In June, notable job gains occurred in professional and business services, in health care, and in transportation and warehousing.

Professional and business services added 51,000 jobs in June, following little employment change in May (+24,000). Employment growth in the industry has averaged 35,000 per month in the first half of 2019, compared with an average monthly gain of 47,000 in 2018.

Employment in health care increased by 35,000 over the month and by 403,000 over the past 12 months. In June, job growth occurred in ambulatory health care services (+19,000) and hospitals (+11,000).

Transportation and warehousing added 24,000 jobs over the month and 158,000 over the past 12 months. In June, job gains occurred among couriers and messengers (+7,000) and in air transportation (+3,000).

to trend up in June (+21,000), in line with its average monthly gain over the prior 12 months.

Manufacturing employment edged up in June (+17,000), following 4 months of little change. So far this year, job growth in the industry has averaged 8,000 per month, compared with an average of 22,000 per month in 2018. In June, employment rose in computer and electronic products (+7,000) and in plastics and rubber products (+4,000).

Employment in other major industries, including mining, wholesale trade, retail trade, information, financial activities, leisure and hospitality, and government, showed little change over the month.

In June, average hourly earnings for all employees on private nonfarm payrolls rose by 6 cents to $27.90, following a 9-cent gain in May. Over the past 12 months, average hourly earnings have increased by 3.1 percent. Average hourly earnings of private-sector production and nonsupervisory employees increased by 4 cents to $23.43 in June.

GONNA BE A BEAR

In this life, I'm a woman. In my next life, I'd like to come back as a bear. When you're a bear, you get to hibernate. You do nothing but sleep for six months. I could deal with that.

Before you hibernate, you're supposed to eat yourself stupid. I could deal with that too.

When you're a girl bear, you birth your children (who are the size of walnuts) while you're sleeping and wake to partially grown, cute, cuddly cubs. I could definitely deal with that.

If you're a mama bear, everyone know you mean business. You swat anyone who bothers your cubs. If your cubs get out of line, you swat them too. I could deal with that.

If you're a bear, your mate EXPECTS you to wake up growling. He EXPECTS that you will have hairy legs and excess body fat.

Yup, gonna be a bear!

2. How do you make a Swiss roll?

THOUGHTS

*A day will come when I get enough sleep and I don't need coffee. But it is not today.

*My sister thinks she is so smart. She said onions are the only food that makes you cry – so I threw a coconut at her.

*Clothes too dirty for the closet. But too clean for the laundry. Welcome to - the chair.

*I never run voluntarily so if you see me running, you should start running too because something is coming.

*I'm so relieved it started raining, otherwise it would have been two days in a row without rain. -Rick Graves

*You can trust your dog to guard your house, but you can't trust your dog to guard your sandwich.

*Finally figured out why I look so bad in pictures. It's my face.

*I think I'm allergic to chocolate. My butt and thighs are showing definite signs of swelling. Does anyone else have the same problem?

*Mirrors don't lie. Luckily, they don't laugh either.

*When someone says, "Stop living in the past," I say, "But the music was so much better then."

*I googled my symptoms. It said to ride my horse more.

Started a new job as a delivery person today. When I got to my first address, there was a little sticky note left on the door saying, "Dear Delivery Person, we're out, please hide in the garage."

That was eight hours ago and still nobody's found me.

Historical Society still looking for new members

BY PHIL TODD

Historical Society Volunteer

The Martin County Historical Society appreciated all the visitors to the museum during the week of July 4th. Several individuals and families purchased membership to the museum, with many being a five-year membership. During the last few years, membership has gone from 350 to now nearly 800. The museum currently has a benefactor willing to match funding for each new 200 membership at a rate of 10 to 1. This funding helps sustain the cost of operating the museum throughout the year.

The museum is operated by the Martin County Historical Society on a strictly volunteer basis, so all funding received through donations, membership dues, and grants are used to upgrade and improve the museum and grounds. There are four major goals for the museum:

- (1) Purchase and install new environmental controls (heating/AC)
- (2) Repair/Replace all windows (retaining the historical size of the window.)
- (3) Replace/upgrade all the restroom facilities in the museum.
- (4) Renovate the upstairs courtroom to original configuration.

The museum raises the funding each year to maintain the facility, but not enough to accomplish the goals listed. Board members are always looking for and submitting grant application to improve and upgrade the facility, and the amount of interest shown over the holiday week demonstrates the interest the public has in the history of the county, and in genealogy research and family history. Check the Museum facebook site for information about the museum and how to join.

As I walked out onto my upstairs balcony this week, my breath was taken away by the sea of blooms below. The plant responsible for the majority of this beauty was not an expensive exotic plant. In fact, the plants had cost me nothing at all. This plant blooms in shades of blue and purple, ranging from a powdery blue to lavender to purple and deep violet. The sea of color is the result of many years of self-seeding and a spring of plentiful moisture. The humble native plant that has brought me such joy is Campanula Americana, better known as the tall bellflower.

Since I was a small boy, I had accompanied my mother and grandmother on spring greens gathering expeditions. I soon learned that the tastiest of those wild greens (at least to me) was one that grandma called "shawney". The tender heart-shaped leaves have a sweet taste and may be eaten as a salad green or cooked and flavored with bacon. It was one of the few greens that could be cooked alone. One has to watch including too many of some greens, which will give the mix a bitter or sour taste. Shawney was the one green that one could use liberally.

I had learned early to recognize the tender shoots of shawney. There is another plant that has a similar appearance, but one could always pick off a piece. Shawney has a milky sap and the other plant does not. Shawney could be found along creek banks or at the edge of a wooded area. However, once the early spring green-picking season was past, I had little thought about shawney or any of the other plants we gathered.

When I began my study of botany, I searched the common names of plants listed as edible wild greens, but found no mention of shawney in the field guides. I did, however, find references to shawney in stories about foraging in Indiana, Tennessee and Missouri, but none of them gave any botanical name for the plant.

I have always been careful to not dig wild plants to bring into the landscape, but I also became a proponent of using native plants in the landscape. I would get permission from developers to remove any plants that would be lost during development. I also got permission to save plants along road rights-of-way when they would be lost during road construction. It was during such an event that I got my chance to move some shawney from the wild into the yard. I put it in an area near the edge of the woods and marked it to watch its development. Once the plant flowered, it was easy to use a field guide to identify it as the tall bellflower. I have shared this information with some friends, including one who is a noted author of books on native plants, so I expect to see shawney listed as one of the common names for Campanula Americana in her next edition.

The plant lives up to the moniker of tall bellflower, with spires up to eight feet. In my garden, most of the plants are well-branched, due to the fact that the tops of the plants were picked and eaten in the spring, causing the plant to branch as it re-grew. In some gardens, an herbaceous plant of that size would seem unruly, but the wildness of the scene fits the area around my log cabin. The bellflower is not the only statuesque plant in the garden. A few years ago, I received a start of filipendula, commonly known as queen of the prairie. This native plant sends up shoots over six feet tall, topped with deep pink plums. The flowers are similar to those of astilbe.

Throughout the garden, an understory for these giant plants is made of daylilies of various colors, black-eyed Susans, various cultivars of coneflowers and pink, blue and pink balloon flowers. Admittedly, with the rainy weather we have had, there are a lot of weeds that need to be pulled, but from the balcony, I do not see the weeds. I see the mix of native flowers and cultivated plants and it brings joy to me. It is a thing of beauty.

Invasive black carp nearing Indiana waters

In June, two black carp were captured in the Ohio River about 10 miles downstream of the Indiana state line. Black carp are native to eastern Asia and were brought to the United States during the 1970-80s. They have since escaped captivity and have been moving throughout the Mississippi River basin.

Black carp feed on mollusks and pose a serious threat to Indiana's mussel populations. Many of the mussel species native to Indiana are already listed as species of special concern or endangered due to pollution and changes in river habitat. For more information about the important role mussels play in the state's rivers, visit wildlife.IN.gov/8684.htm.

Although it is possible to catch black carp on traditional baits, bowfishing anglers are more likely to encounter them. Black carp look very similar to grass carp. See the identification sheet at asiancarp.us/Documents/Black-GrassCarpIdentification.PDF to help tell the difference.

If you have caught a suspected black carp, follow the keep, cool, call procedure:

Keep the fish and make note of its location.

Cool the fish on ice once you have killed it.

Call the DNR at 1-866-663-9684 to report the fish.

You may be eligible for a $100 bounty per black carp carcass, funded through the Illinois Department of Natural Resources.

Hybrid striped bass to be stocked in Indiana lakes

DNR hatchery staff is stocking hybrid striped bass across the state for the benefit of Hoosier anglers.

Hybrid striped bass, also known as "wipers," are a hybrid species of white bass and striped bass. By hybridizing the two, hatchery staff is able to produce fish that grow faster and larger than a typical white bass, yet can tolerate a wider range of conditions than pure striped bass.

On June 17, DNR hatchery staff began stocking nine different lakes across the state with hybrid striped bass. These fish average between 1-1.5 inches when they are stocked, but can reach sizes averaging 13 inches by their second year.

Hybrid striped bass are known for being a challenging catch, but they also help control undesirable species such as gizzard shad in some Indiana lakes. Hybrid striped bass are typically not capable of reproduction. Stockings will be completed in these areas:

Nyona Lake (Fulton County) – 1,040 fish

Worster Lake (St. Joseph County) – 3,270 fish

Clare Lake (LaPorte County) – 420 fish

Lake Shafer (White County) – 12,910 fish

Deer Hunt Registry signups began July 1

Deer hunters can sign up for the chance to hunt on land owned by participating landowners with the new Deer Hunt Registry system administered by DNR's Division of Fish & Wildlife.

The Deer Hunt Registry connects deer hunters with landowners, golf courses, parks, land trusts, farmers, or communities. The registry will provide interested parties with a list of hunters in the area willing to help.

The Deer Hunt Registry system is replacing the former Hunters Helping Farmers program and incorporating the Community Hunter Access Program (CHAP). To learn more about CHAP, see wildlife.IN.gov/9420.htm.

Hunters will be able to sign up for the chance to hunt starting July 1, 2019.

Please note signing up on the Deer Hunt Registry does not guarantee additional hunting opportunities or placement in a managed hunt.

For more information or to sign up, see on.IN.gov/deerhuntregistry.

Lake Freeman (White County) – 15,470 fish

Shadyside Pond (Madison County) – 1,000 fish

Monroe Lake (Monroe County) – 53,750 fish

Hardy Lake (Scott County) – 7,000 fish

Patoka Lake (Dubois County) – 44,000 fish

Please note anticipated stock numbers are not always realized due to production issues and other circumstances. Worster Lake, Shadyside Pond, Monroe Lake, Hardy Lake and Patoka Lake are good spots for beginner anglers.

For more information on hybrid striped bass, visit wildlife.IN.gov/3386.htm.

Learn about astronomy at Patoka Lake star party

Learn about the sun and stars and create a unique work of art during Patoka Lake's 28th annual star party on Saturday, July 27.

The day starts with participants learning how to make a solar bead bracelet from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The beads are clear inside and will change colors due to light from the sun. Cost is $2 per bracelet.

There will be several events happening from 6 p.m. to sunset. During this time, people will be able to get photos with full-size astronaut cutouts in honor of the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 moon landing and safely be able to view the sun through filtered telescopes.

At 7 p.m. members of the Louisville and Evansville astronomical societies, as well as the Stonebelt Stargazers of Bedford, will present a program titled "The Wonders of the Cosmos." At 8 p.m. there will be an interactive tour of the night sky.

From 9 to 10 p.m. telescopes will be set up for public observations of the sky. Amateur astronomers will share their knowledge of the solar system and galaxy. There will also be special video camera and telescope equipment to allow stargazing for people who are visually disabled.

The entrance fee of $7 per vehicle for Indiana residents, or $9 for out-of-state vehicles is required for the Newton-Stewart State Recreation Area, located north of Wickliffe, Highway 164.

Patoka Lake (on.IN.gov/patokalake) is at 3084 N. Dillard Road, Birdseye, IN 47513.
