Employment by Sector

Private sector employment has grown by 37,000 over the year and 6,800 over the previous month. The monthly increase is primarily due to gains in the Private Educational and Health Services (5,000) and the Professional and Business Services (1,100) sectors. Gains were partially offset by losses in the Manufacturing (-700) and the Construction (-500) sectors. Total private employment reached a preliminary record highpoint of 2,750,700, which is 18,600 above the December 2018 peak. The June 2019 peak, like all data within this report, is subject to monthly revisions and annual benchmarking.

Don Graber, with Ebenezer Youth Camp, inquired about the waterline leading up to the camp, that will run down the middle of the road. The camp will take full responsibility for any future road repairs which are a result of a waterline break under the road. Commissioner Boyd requested Attorney Lett amend the letter to state that East Fork Water and Martin County will hold no responsibility for repairs should the water line break under the road. Permission to proceed with the project was granted by the commissioners.

Commissioner George asked Attorney Lett if there is currently an ordinance on junk vehicles sitting on properties and Attorney Lett stated he will research it.

Auditor Bobbie Abel submitted a contract for elevator repairs submitted by Oracle Elevators in the amount of $537. The commissioners approved the repairs.

The commissioners approved the employee safety manual at the auditor's recommendation.

The auditor also informed the commissioners that the salary and wage committee discussed that next year is a leap year which will in turn increase the number of pays from 26 to 27 for the 2020 pay cycle. A letter was emailed to the commissioners with the state's suggestion on how to account for the increased pays. Attorney Lett suggested the auditor's office provide a proposal of options at the next commissioners' meeting.

Attorney Lett advised the Commissioners that a letter in support of the cabin owners in the flood zone on West River Road has been completed and with a few changes, will be ready to be mailed to various government officials.

The next commissioners' meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, July 30 at 5:30 p.m.

A man walks into a restaurant with a full-grown ostrich behind him. The waitress asks for their orders.

The man says, "A hamburger, fries and a coke," and turns to the ostrich, "What's yours?"

"I'll have the same," says the ostrich. A short time later the waitress returns with the order. "That will be $9.40 please," and the man reaches into his pocket and pulls out the exact change for payment.

The next day, the man and the ostrich come again, and the man says, "A hamburger, fries, and a coke."

The ostrich says, "I'll have the same." Again, the man reaches into his pocket and pays with the exact change. This becomes routine until the two enter again.

"The usual?" asks the waitress.

"No, this is Friday night, so I will have a steak, baked potato, and salad," says the man.

"Same," says the ostrich.

Shortly the waitress brings the order and says, "That will be $32.62." Once again, the man pulls the exact change out of his pocket and places it on the table.

The waitress can't hold back her curiosity any longer. "Excuse me, sir. How do you manage to always come up with the exact change out of your pocket every time?"

"Well," says the man, "Several years ago I was cleaning the attic and found an old lamp. When I rubbed it, a Genie appeared and offered me two wishes. My first was that if I ever had to pay for anything, I would just put my hand in my pocket and the right amount of money would always be there."

"That's brilliant!" says the waitress. "Most people would wish for a million dollars or something, but you'll always be as rich as you want for as long as you live!"

"That's right. Whether it's a gallon of milk or a Rolls Royce, the exact money is always there," says the man.

The waitress asks, "But sir, what's with the ostrich?"

The man sighs, pauses, and answers, "My second wish was for a tall chick with long legs who agrees with everything I say."

THOUGHTS

*I wonder if clouds ever look down on us and say, "Hey, look. That one is shaped like an idiot.

*One minute you're really young and cool ... and the next you're excited about a new vacuum. There's no in between.

*No amount of evidence will ever sway an idiot.

*Stop saying they didn't teach that in school. Yes, they did - you were talking, not listening.

*Walmart – the only place on earth you can get a haircut, eye exam, ice cream sandwich, tires for your car, and witness a real life "what not to wear" episode.

*Passenger: How often do planes

Stewardess: Just once.

*Therapist: Your wife says you never buy her flowers. Is that true?

Him: To be honest, I never knew she sold flowers.

*Sometimes you might feel like no one's there for you, but you know who's always there for you? Laundry. Laundry will always be there for you.

*I am proud to announce that I completed the 1st item on my bucket list. I have the bucket.

Mid-States Corridor Project Tier 1 Environmental Study meetings scheduled

The Mid-States Corridor Project proval of the preferred corridor. examines the concept of an improved highway connection in southwest Indiana. The Mid-States Corridor is anticipated to begin at the William H. The Mid-States Corridor Regional Development Authority (RDA) and the Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) have started a Tier 1 Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), which is required by the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) for major construction projects that will include federal funding.

The Tier 1 EIS will include the following:

-Analysis and comparison of benefits, impacts and costs of a range of reasonable options to identify a preferred corridor for the proposed facility

-Assessment of the social, economic and environmental impacts of each corridor, along with consideration of ways to avoid, minimize or mitigate impacts

-Identification of the project's purpose and need, and consideration of a variety of options to meet both, including improvements to and use of existing facilities and construction of new roadway facilities

-Analysis of a no-build alternative to serve as a baseline for comparison

The Tier 1 EIS is expected to take just over two years to complete with a Record of Decision (ROD) expected in summer 2021. The ROD is the Federal Highway Administration's final ap-

After a Tier 1 ROD, a more detailed Tier 2 environmental study will determine specific alignments and preferred alternatives within the selected Tier 1

Public involvement is a key part of the environmental study process. The first of several public meetings are planned for early August. The meetings will introduce members of the community to the Mid-States Corridor Project, explain the tiered study approach, describe the potential preliminary corridors and introduce ways for the public to stay informed and provide feedback.

Meetings are planned for Washington, French Lick and Jasper at the following locations:

Monday, August 5: Washington High School, 608 E. Walnut St., Washington, in the Auditorium (Enter through Gate 4 off 7th St.) from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. (local time).

Thursday, August 8: Jasper High School, 1600 St. Charles St., Jasper, in the cafeteria, from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. (local time).

Each meeting features an open house format. A short project presentation is planned for 6 p.m. each evening. Project team members will be at multiple stations to answer questions and comment cards will be available to offer public input. Additional public meetings will be held at project milestones.

MARTIN COUNTY JOURNAL Wednesday, July 24, 2019 Page 7

n the Garden By Ralph Purkhiser urdue University Master Gardener

Southern Indiana is a hotbed for allergies. There is good reason for this. Our area is host to a large number of plants, thanks to our wet and humid climate. The climate is also good for mold spores, another major allergen. Allergies certainly make gardening a challenge, but it is possible to find a balance that allows most people to do some gardening, despite allergies.

The first thing to realize is that allergies have different causes. The tradition of hay fever, caused by pollen in the air, is not the only type of allergic reaction. Strong scents may trigger allergic reactions and allergies may also be caused by what one eats or drinks. Knowing what triggers your allergies is key to being able to manage them and to find a way to enjoy gardening.

If you suffer from hay fever, you should eliminate plants that release pollen into the air. Many people are surprised to learn that most flowers do not release pollen into the air. The purpose of flowers is to attract pollinators, which will carry the pollen to other flowers and pollinate them. The pollen of such plants is large and sticky and does not travel through the air. Therefore, such plants are not the cause of hay fever. It seems that each year I am questioned about the abundant goldenrod in my meadow, and I have to explain that goldenrod is not the plant causing hay fever. It just happens to bloom at the same time that ragweed releases its pollen into the air. Most of the plants that release air-borne pollen have insignificant blooms. Therefore, if you see a bee, butterfly or other pollinator on a flower, it is probably safe to have that plant in your garden.

However, I must point out that strong scents may also trigger allergic reactions, and flowers that have strong smells may, indeed, cause allergy problems for some people. If that is the case for you, eliminate the flowers with strong scents. Some roses have a strong scent, but many of the hybrid roses do not have any scent. A little research will let you know which plants to use, if strong scents bother you.

Grasses are plants that release pollen into the air and may be the cause of many allergy problems. If you are sensitive to them, you may want to avoid the use of ornamental grasses or cut them back to prevent them from forming plumes. Lawn grasses should be kept short and mown often to prevent blooming. Some of the worst culprits for allergies are weeds. Keeping the weeds down in your garden will help make it more allergy-friendly. I guess that should be incentive to get out there are pull weeds. Pulling weeds before the bloom means reducing airborne pollen and also prevents them from forming seeds, so you may be able to reduce weeds in future years.

Trees are another problem. In general, fruit trees and ornamental trees that have showy flowers do not release pollen in the air. Most nut trees, hardwoods and evergreens do release pollen in the air. However, some people are more sensitive to some pollens than others and testing is the only way to find out for sure which trees are problematic. (I have allergies to willows and pines but am fine with most other trees.)

Spores are also known allergies for some people. Ferns of all types release spores, so eliminating ferns from the landscape maybe necessary for some people. Mold also spreads by spores and the biggest culprit of mold spore in the garden is shredded mulch. If mold triggers allergies for you, you may want to consider using gravel or other inorganic mulches or use groundcovers instead of mulch.

Allergens tend to be highest in the early morning hours, so avoiding the garden at that time may help. Also, allergens carried on the wind may travel a long way. One study using DNA to track pollen found that pollen from a plant was found 400 miles away, so avoid being outside on windy days.

The combination of knowing what causes your allergies and proper medications may allow you to enjoy gardening despite allergies. For me, it has been a way of life. Despite the allergies, I cannot imagine my life without

New Hunting Guide License now required

The Indiana General Assembly passed a new law this year that is now in effect (Senate Enrolled Act 363) requiring a Hunting Guide License for those that provide hunting guide services for money or other goods or services (barter or trade). The license costs $100 a year. The application for the license and monthly report form can be found at wildlife.IN.gov/2371.

While hunting guides (also called outfitters) have not been licensed by the Indiana DNR in the past, fishing guides have been licensed for a number of years.

The Indiana General Assembly also modified language for penalties as it pertains to guides.

Violations include knowingly or intentionally guiding an individual on private property to hunt without consent of the landowner. The laws can be found at the same website, wildlife.IN-.gov/2371.htm.
