County council raises income tax to 2.5 percent

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

The Martin County Council voted on Monday night, September 14, to raise the income tax rate by .75 percent. The new rate will be 2.50 percent, effective at the start of next year. A person making $30,000 a year will pay $750 a year in local tax, starting next year. Prior to the increase, that individual was paying $525.

40 residents were in attendance at Monday night's public hearing, several of which were county employees.

Prior to the start of the public hearing, the council, in their regular monthly meeting, voted to approve a tax abatement request for WestGate 8, owned by Dale Ankrom, that will soon house ManTech. The new building will cost $2.765 million and the company will be hiring 40 employees once in operation, paying $2 million in salaries. Some members of the audience questioned why the council would approve a tax abatement and then turn around and raise income taxes on Martin County residents. Council Member Warren Albright replied that if the county wants to bring in business, they have to offer incentives. If not, companies would choose to land in Daviess or Greene counties, in their portion of the WestGate Tech Park.

The abatement, for real property of $2.765 million, would be in effect for 10 years. The company would start out paying zero taxes on the property and then each year, that would go up by 10 percent.

Judge Lynne Ellis, who was in the audience, asked how much tax that the county would be losing over the 10-year period. Council Member Albright replied that they county would lose none because if they didn't do the abatement, the company would not settle in Martin County. Judge Ellis responded saying that this was not the question she asked and again wanted to know how much tax would be lost at the end of the 10 years. The council members did not know. It was mentioned, however, that any taxes taken in from the property would go into a TIF district fund that can only be used to improve that area of WestGate. The county council set up the TIF district several years ago. The property tax money does not go into the regular county coffers.

County Attorney Dave Lett said the employees hired would be paying local income taxes into the county. This prompted a debate with Lett and members of the audience. Rhonda Sanders, county recorder, noted that the only income tax Martin County would receive would be from employees who were residents of the county. Lett disagreed saying that the worker pays income taxes based on where they work, not where they live. County Auditor Bobbie Abel was asked to settle the dispute. Abel said that in-

City council approves paying for StatFlight for residents

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

The Loogootee City Council met Monday, September 14 and again heard from Jill Spaulding, with Stat Flight. Spaulding came back to the council to see if they would like a county-wide membership to cover any household in Martin County, if they need a medical helicopter flight. The cost is $6 per household, and with 4,198 households in the county, the total would be $25,188. Loogootee residents' portion would be $7,488.

The service would cover any Martin County resident flown from Martin or any county adjacent to Martin County. Residents have an option to upgrade their membership at a cost of $35 to be covered in any other location.

Spaulding was asked what would happen if another medical helicopter company was called and handled the flight. Spaulding said it would not be covered.

Council Member Teresa Nolley questioned whether people who have coverage with Air Evac or Lifeline will cancel their service now and potentially cause an issue with those companies.

Spaulding said they do what is right for the patient and recommends residents keep their coverage with other services because they can't guarantee they would be first call. She said that Stat Flight will be moving a base to Huntingburg in 2021 but that doesn't mean they will always be the closest to respond if dispatched.

Spaulding said the bill for a medical flight can be "catastrophic" due to how much it costs and residents need to consider getting covered by all companies that could be called.

Mayor Noel Harty said the county's trustees were approached about helping cover the cost. A meeting was held and trustees or representatives from Lost River, Mitcheltree, Rutherford, Center, and Hamblen township attended, along with representatives from Crane and Shoals. The only one not in attendance was Perry Township Trustee Jason Hennette. The mayor said after that meeting, all entities were on board to help cover their residents in the contract. Perry Township, he said, is up in the air.

Council Member Nolley said that with the amount of money the trustees have in

COVID-19 testing

COVID-19 testing is available this week at the Martin County Community Building at 2668 US Hwy 50, Loogootee, on the fairgrounds, through Friday, September 18, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily and Saturday, September 19, 9 a.m.-2 p.m.

The drive-thru clinic is free and confidential for anyone over the age of 2 years. Testing is done by the Indiana Department of Health.

come tax is paid to the county were the employee lives, not where they work.

Council Member Buck Stiles asked if there was a way to have the company hire at least 50 percent Martin County residents. Attorney Lett replied that this would not be possible at this stage. Council Member Albright noted that Indian Creek Quarries had a stipulation in their abatement that they would hire a percentage of county employees however they couldn't get Martin County residents to apply. The quarry, therefore, couldn't hold up their agreement in the abatement.

After more discussion, the council unanimously approved the abatement request.

Other questions were asked by the audience including whether the county council had a plan for how to proceed with tax money if the increase was approved. Judge Ellis said that a few years ago, when the county increased the income tax last time, department heads requested the council do incremental increases in the income tax to avoid a big hit all at once. They had also suggested the council come up with a long-term plan, but it was never done. She also questioned why the council continuously votes down implementing a wheel tax, which she said is much needed. She added that she has been waiting for 30 years to have a drivable road to her residence and she has yet to get one.

The council was also asked if they could put a sunset clause into the tax increase resolution so that once the county gets past the shortfall due to COVID, they could reduce the taxes back down. The council never made a decision on the sunset clause.

In the end, Council Member Buck Stiles made a motion to approved the tax increase at .75 percent with Council Member Randy Winger seconding the motion. Council Members Barb McFeaters, Richard Summers and Sherri Bowling also voted in favor. Council Members Keith Gibson and Warren Albright voted against. Albright said he was in favor of a .50 percent increase but not .75 percent.

Also during the regular monthly meeting, the council approved the following additional appropriation requests:

-$6,000 for the coroner's office to do autopsies

-$4,000 for the jail's janitorial expenses including a water softener for $1,521

-$20,000 to cover the contract to provide medical service to inmates. Auditor Abel said the contract was underbudgeted for this year.

-$42,000 for the sheriff's department as a transfer from funds received for providing dispatch services for the City of Loogootee for the past three years so the department could pay for another vehicle for the department. Council Members Buck Stiles and Sherri Bowling voted against this appropriation however it passed 5-2. Council Member Bowling said the sheriff's department has purchased five new vehicles this year and she felt it was excessive as she drives an 11-year old vehicle.

-$300,000 from the MVH (Motor Vehicle Highway) fund to the cumulative bridge fund to cover bridge work including $104,000 for erosion repair of Brooks Bridge. Residents in the audience questioned why the council would approve paying that much money to repair a bridge that was rumored to be closing. Auditor Abel replied that the bridge was rehabbed with federal aid a decade ago and the county is contractually obligated to keep it repaired, regardless of whether it remains opened or closes.

for classroom items

The board approved the online Medical Terminology dual credit course through the school's partnership with Orleans and Mitchell. They have three Shoals students who will be enrolled.

The board approved the custodian team leader job description, the COVID online school coordinator job description and the high ability coordinator job description.

The robotics team requested to recycle the old 3D printer to use for parts. The board approved.

The Martin County Auditor requested to use the school cafeteria on September 14 for a county budget hearing. The board approved.

The professional growth and evaluation plan was presented to the board for the first reading.

Superintendent Dr. Roush reported on several grants that the school has received in the past few months including a grant from Duke Energy for the band department, three grants from the Martin County Community Foundation for COVID expenses, hot spots, and a grant for the band department. The school also received the Indiana Secured Schools Safety grant for $31,000 to help pay for the school resource officer and $71,000 from the Governor's Emergency Education Fund to help cover technology costs.

Dr. Roush was excited to share that all students will receive free breakfast and lunch until December 31 due to a grant from the USDA.

Dr. Roush reported that Shoals will be offering a joint dual credit course with Mitchell and Orleans. The course is called Medical Terminology and is offered virtually to nursing students from all three corporations. Dr. Roush said this collaboration is groundbreaking across the state and truly something to be proud of and will set an example for many other corporations.

Finally, Roush reported, the school plans to hold a vaping convocation in November for middle school and high school students as well as a parent session in the evening.

The meeting was adjourned at 6:34 p.m.

surplus, she would think they would help. The mayor agreed saying Perry Township has $270,000 in surplus funds.

The council approved $7,488 to come out of the LOIT (Local Option Income Tax) public safety fund to cover City of Loogootee residents.

The council decided to hold off on Superintendent Bo Wilson's request to purchase a new 60-inch zero turn mower for $9,549.96, to replace the Cub Cadet Wilson said they have had for 15 years. Council Member Rick Norris said mowing season is almost over this year and the city has two working mowers so he thinks it should wait until next year since the city has just raised water and sewer rates.

Wilson then said the park board offered to purchase the mower.

They also decided against purchasing a new utility truck, at Wilson's request to replace their current 2003 model. The quotes ranged from $43,000-$44,800 for the utility truck which includes a snowplow, safety light and a back-up alarm.

Council Member Norris again said they need to hold off on purchases since they just raised water and sewer rates and they need to discuss salaries and take care of the employees first. The rest of the council agreed.

Three residents came back to the board of works and council to request the use of fourwheelers in the city. The residents felt they should not be ticketed for driving their ATV to the county line, where ATVs are allowed. Police Chief Kelly Rayhill said he doesn't mind residents driving their ATVs to the county line or to get gas but doesn't want them driving them around the city recreationally. Council Member Rick Norris asked how this would be enforced and if there would be an age restriction. Chief Rayhill replied that ATV drivers have to be licensed, but the police department doesn't have the time to monitor all fourwheeler owners. The council decided to allow the new rules and see how it goes although many expressed concern.

John Holland, an asphalt consultant and estimator, talked to the council about services he provides. He currently provides services to the City of Washington and his rate is $30 per hour. The council decided to think over his proposal. Bo Wilson said he thinks it would be a beneficial service as Holland is very knowledgeable about road ratings.

Staci Dunn, with Matrix Integration, provided a proposal to the board of public works to provide cybersecurity and other upgrades to the town hall computer system. The cost of the upgrades is $4,015.59 and the cost to purchase new equipment would be $1,113.43. The board decided to table a decision until next month.

Clint Roos, with Midwestern Engineers, reported that the city passed the environmental compliance needed to start street and stormwater improvement projects related to the Community Crossings grant. He said they had to get the plans approved by CSX since some work will be done within the railroad's right of way. CSX wanted $72,000 initially for work to be done in their right of way, however they were negotiated down to $41,220 which Roos said is comparable to the amount paid on other projects they have worked on. CSX also charged an application review fee of $4,700 and a protective liability fee of $3,600. The council approved all the fees.

The council also approved a $30,600 change order for requirements needed to continue with the project.

The council approved a contract with Midwestern Engineers to do design, permitting and bidding on the upcoming water and sewage projects. For sewage works, the total fee would be estimated at $702,700. This includes a preliminary engineering report, asset management plan, system wide smoke testing along with design, bidding, general observation of construction and project representative inspection services for all projects in the sewage works BAN. The fee for water projects would be around $449,000. This includes a preliminary engineering report, asset management plan along with design, bidding, general observation of structure and project representative inspection services for all projects in the water works BAN.

The council approved paying Jameson Hibbs, director of West Boggs Park, $5,000 to update the city's park and recreation master plan. In order to qualify for grants, the plan has to be updated. The mayor said he asked SIDC and Midwestern Engineers and they were not interested in doing it. The mayor said that updating the plan is not the park board's responsibility since they are volunteers. The money will come out of the park and rec funds.

The council approved increasing salaries for next year for all city employees by 50 cents. Council Member Nolley said they only received next year's budget that night and would like to have time to look at it. The council went ahead and voted to approve the 50-cent raise with Council Members Nolley and Tim Lawrence voting against.

The council approved renewing the contract with the humane society for 2021 for $6,000.

The mayor said that trick or treating will be held on Halloween, Saturday, October 31, from 6-8 p.m. and a parade will start at 5 p.m.

Tim Hudson asked what is to be done about residents who have trash accumulation on their properties and tall grass. He said there have been numerous complaints about the city failing to do anything. The mayor said the issue is the city doesn't have a contract with any companies to go in and clean up the properties as needed. The property owner is sent a letter and given five days to clean up. They are fined for each day the issue is not corrected thereafter, however Hudson said many do not pay or cannot afford to pay. The fines are put on as a lien to the property.

The mayor suggested meeting with Hudson the next morning and going over the properties in question and coming up with some companies to contact. Hudson said there are nine properties, right now, that are in pretty serious condition.

The following building permits were approved since the last meeting

-Haley Burch on High Street for a privacy fence

-Martin County Humane Society on North Oak Street for a building addition and sign

-Raymond and Tina Chesser on East Main Street for a front stoop

-Marie Truelove in Sunset Trailer Court for the addition of a mobile home

THOUGHTS

*You know when you buy a bag of salad and it gets all brown and soggy? Cookies don't do that.

*In the Midwest, we don't say, "I'm leaving." We slap both hands on our knees and say, "Well, I spouse" and then continue talking for 30 more minutes.

As summer winds down and the weather begins to cool, it is easy to spend a lot of hours in the garden. It may be one of the best times of the year to just sit and enjoy the cool evening breezes and watch a sunset. Of course, for me, my favorite venue for doing that is the top of the cliff and my moon garden. The white flowers in that garden really do stand out in the dim light of the evening and as the dusk gives way to darkness, the lights of the solar light fountain come on. It really is an enchanting way to end a day.

Many plants mature at this time of year. The goal of every flower is to make seed to create more plants. That is true of weeds as well. To prevent weeds next year, it is important to get the weeds out of the garden before they begin to drop seeds. Do not put such plant material in your compost bin, as those seeds may not be killed if the compost is not hot enough.

Decisions must be made concerning many other plants in the garden. Perennials, such as phlox and coneflowers, will self-seed if allowed to stand. Birds may carry seeds to other areas around the garden. If that is not a problem for you, my advice is to allow those plants to stand. They will provide some winter interest and will be a source of nourishment for the birds. If you do not want such plants to self-sow, you need to remove the spent flowers and dispose of them.

Shrubs have also put on a lot of new growth over the summer, and I have had several people who have asked me about trimming the shrubs. Actually, it is time to oil up the trimmers and put them away for the year. The only trimming that should be done now is to cut out any damaged material. There are several reasons that it is a bad time for pruning. One is that many plants set their flowers on the wood the plant produced the previous year and pruning now will take off the flowers for next year. This is especially true of shrubs that flower in early spring. Another reason is that pruning serves to produce new growth. At this time of the year, that new growth will not have enough time to harden off before cold weather arrives and will likely be damaged by freezing temperatures. Such damage could permanently harm the plant, resulting in a misshapen shrub or even leading to the death of the plant. The next opportunity for pruning will come after we have had a killing frost. At that time, shrubs other than those that flower early in the spring may be trimmed and shaped.

To be completely honest, I did tell one reader to go ahead and trim a shrub. The shrub about which he asked was a burning bush, which is an invasive plant. I advised him to trim it down to the ground.

NRC expands nature preserve

The Natural Resources Commission (NRC), during its bi-monthly meeting on Tuesday, approved the addition of 57.12 acres to Elkhart Bog Nature Preserve in Elkhart County, adding to the existing 159 acres previously dedicated.

This action expands the area of protected bog and associated rare species by adding bog habitat as well as dry forest and restored sand prairie.

Elkhart Bog is a large wetland formed on top of an old glacial lake. A mat of sedges and sphagnum moss grew across the top of the lake, creating a floating mat of peat, plants, and plant roots. Flora of interest includes purple pitcher plants, bog rosemary, green adder's mouth orchids, and winterberry holly. Sandhill cranes, spotted turtles, Blanding's turtles, and marsh wrens are native to the area.

In other action, the NRC:

-Approved the Hearing Officer's report regarding the Petition for the Establishment of the Turkey Creek Dam and Dike Conservancy District in Kosciusko County.

-Granted final adoption concerning amendments to 312 IAC 9, biennial wildlife rulemaking package; LSA #20-069(F); Administrative Cause No. 19-042D, which makes changes to rules addressing several licenses and permits but most significantly adds ruffed grouse to the list of state endangered species of birds and approves for the deer firearms hunting season the use of air rifles and air bows that meet certain specifications.

-Granted final adoption for amendments to 312 IAC 9-6, 312 IAC 9-7, and 312 IAC 9-9, biennial fisheries rulemaking package; LSA #20-081(F); Administrative Cause No. 19-037D. Included in this package are the addition of a variety of definitions for sport fishing equipment such as trotlines, and the addition of cisco and Western sand darter and removal of Northern brook lamprey from the endangered list. Also included are amendments addressing the bag, possession and size limits for black bass taken from Bixler, Henderson, Little Long and Round Lakes in Noble County and for saugeye taken from Glenn Flint Lake in Putnam County. Additionally, the package includes amendments addressing equipment for sport fishing on the Ohio River and changes to the daily bag limit, possession limit and size limit for walleye, sauger and saugeye taken from the Ohio.

-Approved final readoption of 312 IAC 5, providing standards for the use of a boat on public waters of Indiana; LSA #20-355(F); Administrative Cause No. 20-LE-003.

-Approved readoption of 312 IAC 9.5, providing standards for article that establishes an option to request an in-lieu fee to mitigate adverse impacts to fish, wildlife, or botanical resources for activities authorized in permits issued; LSA #20-410(F); Administrative Cause No. 20-FW-006.

-Approved readoption of 312 IAC 10, providing standards for the delineation and regulation of floodplains to decrease existing flood damages, mitigate future flood damages, and promote the health, safety, and welfare.

The final NRC meeting for 2020 will be held Nov. 17 in Indianapolis.

More details on all actions taken by the NRC and supporting documents can be found at nrc.IN.gov/2354.htm.

The NRC is an autonomous board that addresses topics pertaining to the DNR and the NRC Division of Hearings.

NRC members include the DNR director, heads of three other state agencies (Indiana Department of Environmental Management, Indiana Office of Tourism Development, and the Indiana Department of Transportation), six citizens appointed by the governor on a bipartisan basis, the chair of the DNR's advisory council, and the president of the Indiana Academy of Science. The Academy of Science president and the agency heads, other than the DNR director, may appoint proxies to serve the commission in their absences.

Celebrate National Public Lands Day

National Public Lands Day is Saturday, September 26, and during that weekend Hoosiers can celebrate by supporting their favorite DNR property by doing volunteer work or simply visiting.

National Public Lands Day is the nation's largest single-day volunteer effort involving public lands. State park properties will have programs for visitors to volunteer as individuals or as part of many events across Indiana, but they can also choose to visit and just enjoy their favorite areas.

Outdoor enthusiasts can also combine visiting and volunteering by grabbing a bucket and taking on the five-gallon challenge, www.facebook.com/groups/1655438817928032/

September 26 is also National Hunting and Fishing Day, an opportunity to celebrate the role of hunting, recreational shooting, trapping, and fishing in conservation. In addition to participating in volunteer activities, sportsmen and sportswomen can take along someone new as they enjoy the last Free Fishing Day of the year (dnr.IN.gov/fishfree) or share their passion with youth by participating in Youth Deer Season (wildlife.IN.gov/9323.htm).

On Sunday, September 27, Indiana State Parks, Indiana State Forests, and State Recreation Areas will offer free admission where entrance fees are normally charged.

The entire weekend serves as a reminder that public lands are places for outdoor recreation, conservation, and making memories with families and friends. Events include hikes, pioneer activities, crafts, Learn to Fish events (on.IN.gov/learn2fish), and live bird shows.

For a complete list of programs, see calendar.dnr.IN.gov. Information about how to be a DNR volunteer can be found at on.IN.gov/dnrvolunteer.

Making A Difference

By Curt Johnson
MCCF Director

-- PPE FOR MARTIN COUNTY --
I've talked before about the Martin County Community Foundation's (MCCF) Emergency Relief Fund (ERF) and how the United Way of South Central Indiana (UWSC) and the MCCF have used this fund to help with COVID-19 relief efforts in Martin County.

Our nonprofit partners serving Martin County have an understanding of the ramifications of the healthcare crisis and the impact upon people in our community. The ERF is to help these organizations meet their increasing and unplanned needs. We have a "Rapid Response" application and process on our webpage to facilitate, review and approve applications as quickly as we can.

-- FOR 4-H, LAW ENFORCEMENT --
A part of these grant funds went to provide face masks and hand sanitizer to some of our organizations in need. We've already distributed some of this Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to volunteer fire departments, recovery groups, and food pantries in the county. This week I'm glad to share that we've also been able to distribute PPE to the Martin County 4-H, Martin County Sheriff, Shoals Police Department, and Loogootee Police Department.
