Alliance trying to raise $40,000 to build Hindostan shelter house

Martin County residents will soon have a new space to gather if this crowdfunding campaign reaches its goal of raising $40,000 by December 5, 2023. If successful, the project led by Martin County Alliance for Economic Growth, Inc. will receive a matching grant as part of the Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority's (IHCDA) CreatINg Places program. As of Wednesday morning, the campaign had raised $27,375 with $12,625 left to be raised.

"The addition of amenities to Hindostan will encourage recreation, promote healthy lifestyles and improve the overall quality of life in Martin County," said Lt. Gov. Suzanne Crouch, Indiana's Secretary of Agriculture and Rural Development. "This project will bring immediate positive change to the area and will have a lasting impact on all residents."

Funds from this campaign will be used to build a new 30x60 shelter house with a capacity of 72 people and create an inviting and open access gathering space, with a large two-sided fire pit and outdoor seating.

"On behalf of Martin County Alliance, we are so excited about this project," said Jessica Potts, Executive Director for Martin County Alliance for Economic Growth. "Hindostan Falls is such a beautiful area that holds so much of our county's history. We've seen firsthand how the county and surrounding communities have enjoyed Hindostan Days the past two years. Now, we are excited to add a gathering space for everyone to enjoy the area year-round."

"It's an all or nothing grant, so we have to raise the full $40,000 by December 5 to get matched," said Potts.

The shelter house project is a quality of place initiative led by the Alliance. Hindostan Days, a one-day festival that celebrates the community that was the original county seat, has been such a huge success the last three years. The Alliance feels that having a shelter house in place for people to gather, and picnic, will increase the traffic even more in the area. Hindostan Falls was settled in 1818 and eventually had 1,200 residents. A sickness wiped out the town in 1828 and it was never occupied again.

The 200-acre property is now owned and managed by the Indiana Department of Natural Resources. The shelter house is a quality of place initiative being undertaken by the Alliance. The shelter house will offer a place for people to gather for various events.

Since the CreatINg Places program began in 2016, projects have raised more than $9.3 million in public funds and an additional $7.7 million in matching IHCDA funds. The program is available to projects located in Indiana communities. Non-profit entities (with 501c3 or 501c4 status) and local units of government are eligible to apply. Eligible projects must have a minimum total development cost of $10,000, where the recipient will receive $5,000 in IHCDA matching funds should it successfully raise $5,000 through Patronicity. IHCDA will provide matching grant funds up to $50,000 per project.

Contributions can be made online, Projects | Hindostan Falls | Patronicity or by mailing a check to the Alliance, 2664 US 50, Loogootee, IN 47553. Please write Hindostan shelter house in the memo line.

Shoals Town Council discusses pickleball, resident complaints

The Shoals Town Council met October 2. Those in attendance were Council Members Cary D Albright, Roger Abel Jr., and Micky Crew; Clerk-Treasurer Sierra Rutledge, Gerald Horton, Tanner Diamond, Donald and Cindy Mullins, and John Chattin.

Council President Cary Albright opened the floor to Gerald Horton who was in attendance. Horton said he is part of a group that is utilizing the pickleball courts at the ballpark and there is a large crack going across both courts. Horton said he and those he plays with would like to seek permission to volunteer and repair the cracks themselves. The board approved Horton to repair the cracks and thanked him. Albright stated the town would cover the cost of the materials and reimburse Horton. Horton stated the cost of the materials would be minimal, but he would provide a receipt. He said the bigger issue is the fencing around the courts that needs to be addressed. He said if replaced maybe a shorter fence could be looked at. After discussion Council Member Albright said the board would get with the park board to look at the fencing and a replacement plan. Horton said around 12 players are meeting week- (See 'COUNCIL' on page 2)

Thirty rural organizations across Indiana, including Shoals, will receive funding to host arts and cultural events and programs connected to the 2024 solar eclipse, an event that will blanket parts of Indiana in total darkness on April 8.

With funding support from the Simons Foundation as part of its In the Path of Totality initiative, the Indiana University Center for Rural Engagement is leading IU's rural solar eclipse initiative, providing staff support, resources and outreach for community activities that unite residents around the historic astronomical event. More than 80 organizations in communities with a population under 50,000 applied for $2,000 micro-grants, facilitated by Regional Opportunity Initiatives, to support the implementation of eclipse activities.

The Town of Shoals will use their funds for the "Total Eclipse in the Heart...of Shoals" 2024 Total Eclipse event. The Shoals Business Association has partnered with the Friends of the Shoals Public Library for an eclipse watching event at the Shoals Ballpark.

Local artists and craftsmen, local businesses, live music, viewing telescopes and more are on the planning agenda. More information will become available as the event draws closer.

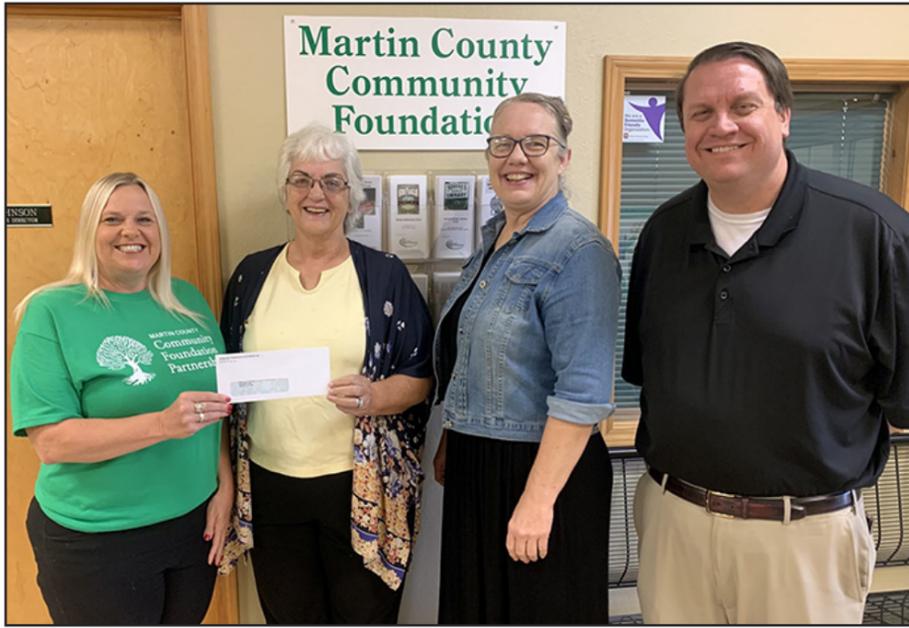

"Rural communities are implementing creative plans to connect residents and visitors as we all gather to witness this historic event," said Kerry Thomson, executive director of the Center for Rural Engagement. "We look forward to collaborating (See 'GRANT' on page 2)

The path of totality of the April 8 solar eclipse will cover a segment of North America, including a large part of Indiana, in complete darkness for nearly 4 minutes as the moon shadows the sun. The next time Indiana falls in the path of totality of a solar eclipse will be 2099.

More than 1 million visitors are expected to flock to Indiana in the days leading up to April 8. Communities small and large could more than triple their population numbers during the event. To help local leaders and residents prepare, the Center for Rural Engagement published the 2024 Total Solar Eclipse Planning Toolkit. It features planning resources and safety information about viewing the eclipse, managing crowds and leveraging the eclipse to bolster community interest and capacity for arts and cultural events into the future.

COUNCIL

ly to play and the group keeps growing and the courts are well utilized.

Tanner Diamond came before the council with a complaint that cars were speeding on his road, Ravine Street, heavily. Diamond asked if a sign could be put up. Donald Mullins, from the audience, said they are having the same issue on Lower Circle Drive. After a short discussion, the board stated they would have a conversation to get more coverage in the area.

Donald Mullins came before the council concerning an invoice he had received from the town for an antenna replacement on his water meter. Mullins stated he reported the damage to the town but didn't do the damage so he doesn't feel he should have to pay the fee. Mullins said had he done the damage he would be happy to pay the fee. It was noted that the antenna replacement fee is set by ordinance. After discussion, Councilman Abel made a motion to waive the fee at Mullin's residence with Councilwoman Crew making the second.

John Chattin came before the council asking for an update on his storm water drainage issue at his property located on Low Street. Councilman Abel discussed updates from the previous meeting. After discussion, the board advised Chattin they are all in agreement the issue needs to be fixed and will continue to work towards a solution.

Councilman Albright provided updates from the wastewater improvements project. He said the current work is moving quickly with the subcontractor APTUS and they may work on Saturdays to move even faster.

Albright stated an update on CCMG 2023-1 will be able to be provided after tomorrow as there is a pre-construction meeting with the contractor Temple & Temple Excavating at 11 a.m.

Clerk-Treasurer Rutledge stated that Attorney Lett had advised the deed for the Nu-Tap has been completed and was supposed to be recorded on Monday. Rutledge said she had also been notified by Indiana Landmarks that the grant that was approved to be applied for previously had been submitted.

Shoals Robotics Team to host Pop Up Art Gallery event

The Shoals RoxStars robot team will be hosting a free Pop-Up Art Gallery event on Tuesday, October 17. They are asking local artists to bring a couple of their own self-made paintings, sculptures, carvings, books, and any art-related projects to the Shoals Public Library at 5:30 p.m. for display/sell. The gallery event will be in the basement of the library from 6-7:30 p.m. and open to the public.

The team is doing this as part of their 2023 FIRST FLL robot competition. The project is to get more art opportunities into small towns. Most communities have several people with art/creative talent but have no place to show this talent off to others. Having a Pop-Up art gallery opens the doors for people to enjoy seeing these talents.

They will also be having a Canvas and Cupcake paint night for 12 students who have reserved a spot for that event.

Anyone with questions can contact RoxStars coach Lorna Troutman at 812-797-1567.

Rutledge presented a breakdown of final payment for approval to the contracted mowing of Springhill Cemetery since the town had voted to end the contract in a previously held special session. Councilwoman Crew made a motion to approve the final payment with Councilman Abel making the second.

Rutledge reminded that open enrollment for 2024 benefits would be held on October 24 at Town Hall. Rutledge presented an amended salary & wage ordinance. Councilwoman Crew made a motion to approve with Councilman Abel making the second.

Rutledge presented a meter deposit apply for J. Sanders. Councilwoman Crew made a motion to approve with Councilman Abel making the second.

With no further business Councilman Abel made a motion to adjourn with Councilwoman Crew making the second meeting closed at 6:48 p.m.

The next regular meeting is Monday, November 13 at 5:59 p.m.

COMMISSIONERS

attended the Lost River Fire Department open house on Sunday to celebrate their 25th year. The EMA area coordinator and her supervisor were also in attendance and gave away several things including no-touch thermometers. Deputy Director Andy Ringwald stated he attended a day-long discussion regarding the eclipse on April 8. It was stated that Indiana is expected to have the second largest immigration of people viewing the eclipse, second to Texas. There is concern about traffic after the eclipse is over and there is also concern regarding radio communications. Deputy Director Ringwald stated historically there is a 60 percent chance of clouds in April. He said the Department of Transportation's biggest fear is that it will be cloudy at one end of the state and clear at the other end which will turn into motorists trying to get to where there are no clouds.

Commissioner George stated the burn ban needs to be put back into effect. Once the county does get rain, George asked EMA to reach out to the fire chiefs to see what their areas are like before the ban is lifted. Director Wolf stated the burns the county has had so far have been combine related but there was one today which was possibly a cigarette tossed out the side of a vehicle. A motion was made by Commissioner Summers to declare a burn ban for Martin County effective immediately, seconded by President George. All were in favor.

Commissioner George stated the soil and water board is recommending Teresa Harder be appointed as part-time director. The commissioners approved the recommendation effective October 9.

Auditor Michelle Norris stated the 60-page cybersecurity assessment has been completed by Matrix and has been returned to the cybersecurity assessment team. The team has about a month to review the assessment and there will be a two-hour Zoom meeting to review the results. Auditor Norris stated the budget adoption was completed last night with the council and has been submitted to the state.

With no further business, the meeting was adjourned at 6:01 p.m. The next commissioners' meeting will be held Tuesday, October 17 at 5:30 p.m.

*I eat mostly whole foods: whole pizzas, whole cans of biscuits, whole cakes, whole bags of Doritos, and whole tubs of ice cream.

In the Garden

By Ralph Purkhiser,
Purdue University Master Gardener

Some scattered light frost was reported in southern Indiana Sunday morning, and cooler weather is coming. The recent drought period hastened fall die-back and we will soon be seeing a very different landscape. Spurred by an increased ecological awareness, one may see many pleas that homeowners not cut back the dying flora. Indeed, many insects have by now found winter homes in dead stems and on leaves. Birds will use the plant material for shelter from the coming winter cold and the seeds of many plants are a source of food for birds and other wildlife. Some encourage gardeners to wait until temperatures are consistently in the fifties next spring to remove this year's growth. That sounds like a good excuse to take a vacation from the garden.

However, it is not that simple. While I will leave much of the plant growth standing at Sandhill Gardens, there are some areas where I still feel it is best to remove the dead plant material.

Disease spores and pests also overwinter in plant debris. If you have had any diseases, completely remove all plant material, including raking and bagging the leaves. Dispose of this material away from the garden, or, if you are in an area where burning is possible, burn it. Peonies and roses are often plagued by leaf spot and other fungal diseases, so I would recommend always cutting herbaceous peonies to the ground and raking the leaves around all rose bushes.

Location and the way one uses an area are also valid reasons for cleaning plant debris. The dry plant material will burn quickly, so I recommend cutting and hauling away any plant remains within six feet of a house or other building. I would also recommend cutting back plant matter that borders walkways. As the debris ages, it will wilt down and could become slick and hazardous on walkways.

Homeowners Association rules or subdivision restrictions and covenants may require you to cut back debris. You should have known this before buying the property, so I think following the rules is the proper thing to do. However, some may wish to work to change the rules for the future.

Finally, I recognize that personal preference is a valid reason for cutting plant debris. I like to clear the area in the front of my house, as I will decorate for the holidays in this area. In Southern Indiana, there are enough wild places for food and cover for wildlife, and if you are not a fan of sharing your space with birds, insects and animals, then go ahead and cut back the plants. You may still see some wildlife moving through, but your property is not likely to be home to many animals.

Even if you cut down most or all of the plant debris in your garden, you may still take action to support the insects that overwinter in the debris. If you have a property that borders a wooded area, consider placing the cut material in a loose pile next to the woods. If you have a property that borders a wooded area, consider placing the cut material in a loose pile next to the woods. You could then burn it or chop it for compost next spring after temperatures are in the fifties.

At Sandhill Gardens, I have an area where I place tree limbs and all sorts of debris (except diseased plants), and that area has become a wildlife haven. It lets me have some neat areas during the winter and still provide habitat for the insects, birds and mammals that I enjoy watching in my garden.

Hoosiers are key to stopping poaching

Indiana Conservation Officers encourage Hoosiers to help the Indiana Department of Natural Resources (DNR) put an end to poaching by reporting potential violations to Turn In a Poacher, Inc. (TIP).

TIP is a nonprofit conservation organization that partners with DNR protects fish and wildlife resources by increasing public support and involvement in bringing violators to justice.

A poacher is a thief who illegally steals wildlife that belongs to all Hoosiers. DNR manages wildlife for everyone, and every person can help TIP support DNR efforts by reporting potential violations at 1-800-TIP-IDNR (800-847-4367) or tip.IN.gov. Doing so will help conserve wildlife for future generations.

Call TIP if you see, hear, or learn about poaching or another violation regarding fish and wildlife. If your "TIP" leads to an arrest, you may receive as much as a $500 reward, or you can remain anonymous if you choose. In 2022 TIP received nearly 600 tips and paid thousands of dollars in rewards for tips that have led to the arrest of a suspect.

"Concerned citizens are key in assisting Indiana TIP in the fight against poaching and bringing to justice those who violate fish and wildlife laws," said Col. Steve Hunter, director of DNR Law Enforcement.

Weakening crop prices, high production costs weigh on farmer sentiment

BY KAMI GOODWIN
Purdue University News Service

Agricultural producers' sentiment declined for the second month in a row as the Purdue University/CME Group Ag Economy Barometer index fell 9 points to a reading of 106 in September. Producers expressed concern about their current situation as well as future prospects for their farms. The Current Conditions and Future Expectations indices both declined 10 points to a reading of 98 and 109, respectively. Notably, all three indices stand below their readings from one year ago. This month's Ag Economy Barometer survey was conducted from September 11-15.

"Weakening prices for major crops and ongoing concerns about high production costs and interest rates weighed on producers' minds this month," said James Mintert, the barometer's principal investigator and director of Purdue University's Center for Commercial Agriculture.

Producers continue to point to high input costs as a top concern for their farming operations in the year ahead. One-third of respondents in this month's survey cite it as their number one concern, followed by rising interest rates, chosen by 25% of respondents, and lower crop and/or livestock prices, chosen by 22% of farmers. The percentage of producers choosing lower crop and/or livestock prices has increased since the beginning of the year when just 16% of producers cited it as a top concern.

There was a small uptick in the Farm Capital Investment Index, up 2 points to a reading of 39 in September; however, three-fourths of producers still said now is a bad time for large investments. The primary reasons among those who feel that way is rising interest rates and the high cost of machinery and new construction. Notably, 40 percent of producers who feel it's a bad time to invest cited rising interest rates as a key reason, up from 35 percent last month, and up from 14 percent when this question was first posed in July 2022. This month there was a slight rise in the percentage of producers who said now is a good time to make investments, citing strong cash flows on their farm operations as a primary reason.

The Farm Financial Performance Index was unchanged in September compared to August, leaving the index at a reading of 86. In a nod to how variable conditions have been around the country during this growing season, there were small increases in the percentages of producers who 1) expect better conditions and 2) expect worse financial conditions compared to last year.

Producers remain relatively optimistic about farmland values, which Mintert called surprising given the percentage of respondents who expressed concerns about high input costs, rising interest rates, and the risk of lower crop and livestock prices. The Short-Term Farmland Value Expectations Index was unchanged at a reading of 126, while the long-term index rose 2 points to 153. Respondents who expect farmland values to rise over the next five years continue to point to non-farm investor demand for farmland along with inflation as the top two reasons for farmland values to continue rising.

The September survey included several questions posed to corn and soybean growers to learn more about their perspective on cover crops. Just over half (52 percent) of corn/soybean growers said they currently plant cover crops on a portion of their acreage and, from this group, nearly half (47 percent) said they used cover crops on no more than 25 percent of their acreage. Among those corn and soybean growers who reported having used cover crops, 41 percent said they had used cover crops for five years or less, while 14 percent said they've been using cover crops for more than 20 years. Respondents who use cover crops cited improvements to soil health and erosion control as primary reasons. Farmers who tried planting cover crops but ultimately chose to discontinue their use cited low profitability, lowered crop yields, insufficient soil benefits and a lack of resources to plant cover crops.

Indiana woodland owners to meet in Huntingburg

The annual Indiana woodland owner conference will convene at Huntingburg Event Center on November 4. Hosted by the Indiana Forestry & Woodland Owners Association, over 150 landowners are expected.

"If you have an interest in forestry – or just love the woods – you should attend," said Lee Huss, IFWOA President. "We're offering a program that's relevant, informative and fun." Anyone is welcome and can learn more at www.ifwoa.org or call (765) 496-5013.

Friday's optional field tours will feature a morning tour of the Werner Sawmill in Jasper. The afternoon session is at a local landowner's property, with tours to a tree planting and seeing their oak regeneration and timber stand improvement.

Saturday's program at the Huntingburg Event Center offers 9 sessions on woodland management issues and a highlight is a keynote on "Achieving your Goals While Creating a Healthy Forest: The National Forest Model by Hoosier National Forest ecologist Jeremiah Heise. Other topics include "Creating pollinator and wildlife habitat" "Managing invasives with goats" and "Trails construction and maintenance."

National unemployment rate stays at 3.8 percent for September

Total nonfarm payroll employment rose by 336,000 in September, and the unemployment rate was unchanged at 3.8 percent, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today. Job gains occurred in leisure and hospitality; government; health care; professional, scientific, and technical services; and social assistance.

This news release presents statistics from two monthly surveys. The household survey measures labor force status, including unemployment, by demographic characteristics. The establishment survey measures nonfarm employment, hours, and earnings by industry.

Household Survey Data

The major labor market indicators from the survey of households showed little or no change over the month. The unemployment rate held at 3.8 percent in September, and the number of unemployed persons was essentially unchanged at 6.4 million.

Among the major worker groups, the unemployment rates for adult men (3.8 percent), adult women (3.1 percent), teenagers (11.6 percent), Whites (3.4 percent), Blacks (5.7 percent), Asians (2.8 percent), and Hispanics (4.6 percent) showed little or no change in September.

The number of long-term unemployed (those jobless for 27 weeks or more) was little changed at 1.2 million in September. The long-term unemployed accounted for 19.1 percent of all unemployed persons.

Both the labor force participation rate, at 62.8 percent, and the employment-population ratio, at 60.4 percent, were unchanged over the month.

The number of persons employed part time for economic reasons, at 4.1 million, changed little in September. These individuals who would have preferred full-time employment, were working part time because their hours had been reduced or they were unable to find full-time jobs.

In September, the number of persons not in the labor force who currently want a job was 5.5 million, little different from the prior month. These individuals were not counted as unemployed because they were not actively looking for work during the 4 weeks preceding the survey or were unavailable to take a job.

Among those not in the labor force who wanted a job, the number of persons marginally attached to the labor force changed little at 1.5 million in September. These individuals wanted and were available for work and had looked for a job sometime in the prior 12 months but had not looked for work in the 4 weeks preceding the survey. The number of discouraged workers, a subset of the marginally attached who believed that no jobs were available for them, also changed little over the month at 367,000.

Establishment Survey Data

Total nonfarm payroll employment rose by 336,000 in September, above the average monthly gain of 267,000 over the prior 12 months. In September, job gains occurred in leisure and hospitality; government; health care; professional, scientific, and technical services; and social assistance.

Leisure and hospitality added 96,000 jobs in September, above the average monthly gain of 61,000 over the prior 12 months. Employment in food services and drinking places rose by 61,000 over the month and has returned to its pre-pandemic February 2020 level. Accommodation employment continued to trend up over the month (+16,000) but remains below its February 2020 level by 217,000, or 10.3 percent.

In September, government employment increased by 73,000, above the average monthly gain of 47,000 over the prior 12 months. Over the month, job gains occurred in state government education (+29,000) and in local government, excluding education (+27,000). Employment in government is slightly below (-9,000) its February 2020 level.

Health care added 41,000 jobs in September, compared with the average monthly gain of 53,000 over the prior 12 months. Over the month, employment continued to trend up in ambulatory health care services (+24,000), hospitals (+8,000), and nursing and residential care facilities (+8,000).

Employment in professional, scientific, and technical services increased by 29,000 in September, in line with the average monthly gain of 27,000 over the prior 12 months.

Social assistance added 25,000 jobs in September, about the same as the average monthly gain of 23,000 over the prior 12 months. Over the month, job growth occurred in individual and family services (+19,000).

In September, employment in transportation and warehousing changed little (+9,000). Truck transportation added 9,000 jobs, following a decline of 25,000 in August that largely reflected a business closure. Air transportation added 5,000 jobs in September. Employment in transportation and warehousing has shown little net change over the year.

Employment in information changed little in September (-5,000). Within the industry, employment in motion picture and sound recording industries continued to trend down (-7,000) and has declined by 45,000 since May, reflecting the impact of labor disputes.

Employment showed little change over the month in other major industries, including mining, quarrying, and oil and gas extraction; construction; manufacturing; wholesale trade; retail trade; financial activities; and other services.

In September, average hourly earnings for all employees on private nonfarm payrolls rose by 7 cents, or 0.2 percent, to $33.88. Over the past 12 months, average hourly earnings have increased by 4.2 percent. In September, average hourly earnings of private-sector production and nonsupervisory employees rose by 6 cents, or 0.2 percent, to $29.06.

The average workweek for all employees on private nonfarm payrolls was unchanged at 34.4 hours in September. In manufacturing, the average workweek was little changed at 40.1 hours, and overtime was unchanged at 3.1 hours. The average workweek for production and nonsupervisory employees on private nonfarm payrolls remained at 33.8 hours.

The change in total nonfarm payroll employment for July was revised up by 79,000, from +157,000 to +236,000, and the change for August was revised up by 40,000, from +187,000 to +227,000. With these revisions, employment in July and August combined is 119,000 higher than previously reported. (Monthly revisions result from additional reports received from businesses and government agencies since the last published estimates and from the recalculation of seasonal factors.)

Lori Carrico For Clerk Treasurer

I am running for Loogootee Clerk Treasurer in the upcoming election. After serving at the county level as your Treasurer for 7 years, I would love to have the opportunity to serve my local constituents going forward.

I have over a decade of experience in county government, spanning two counties. I have served in the Martin County

Assessor's and Recorder's offices as a deputy for each and seven years as your elected Martin County Treasurer.

I am excited for this new opportunity and the potential to use my experience and knowledge to help lead Loogootee into the future. I believe my years as your county treasurer have helped me grow into an excellent candidate for Clerk Treasurer. I'm ready for the challenges that come with learning a new office. Loogootee might not be where I was born and raised but it's where my heart is.

Even before I moved to Loogootee in 2000, I spent much of my youth here. I would come to Loogootee almost every weekend to spend time with my Granny. Some of my best memories come from helping her at her restaurant Broadway Chicken, right here in Loogootee. After living here over 20 years, raising my family, and getting to know the community, I must say there is no place like this small town and its big heart. Thank you to everyone for the support you have shown me over the years. I hope you continue to do the same by voting for me as Clerk Treasurer this year.

I would appreciate your vote on November 7th

Consumer alert: Fire pit tables, portable generators pose burn and impact injury risk

Attorney General Todd Rokita is alerting Hoosiers of important consumer protection concerns for products recalled in September. This is the time to take advantage of opportunities available for those who purchased these recalled items.

"The weather is turning cooler, but some of your products could be heating up without your knowledge," Attorney General Rokita said. "You shouldn't have to worry if keeping your family warm while you're outdoors during the fall months could be a fire risk. This is the time to act. Don't let a flawed product put your family in danger. Stop using recalled items immediately and pursue resolution from the manufacturer."

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the following consumer products were recalled in September:

Insignia and Yardbird fire tables with lava rocks from Best Buy

Generac Portable Generators from Generac

Honda Lawnmowers and Pressure Washer Engines from American Honda Motor

LETTER TO THE EDITOR 'You have truly made a difference in many lives'

To the editor of the Martin County Journal,

Many thanks to the volunteers and donors who came to the October blood drives. We were able to collect 34 units at the Shoals Beta Club drive and 56 units at the Loogootee Beta Club drive which means we came in over goal at 90 units. That is enough blood to help as many as 270 patients at hospitals locally and across the country.

You have truly made a difference in many lives. God's blessings to all of you.

Harvest is underway across the country and Martin County is no exception. The combines are busy munching their way through the corn and soybean crops making dust a daily occurrence as well as keeping the gravel roads in a constant hazy condition. Make no mistake about it, harvesting America's crops is a dirty business, but one can hardly overestimate the importance of it to our economy and way of life.

Barb and I traveled to Turkey Run State Park last weekend to celebrate our 40th anniversary. Somehow we ended up taking the most rugged trail they had on Sunday morning and ended up about three miles from the lodge with less than 45 minutes to get back by check-out time. I tried to reassure her that they wouldn't care if we were a few minutes late but getting back felt like a forced march. We squeaked into the front desk with two minutes to spare. All-in-all we enjoyed the trip and plan to return next year for the Covered Bridge Festival in Rockville. It's funny how just two days away still makes home look good.

The problem with me traveling in the spring and fall of the year is I can't help but check out the farming activities along the way. The trip to Parke County was going well as we went up US 231, a familiar path to us since two of our kids went to Purdue University in West Lafayette and now that Mark and his wife Carina live north of Lafayette along with two of our grandchildren. We know where every gas station and restaurant are along the way. The problem this time was that as the sun dried off the early morning dew, the farmers were coming out in force with combines, grain carts and trucks and by the time we got north of Worthington, harvest was under way for the day. Beyond the machine judging activity is the crop judging. You know, does the crop look good, bad, ugly...or what? I should have just pulled over and let Barb drive... but I didn't, so she does more of the road watching while I guess everything from combine models to crop conditions and yields.

You could see the soybean guys from a mile away as the dust created from harvesting beans when it is this dry is incredible. At times the combine almost disappears in the cloud of debris coming out of the back of these incredible machines. Corn harvesting makes some dust, but nothing like the soybeans as the whole plant goes through the machine separating the bean from the pods and stems, while if everything is working right, only the ear of corn will go through the combine with only the cob coming out the spreader in the back.

We made a circular route out of the weekend coming back down Hwy. 41 through Terre Haute and then east on US 50 back into Loogootee and then south to home base just off US 231 on Lumpkin Road. Harvest was well under way here too as the local farmers worked their way through another harvest of the precious grains that keep America the Breadbasket of the World.
