Finally fall

The first official day of fall was well over a month ago but temperatures are just now feeling cool enough to remind everyone of pumpkin spice and Thanksgiving. The sky in the photo above has that "fall" feeling too. The first official day of winter is December 21. Daylight Saving Time will be ending on November 7 and we will "fall back" one hour.

33rd Annual Festival of Bands to be held Tuesday, November 2

The 33rd Annual Festival of Bands will take place Tuesday, November 2 at Loogootee High School in the Jack Butcher Arena beginning at 7 p.m. The concert is free and open to the public. The Festival of Bands currently consists of six area school bands including the Barr-Reeve High School Band under the direction of Mrs. Stephanie O'Brian, the Loogootee High School Band under the direction of Mrs. Amy Hamm, the Mitchell High School Band under the direction of Mr. Zachary Tibbs, the North Daviess High School Band under the direction of Mr. Jeff Vandermeel, the Shoals High School Band under the direction of Mr. Joel Weitkamp, and the South Knox High School Band under the direction of Mrs. Jennifer Erickson. The festival was started 33 years ago by retired directors, Mrs. Betsy Graves and Mrs. Joyce Kim-Rohrer.

The vision for the festival was to give students the opportunity to work with a prominent guest conductor and play in a large mass band. Many of the area schools are smaller bands due to the size of the schools and certain music cannot be played due to the smaller school instrumentation. The festival allows for the students to get more experience with different types of music. As the festival became stronger, the directors began commissioning works for the event. The directors have commissioned: "The Spirit Soars" by James Curnow (2003), "Shadows of the Equinox" by Robert Sheldon (2010), "Dance of Chivalry" by Matt Conaway (2013), and the most recent, "Mirror March" by Benjamin Taylor (2017). The goal for commissioning was to give the students at least one chance in their high school career to be a part of the music making process and to meet a prominent composer.

Beyond commissioning, they have had several guest soloists for the event. In 2000, professional saxophonist Paul Bro was the guest soloist. In 2001, they had a local professional musician and Loogootee graduate, Melissa Williams on tuba. In 2002, they had Director of Bands and Music Department Chair at Vincennes University, Ms. Sharon Jackson on marimba. The group has also created an Honor Jazz Band for the event as well. Students from all six bands are invited to submit an application to be a part of the jazz band. The students are chosen on the basis of their application and recommendation of their directors.

The guest conductor this year is Ms. Janis Stockhouse. Stockhouse recently retired after 38 years as Director of Bands at Bloomington High School North in Bloomington. Prior to that position, she served as the North Vermillion Jr-Sr High School Band and Choral Director for four years. She received her Bachelor of Music Education degree from the Indiana University Jacobs School of Music where she studied trumpet with William Adam and Louis Davidson. She earned her Master's in Music degree at Indiana State University. Her mentors include David N. Baker, Ray E. Cramer, William Revelli, Dominic Spera, Ron Modell and Stephen W. Pratt.

At Bloomington North, Ms. Stockhouse conducted the Symphonic Band, Intermediate Concert Band, Advanced & Lab Jazz Ensembles, and taught AP Music Theory. She also served as assistant director for the Cougar Marching Band, directed the Basketball Pep Band and oversaw the Jazz Combo program.

During her tenure at Bloomington High School North, the Advanced Jazz Ensemble performed at the Midwest International Band & Orchestra Clinic in 1982, 1987, 2008, and 2018. Her jazz bands and Combos also were invited to perform at the IAJE and JEN annual conventions on seven occasions. In 2002, the jazz ensemble and top concert band toured Europe for two weeks of concerts culminating with performances at the North Sea Jazz Festival and the Mid-Europe Music Clinic. The Cougar Marching Band has appeared in the Tournament of Roses Parade as well as the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade. Bloomington North's Symphonic Band qualified for the ISSMA State Concert Finals 33 out of 35 years with two state championships and 30 top eight finishes.

Ms. Stockhouse is a member and past

CORRECTION

In last week's Martin County Council special meeting article, it was reported there were 104 signatures on the petition against the 2022 county budget. The 104 signatures were actually on a petition against that petition. The Martin County Journal was unaware there was a second petition. I apologize for this error.

Martin County resident's SHOALS poems in state archive

The Indiana Arts Commission (IAC), in partnership with the Indiana State Library, announced today that the works of 41 poets have been added to the State of Indiana's poetry archive, INverse, including poems by Rachel Wright of Martin County. To see her poems, visit <https://indianamemory.contentdm.oclc.org/digital/collection/p16066coll182/search/searchterm/wright%2C%20Rachel%2C%201943-/field/creato/mode/exact/conn/and>

An initiative of former Indiana Poet Laureate Adrian Matejka, INverse celebrates and preserves the diverse range of Indiana poetry for future generations of Indiana writers and readers.

"The Indiana State Library is pleased to partner for a second year with the Indiana Arts Commission on this project. The INverse Poetry Archive is important in preserving the work of Indiana poets for the benefit of future generations," said Jacob Speer, Indiana State Librarian.

"May you live in interesting times." For better or worse, this ancient Chinese proverb certainly holds true today. The INverse Poetry Archive is therefore more important than ever, showcasing and preserving the hopes and fears, and prayers and predictions of the residents of our state for the future," said Poet Laureate Matthew Graham. "Once again, the archive reflects the rich and diverse creative spirit of Indiana. I am especially pleased to see the inclusion of younger voices represented by the Poetry Ourselves program."

Residents of Indiana are encouraged to submit poems to the archive annually between February 1 and April 30. To view the archive, visit <https://indianamemory.contentdm.oclc.org/digital/collection/p16066coll182>.

RATE

The top ten spots in the state for the lowest jobless rate for September were LaGrange County at 2 percent, Hamilton, Boone and Adams counties at 2.1 percent; Union, Dubois and Daviess counties at 2.3 percent, and Martin, White, Wells, Steuben, Hendricks and Elkhart counties at 2.4 percent.

The top ten spots in the state for highest jobless rate for September were Howard County at 6.7 percent, Lake County at 5.7 percent, Fayette and Miami counties at 4.8 percent, LaPorte and Orange counties at 4.6 percent, Marion County at 4.3 percent, Madison and Vigo counties at 4.2 percent, and Scott County at 4.1 percent.

Indiana's unemployment rate stands at 4.0 percent for September, and the national rate is 4.8 percent. The monthly unemployment rate is a U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) indicator that reflects the number of unemployed people seeking employment within the prior four weeks as a percentage of the labor force.

Indiana's labor force had a net decrease of 1,439 over the previous month. This was a result of a decrease of 2,595 unemployed residents and an increase of 1,156 employed residents.

Indiana's total labor force, which includes both Hoosiers employed and those seeking employment, stands at 3.34 million, and the state's 63.0 percent labor force participation rate remains above the national rate of 61.6 percent.

Learn more about how unemployment rates are calculated here: <http://www.hoosierdata.in.gov/infographics/employment-status.asp>.

Employment by Sector

Private sector employment has increased by 63,500 over the year and decreased by 300 over the previous month. The monthly decrease is primarily due to losses in the Construction (-1,400) and the Private Educational and Health Services (-700) sectors. Losses were offset by gains in the Manufacturing (1,400) and the Professional and Business Services (900) sectors. Total private employment stands at 2,650,700, which is 89,800 below the December 2019 peak.

Teacher of the Month back on Friday, October 1. September Students of the Month were 6th Grader: Casen Perry, 7th Grader: Emmalynn McNabb, 8th Grader: Katie Brett. September Teacher of the Month was Aimee Harder. They enjoyed lunch together and it was donated by RJ's. Mr. Mullis thanked RJ's generosity to help create this meal opportunity. Parent-Teacher Conferences were yesterday, and the SPA provided pizza for the staff, and he thanked them for their continued support. The staff recently had the students in their classrooms fill out sheets asking about personal hygiene items that they might need. From there, they were able to send home 75 bags of various items such as deodorant, shampoo, facial cleanser, etc. A good amount of the items given out to the students were provided through community donations as well as local churches and he wanted to thank them. The students and staff enjoyed celebrating Spirit Week for the soccer and volleyball teams as they prepared for Sectional play. They will have dress up days next week as they celebrate Red Ribbon Week... students who participate will be given treats. The middle school recently concluded the fall sports seasons. Winter sports have begun practicing and the first basketball games will be on November 3. Mr. Mullis offered thanks to Mr. Dahlen and his media publications class for all the colorful content on the TV screens throughout the hallway. Fall Festival will be on Saturday, October 30 from 2-5 p.m.

A written report from High School Principal Kindra Hovis was read. Mr. Kent's fall festival day with the elementary students was a huge success. Miss Cage is currently doing project-based learning with TravelOne out of Bedford. The top three travel brochures will be printed and used in their travel office. Junior students are busy planning a haunted trail for the upcoming fall festival- this is made possible because of the walking trail and corn maze. Mr. Gee's Honors ELA classes will be conducting an interactive skit of "The Hobbit" utilizing the walking trail next week. This is open to all students in K-12. Personal hygiene bags were given to students before fall break. All students were given a personal hygiene survey during the advisory period and bags were filled based on their needs. A student scholarship day is in the works. Students will have a workday to complete scholarships and the FAFSA with Mrs. Hert, Mrs. Gibson, and Mr. Wilkerson. The evening session will be for parents and educate them on how to assist their college going students. Next year's master schedule is already in the works. Teachers have been given deadlines for input. Red Ribbon Week celebration all next week with dress up days each day. Students who participate will be put in a drawing for a small prize. PSAT will be given on October 26. The fall festival is on October 30. A big Happy Birthday to Mr. Mullis!

Superintendent Dr. Roush invited the board to the ISBA meeting in Jasper on November 8 at 6 p.m. She updated the board about the preliminary insurance rates and implementation of the digital time clock system for employees. She congratulated the school on the great fall field day held for elementary students as well as the great turnout at the Hindostan Days event. She informed the board of a successful tobacco cessation class that she is offering once a month for students who have received tobacco tickets. Finally, she updated the board about the COSMOS grant initiative and upcoming branding opportunities.

Before adjourning, Board Secretary Jennell Hoffman read a card from Amanda Heckard and family thanking the board and central office for the condolences and windchimes in memory of the passing of her father, Mark Ettelt.

More Neat Stuff

By Ann Ackerman

My daughter handed me her school progress report. Although it displayed a steady stream of positive check marks, there was one check mark standing dejectedly alone from the rest.

"How am I doing, Mom?" my child asked with a level of maturity that did not match the small, disheveled person gazing up at me with smudged eyeglasses that teetered on the tip of her nose. With her small finger, she pointed to her teacher's neatly printed words next to the lone check mark.

It read: "Distracted in large groups." But I already knew this. I knew this long before it was written on an official report card. Since she was a toddler, this child has offered astute observations of the world around her.

After pointing out all the positives on the progress report, I told her what was written. Upon hearing the news, she gave a tiny, uncertain smile and shyly admitted, "I do look around a lot."

But before my child could feel one ounce of shame, one iota of failure, I came down on bended knee and looked her straight in the eye. I didn't want her to just hear these words, I wanted her to feel them. This is what I said:

"Yes. You do look around a lot. "You noticed Sam sitting off by himself with a skinned knee on the field trip, and you comforted him."

"You noticed Banjo had a running nose, and the vet said it was a good thing we brought him in when we did."

"You noticed our waitress was working really hard and suggested we leave an extra good tip."

You noticed Grandpa was walking slower than the rest of us, so you waited for him.

You notice the beautiful view every time we cross the bridge to go to swim practice.

And you know what? I don't ever want you to stop noticing because that is your gift. It is your gift that you give to the world."

As I watched my daughter beam with the glow of acceptance, I realized her approach to life had the power to change the world. You see, we are all just waiting for someone to notice—notice our pain, notice our scars, notice our fear, notice our joy, notice our triumphs, notice our courage. And the one who notices is a rare and beautiful gift. -Rachel Macy Stafford

THOUGHTS

*October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, so get those pumpkins in for a mammogram!

*I've opened a can of worms. They just sit there, the worms. Hardly the chaos that's been advertised.

*I just want to know why my clothes only get caught on the door handle when I'm in a bad mood.

*We keep a potato masher in a drawer because sometimes it's fun to not be able to open that drawer.

*This generation will never understand what that Sears Roebuck Christmas Catalog meant to us 50 years ago.

*I went to the beekeeper to get 12 bees. He counted and gave me 13.

Loogootee Water flushing mains this week

The Loogootee Water Department has been flushing water mains this week which will end this Friday, October 29. Customers may experience periods of low water pressure and, or cloudy water. It is recommended that you check your water quality before cooking, drinking, or doing laundry. If you experience any problems with your water, contact the water office at 812-295-2497 or after 4 p.m., call the Loogootee Police Department at 812-295-2246.

The water department would like to caution drivers and pedestrians to be aware when utility employees are in the area. Water main flushing through fire hydrants releases large volumes of water at high pressure which can be dangerous and harmful to yourself and water department employees.

In the Garden

By Ralph Purkhiser,
Purdue University Master Gardener

A gardener's work is never done. It is late October and still I am harvesting vegetables from my raised beds. Many flowering shrubs are having a second bloom season and we are finally getting hints of autumn color in the woods. Even if you have decided that you are finished with your gardens for the year, you may want to do some planning for next year. It really is the perfect time to build a new garden bed.

I am a big fan of raised beds, both in the vegetable garden and the landscape. There are several advantages. As I get older, I appreciate that raised beds put the garden closer to me. I have several beds of different heights, and each has its advantages.

Some beds are tall to allow tending them from a standing position. These tall beds are generally either boxes on legs or deep beds. The boxes, of course, require less soil to fill them, but they usually require more watering to keep the plants growing well. Such boxes on stilts have few applications in the ornamental garden, but are handy for raising vegetables, especially greens. Equipping them with a watering system will make the irrigation problem go away. The boxes also have the advantage of putting greens out of the reach of rabbits, though they may become feeding troughs for the deer. The amount of soil needed to fill them is the main drawback for standing height beds. They also require more building materials to construct. When filling a tall bed, I have often resorted to using something other than soil for all but the top foot or so of the bed. Some sources recommend using stone or plastic bottles in that bottom portion of the bed. However, most experts say the change in media will be adverse to plants with deep roots, so this is not advised for perennial beds. However, one may use things other than potting soil. I have had good luck using old rotten wood to take up a lot of space. The wood will absorb moisture and help control the amount of watering you will need to do. The drawback is that the soil level will drop as the wood decomposes. However, adding several inches of good compost to a bed each year will result in a healthy growing medium, so that will take care of the problem.

Mid-height beds may be tended from a seated position. Such beds are necessary for wheelchair users, but anyone may benefit from them. As with the tall beds, mid-height beds may be either solid or boxes on legs. The boxes may be best for wheelchair users, allowing one to pull into the garden like a table. The solid beds require reaching in from the side to tend the bed. The soil decisions are really the same as for the tall beds, but the mid-height beds require less soil.

Finally, one may build raised beds that are a foot or less in height. These beds will still require stooping, kneeling or bending for tending that cannot be accomplished with long-handled tools, but they have the distinct advantage of allowing one to have more control over the growing medium. Such beds are extremely helpful if the natural soil is not good or if there is little soil over a rock base. Raised beds allow one to put the soil where it is needed for the crops.

Next week, we will look at other considerations, such as building materials and bed shapes. In the meantime, you may want to get started by preparing a location. I suggest getting large cardboard boxes and lay them down where you want to build beds. The cardboard will smother out the grass and weeds that have been growing there but will still allow water to filter into the subsoil.

First West Boggs Weed Wrangle a success

The Daviess-Martin CISMA (Cooperative Invasive Species Management Area) is happy to report on the success of their first volunteer Weed Wrangle at West Boggs. For two hours on Saturday October 16, nine workers covered 2-3 acres in the park, removing invasive Amur Honeysuckle and Autumn Olive bushes, and applying herbicide to the cut stumps to prevent the plants from resprouting.

They also tackled Tree-of-Heaven, a difficult invasive known for aggressive root sprouting, using a hack-n-squirt technique. A hatchet was used to make evenly spaced hack marks around the trunk at a 45 degree downward angle, which were then filled with herbicide. This technique delivers herbicide into the tree without cutting or girdling, avoiding a root sprouting response.

The volunteer group was directed by staff from the Soil & Water Conservation District and West Boggs Park.

"We want to use our park system as an educational outlet for those folks that are interested in sound conservation practices. Eradicating invasive plant species provides our native flora and fauna with improved habitat and in turn allows our park users a chance to view our facility as it should be. These workdays and the wonderful volunteers greatly assist our efforts in making these improvements," said Park Superintendent Jameson Hibbs.

The Daviess-Martin CISMA is considering making this workday an annual event, as there are several other areas of the park that could benefit from invasive removal. They will discuss this as well as other 2022 workday options at their winter planning meeting. National Forest to conduct prescribed burns

The U.S. Forest Service plans to conduct seasonal prescribed burning to maintain, restore or improve early successional habitat, maintain wetlands, restore and maintain unique barren ecosystems, regenerate oak and hickory tree species and improve soil health by naturally returning nutrients to the soil. Historical data shows that throughout history natural occurring fire played a vital and necessary role in sustaining the eastern deciduous forest ecosystem. Scientific research supports the use of prescribed burning to reintroduce low intensity fire to its natural role within the ecosystem. Prescribed burning also reduces fuel loading, thereby lowering the risk of catastrophic wildfire.

Approximately 4,500 - 5,000 acres are planned to receive treatment with prescribed fire in the fall of 2021 on National Forest System lands in the following counties: Brown, Crawford, Jackson, Martin, Monroe, Lawrence, and Perry.

U.S. Forest Service fire managers utilize National Weather Service data to determine the best days to burn to achieve desired effects and to maximize safety. Many specific conditions must be met for a burn to occur, including fuel moisture, wind speed and direction, and relative humidity, among other factors. Decisions are generally made the day of the burn once parameters have been measured or forecasted. Therefore, advance specific notification for a particular burn can be difficult. Forest staff notifies the public in the immediate area of the prescribed burn. The public is advised to check the forest's social media accounts for announcements of burns at www.facebook.com/HoosierNF/ and <https://twitter.com/HoosierNF>. Maps and additional details of the burn areas will be available at the following website: <https://inciweb.nwcg.gov>.

All designated burn areas will not be accessible to the public on the day of the burn and for some time after the burn until the area is considered safe. If any hazards are identified within the burn area, the area may be inaccessible for several days for public safety. Burning may affect access to hunting areas. For your safety, please contact the Indiana Interagency Coordination Center dispatch (812-547-9262) if you plan to hunt or camp in or near prescribed burn areas.

An unfortunate side effect of prescribed burning is smoke. Fire managers burn only under atmospheric conditions specified in a burn plan and rely on scientific data to choose days in which the impacts of smoke are minimized. Smoke plumes from a prescribed fire usually rise high into the air where the smoke dissipates. When smoke is present, motorists should reduce speeds and turn on headlights.

All burns are implemented under carefully planned prescriptions and protocols to mitigate the risk of an escaped fire and smoke exposure to communities. All planned activities have been carefully coordinated with county emergency management agencies. Forest neighbors who wish to be notified of a specific date of a burn, or those who wish to report medical conditions that could be affected by smoke, may contact the Indiana Interagency Coordination Center Dispatcher at 812-547-9262.
