Becoming a Woman of Grace

Patricia J. Doucet is a Christian motivational speaker and author dedicated to uplifting women who feel broken and lost, showing them that their past does not define them and that grace offers a new beginning.

At 61, Patricia started over, moving into her mother's basement after years of striving, people-pleasing, and hiding behind busyness. Growing up in church, she tried to earn love through perfection and rule-keeping, until the weight of it all led to a breaking point.

Though life appeared polished on the outside, inside, she was crumbling. Amid the brokenness, she surrendered to God, allowing Him to mend the shattered pieces, leading her toward restoration.

Now, with a heart full of empathy and a purpose forged in life's valleys, Patricia walks alongside women who feel forgotten, reminding them that brokenness is not the end of their story—it's where grace begins.

With grace and wisdom, Patricia tenderly guides women to rediscover their worth—one piece at a time. Through biblical truth and personal stories, she reminds them they are never forgotten, never too broken, and always within God's loving restoration.

Using warmth, humor, and the powerful image of an unfinished quilt, she speaks to the heart's tender places, showing how the Master's hands skillfully weave every joy, sorrow, and unanswered question. She encourages women to release the past, embrace God's grace, and trust Him to mend their broken places, weaving beauty from every piece of their story.

Women leave her sessions feeling seen, cherished, and renewed—filled with confidence and hope to step forward, knowing God is restoring and redeeming them.
