To Whom It May Concern -

I am writing to provide my sincere and indeed heartfelt recommendation for Lowcountry Academic Consulting. My son is currently a sophomore at the College of Charleston, and we have known Courtney Lawrence from his first semester. A recommendation on a parent Facebook page introduced Lowcountry Academic Consulting and Courtney to us and she has since become a vital part of my son's academic support team.

As a parent with a student with learning differences there is always a challenge in finding a resource to help your student that is both a good personality fit and an effective tutor. This challenge is multiplied when your student is away from home and for the first time has learn to manage their own time and study habits. From the first session that my son had with Courtney he felt confident and comfortable with the relationship with Courtney's knowledge of the subject at hand, how to work with the college's disability services and general study planning.

In addition to being a support for my son during a normal semester when they could meet face to face, Courtney was quick to adopt her support when students were sent home in March due to Covid. Through Courtney's support my son was able to finish his first academic year successfully. In addition to supporting my son through his freshmen and summer semesters - Courtney has been a vital resource for us as my son is currently dealing with a medical condition that required him to come home and be entirely online. Courtney has been able to adopt her approach, provide me as a parent with insights and suggestions as well as continue to support my son despite the challenges of his illness.

My family and I highly recommend Lowcountry Academic Consulting and feel confident that they are a key piece in helping students whether they are just starting out at college or are students needing additional support due to learning differences or a medical condition.

Please contact me at the email or phone number listed here if there is any other information I can provide.

Sincerely,
Nancy
