

To whom it may concern,

I was lucky enough to be recommended to LowCountry Academic Consulting my junior year of college, during a hard time in my life. I personally have had a lot of trouble in the past with school, as I was diagnosed with ADHD, dyslexia, and slow-processing disorder when I was in Kindergarten. I went to tutoring for much of my childhood to help with that and I have to say Courtney has to be one of the best ones I have had.

Courtney has been such a reliable person in my life and has helped me in so many ways. Not only is she able to help me with multiple classes that i was struggling with, but she also helped me to develop critical studying skills and strategies that I will be able to use for a long time. I have recommended her to so many people since we have started and I am so grateful for everything. She takes so much time out of her day to make sure that all of her students are fully accommodated for, while also checking up on their personal lives to make sure they are emotionally ok to be doing work at that moment. She talks me through the problems slowly and thoroughly, waits patiently if I have questions, and never gets annoyed or frustrated when I can't understand what she is saying. She luckily has knowledge on many different subjects so she is very flexible when it comes to what you need help in tutoring for. She also offers a really good pay plan for those who may struggle financially to cover all the costs of her services, which is truly amazing. She makes almost every hour of the day available to anyone who may need it, having met with me on multiple occasions close to 9 at night at 7 in the morning.
