

The Wright brothers had been searching for suitable people who were willing to build aircraft to their design. Eventually, after a meeting at a Paris airshow in 1909, a contract was signed allowing the Short Brothers to build six planes under licence for the Wright Brothers.