CHANGES IS ATTITUDES

“Changes in latitudes, changes in attitudes” a line from an old Jimmy Buffett song. Jimmy was singing about traveling to different places and encountering different types of people. He states his attitude had to change to accommodate his new acquaintances. Shouldn’t that mindset affect us as EWMA members? Isn’t our new forum to invite non-Gold Wing riders into our group?

I have had numerous opportunities to ride with other Gold Wing Chapters over the years, both in Florida and in other states at Rallies. A simple wave is customary when passing approaching motorcycles. But are we doing this? What I have seen is that many of our Gold Wing riders will only wave at other Gold Wing riders. An approaching Gold Wing, which is easily recognizable, is more likely to get a wave than other brands. I wave at all approaching motorcycles when I can. You never know, the bike that other rider is on today, might only be one of other motorcycles he might own. One of the other motorcycles he owns might just be a Gold Wing. (Like me.)

EWMA is supposed to be an open-brand bike friendly organization. I have often seen the approaching bikes of other brands wave at our group and none of us, except for me, wave back. An approaching Gold Wing is an easily recognizable brand of motorcycle to identify and they usually get a return wave from our group. What do you think the other riders with the other brands think about our group when we do not wave back? They can easily spot a Gold Wing. Are they thinking: That looks like a friendly group I would like to join? I think not.

Granted there are times your hand is busy completing a more important task and you are not able to safely wave. If you have a co-rider you have a built in waver. But, if no co-rider and your hand is free....wave! If we truly are trying to increase our membership a simple wave may be all it takes to open the door.

Ride safe & wave,

Dominick & Diane
