

Tour de Picayune Bicycle Event Update

October 31, 2024

From Race Director Wes Wilkins

Hello welcome to the TdP website.

Looks like the TdP 2024 is dead and gone. The coolest and best one ever planned, the execution curtailed very decisively by nature. But no, I got another reschedule in mind. Of course I do, I don't let go that easy. I am the bulldog.

February 8, 2025 – I know it's the day for the 2024 championships in the year 2025. But there will be a 2025 champ, eventually. So, what's the issue? Just a number, but for the next champion's recorded place in the line of great champions in perpetuity.

And a fine opportunity to prepare for the richer planned 2025 over the original much of the course for 2024, adjusted to adapt to some watery places that by June, for the 2025 races will be gone for the best riding in the entire year and most unique in America.

This year 2025 I am very sure will happen and highlight Picayune Strand in its best light and time for everything good happening in the forest.

The first Saturday in June will from now on, will be the ever-impending TdP date, finally settled.

Okay, so we're optimistic we may get to finally achieve a 2024 championship.

Wet season to dry times usually happens overnight seemingly, and now it is here, like it never left. The animals move as their world changes and an exciting time, to see the critters (now). Sometimes dry season does not really come, like a couple of other years pre- TdP, and may still stay soggy right into the next summer; However, looks like we're now free and clear to officially proceed into the dry season. And 2025 TdP hopes to be the best one for sure, and the prize money- if we are a success in Feb. For 2024. The award totals will be raised 25% across the board. Hoping the event will climb upward under our innovative approach along with the improved Forest trail conditions for bicycles.
