Sequel to the stage play Black Butterflies “The Awakening,” this stage play was developed and written to impart information about the significance of people of color in God’s redemptive plan for mankind, beginning with the book of Genesis (the beginning).

Filled with historical information, the play is educationally and musically charged, designed to inspire hope and motivate pursuit of personal destiny. The stage play targets youth and young adults of color yet embraces cultural diversity and encourages culturally diverse attendance and collaboration.

An “awareness” to history that has been hidden.

An “awakening” to God's plan and His purpose for their lives.

A “metamorphosis” into purpose and destiny.
