

Owner's Bio

Cheryl Robertson recently retired as a Supervisory Human Resources Specialist – HR Development for DC Government in the Department of Human Resources (DCHR) Center for Learning and Development. In her role with DCHR for the past 12 years, she supported the High School Internship Program, the Centralized College Internship Program now the District Leadership Program, the Capital City Fellows Program, the Certified Public Manager® Program, and the L.E.A.P. Academy. As part of the DCHR's mission to attract, develop and retain a diverse workforce, these programs support this initiative by recruiting talent for the City and professional development of mid to senior level supervisors and managers.

Many District Agencies have benefited from the recruitment from these various programs. A major component of these programs has involved mentoring and coaching for its participants. The participants range from high school to senior level supervisors and managers. Our participants have developed personally and professionally as the result of having the Coaching component in these programs.

As coaching became more demanding for the development of our participants, Cheryl made a decision to become a Certified Professional Coach. In October 2015, she attended the New Ventures West Professional Coach Program and graduated as a Certified Integral Coach® in September 2016. This learning and transformative experience enhanced her ability to be a more effective Coach for our participants. This certification has afforded her the opportunity to cross District Agencies to offer coaching opportunities to other District employees. In 2018 to present, she serves as a Certified Coach for the District Department of Transportation Women's Leadership Coaching Program. She provides individual and group coaching.

Additionally, she has served as a member and officer for the National Certified Public Manager® Consortium (NCPMC). In October 2017-October 2018, I served as the Chair. The NCPMC is the accrediting body for the District's Certified Public Manager® Program. Her leadership, coaching, and commitment, along with her collaboration with agencies city-wide has been significant to DCHR's success as well as the District.

In 2019 she launched her coaching business "InnerGrow Integrated Coaching". I believe as human beings we change and are transformed through Introspection and Gratitude.