Capturing the Divine Feminine: "Guadalupe" Photography Exhibition by Amanda Lopez Debuts at Altura Los Angeles on December 9th, 2023

Los Angeles, CA –

ALTURA Los Angeles is proud to present "Guadalupe," a captivating photography series by renowned Mexican-American photographer Amanda Lopez. The exhibition, set to debut on Saturday, December 9th, challenges traditional perceptions of femininity, masculinity, and piety, inviting viewers on a personal journey to redefine sacredness through Lopez's lens.

"Guadalupe" celebrates Mexico's beloved patron saint, Our Lady of Guadalupe, offering a fresh perspective on her symbolism and exploring the profound impact she has had on Amanda Lopez's life. Far beyond its religious origins, this series is an homage to the divine feminine energy, sacredness, and healing that Guadalupe's imagery encapsulates for people of all genders and backgrounds.

Lopez's photos delve into the intricacies of womanhood, masculinity, and piety, posing the question: What does it mean to be divine? The series features portraits of family and friends who share Lopez's connection with Guadalupe, alongside images of apparitions discovered in public spaces. Additionally, Lopez reimagines Guadalupe in a contemporary context, creating a collection that is diverse yet unified in its purpose – to connect people.
