Revising a Draft for a Specified Purpose – Conclusion

Topic: Captain America

Your Assignment:

A student is writing an opinion piece for the teacher about the most desirable superhero, Batman or Captain America, to add to one's superhero team. Read the draft of the opinion and complete the task that follows.

Who's the Man?

By Ricardo Diaz

Who doesn't love a good superhero? Batman and Captain America are fictional characters that have captured the attention of audiences of all ages as they battle evil villains. However, without a doubt, I would choose Captain America to be on my team. While Captain America does not have any super powers like Batman, he has unmatched leadership skills. Additionally, Captain America has a keen ability to strategize in any battle as well as work with his team to protect citizens.

Wearing America's colors, red, white, and blue, Captain America has unmatched human strength and is an incredible leader. Always leading by example, his teammates are drawn to his loyalty and bravery. He strives to do what is right and puts his team first. Batman is known to do whatever it takes to win a battle, even if it means fighting dirty. Captain America will only engage in battle if it is for the good of the people, and he will fight with integrity.

When danger strikes, I would absolutely want Captain America on my team because he is a strategist. This means that he plans well and is able to identify the best way to win a battle. He knows just what to do in any situation. Often times, his amazing acrobatic and martial arts skills dominate, and he escapes a fierce fight without injury. Sometimes, his plan does not work, but he never gives up.

Not only is Captain America a leader, he is part of a team. He leads the Avengers by listening to his team's ideas as well as helping them battle super villains. Unlike Captain America, Batman regularly works alone and even hides out in his secret Bat Cave. Captain America is constantly encouraging his teammates as he guides them through danger. Putting his team first before himself makes Captain America the most respected superhero.

The student's draft does not include a conclusion. Write a paragraph that concludes the draft supporting an opinion about Captain America.
