WHY THIS PLAYER SHOULD BE ON YOUR RADAR

A versatile defensive option playing central defensive midfield who can also drop into centre back — the position he clearly came from. He excels in the key defensive markers: successful defensive actions, defensive duels, aerial duels, interceptions and accurate passing. At just 17 he already shows great game sense, defensive ability and unusual discipline: always in the right spot, one-touch/two-touch max, no interest in doing too much with the ball. His floor as a 17-year-old is already so high that risk to the club is minimal — if the CDM role does not take, he is still a strong centre back. He does the dirty work most players avoid, and at this age and price there is real resale value on top.

MATCH NOTES AND PLAYER INSIGHTS

Observed live vs Chicago Fire II, August 15, 2026 — 81 minutes in a left central midfield role in a 4-4-1-1, a centre back by background now learning the screening midfield job. Strengths cluster around defensive IQ, discipline and positional reliability; the single clear development area is passing execution.

- Elite plugging of holes — makes passing into his zone look like a bad idea; opponents repeatedly play backward instead
- Great intuition on the break: a slide tackle around the 18 turned a bad opponent touch into a 3v2, then he immediately returned to his CDM slot
- Goal-saving slide tackle late on despite looking tired, denying a one-v-one with the keeper
- Strong aerially and in the challenge; wins duels then plays an immediate pass to a teammate; great shielding to hold off a player and win a foul
- Disciplined to the point of reliability — one-touch/two-touch, never leaves his area, always in the right spot
- Passing execution is the biggest growth area — the idea is right but the eight-yard ball on the ground to the right foot needs honing
- Wants more communication; when teammates drift out of position he gets pulled out and beaten because of it
- Occasional lapse in body shape — beaten once at the top of the box; passing accuracy is far higher at centre back, so the midfield tempo is still new

NEXT STEPS

Continue monitoring. Let him keep being the best player on his team and one of the best in MLS NEXT Pro — consistent 90s will accelerate his progression in the new CDM role. Track passing execution above all, then communication and body shape in 1v1s. Revisit in 6–12 months; a trial at 18–19 as a versatile, disciplined, high-IQ CDM/CB is the realistic entry point, and the centre-back fallback keeps the downside low.
