Isabelle is an Alpha Delta Pi from the University of Virginia. She was born in Santiago, Chile where her father served as a foreign service officer. She spent her childhood in South America then returned to Fairfax, Virginia for high school. After graduating from UVA with a degree in International Relations, she began a career in international finance. She started at a bank in Washington, D.C., then spent a year in Venezuela working as a financial analyst before moving to New York. After two exciting years in the "City that Never Sleeps," she moved to Miami. The "Magic City" was just coming to life, and her life and career grew along with it. She married and had two daughters, one biological and one adopted from Belarus. A few years ago she left banking and started a consulting practice, Wheeler Consulting, LLC, working with U.S. and Latin American banks.

Isabelle's passion is writing, and she recently published her first novel, "Waiting by the Gate." She also writes a weekly substack, "Econoweeek" that attempts to bring clarity to economic issues.

In 2024 Isabelle decided to return to her roots and moved from Miami to the Virginia suburbs of Washington, DC, but she remains active in MWP as our webmaster.
