Welcome to Greenbelt

Amid the bustling suburbs of Washington, D.C., the City of Greenbelt is a civic oasis. A tightly-knit community with a strong identity, our city is home to over 23,000 residents, a diverse group representing a multitude of ethnicities, faiths, cultures, and lifestyles. While Greenbelt has the feel and charm of a small town, it also offers big-city conveniences. The best of both worlds, the City of Greenbelt extends to you a warm welcome.

In addition to fostering a community that is respectful, safe, and fair for all people, the City also offers an abundance of amenities. Recreation facilities, children's programs, arts classes, cultural events, and exceptional schools are just a few of what's available. With over 506 acres of open space, Greenbelt features a network of parks and walking paths which crisscross the city, while award-winning trees dot the landscape. An active citizenry, cooperative businesses and housing associations are indicative of the community-first spirit of Greenbelt.

Continued

The City plays an active role in offering many activities and programs as part of its Be Happy, Be Healthy initiative. In 2014, the City received Gold Medal status in Michelle Obama's "Lets Move" program and was also named a "Healthy Eating Active Living" (HEAL) community for promoting ways for its residents of all ages to get out and be active. Additionally, Greenbelt has many times over been named a "Playful City USA" by the KaBOOM! organization for its commitment to promoting play and for having parks and playgrounds within walking distance of every resident.

Greenbelt is committed to promoting environmentally-friendly endeavors, with a comprehensive recycling program and special events throughout the year which highlight sustainable living. Greenbelt is proud to be named a "Tree City USA" by the Arbor Day Foundation and to also be "Sustainable Maryland Certified."

This book not only welcomes you to the City, it introduces you to the programs available, as well as providing practical community information. A directory of contacts is included for your convenience. Many of the organizations and departments listed feature in-depth information about their mission on their websites. We encourage you to visit these sites to learn more about your new community.

Welcome home! Welcome to Greenbelt!

We hope to see you soon,

Greenbelt: A History

The City of Greenbelt is in the history books as one of the first planned communities in the United States built as a federal venture in housing. From the beginning, it was designed as a complete city, with businesses, schools, roads, facilities for recreation, and a town government. Greenbelt was a planned community, noted for its interior walkways, underpasses, system of inner courtyards, and one of the first mall-type shopping centers in the United States. Modeled after English garden cities of the 19th century, Greenbelt took its name from the belt of green forestland with which it was surrounded, and from the belts of green between neighborhoods that offered easy contact with nature.

In 1997, Greenbelt celebrated its 60th anniversary. To coincide with this historic event, the United States Department of Interior recognized Greenbelt as a National Historic Landmark.

Created by the Resettlement Administration in 1935, under authority of the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act, Greenbelt is one of three greenbelt towns envisioned by Rexford Guy Tugwell, advisor and friend to President Franklin D. Roosevelt. (Greendale, Wisconsin, near Milwaukee, and Greenhills, Ohio, near Cincinnati, are the other two towns. A fourth town, to be located in New Jersey, was never built.) Greenbelt was an experiment in both the physical and social planning that preceded its construction. Homes were grouped in superblocks, with a system of interior walkways, permitting residents to go from home to town center without crossing a major street. Pedestrian and vehicular traffic were carefully separated. The two curving major streets were laid out upon and below a crescent-shaped natural ridge. Shops, schools, ballfields, and community buildings were grouped in the center of this crescent.

The architecture was streamlined in the Art Deco style popular at the time, with curving lines, glass block inserts in the facades of apartment buildings, and buttresses along the front wall of the elementary school. These buttresses create vertical lines framing a set of bas reliefs by Works Progress Administration (WPA) sculptor Lenore Thomas Strauss.

These features make the original buildings of the city some of the finest examples of Art Deco in the Washington area. The Greenbelt Community Center is considered one of the ten best structures in the Art Deco style within the United States. A sculpture by Strauss, a mother and child statue, graces the town center.

Greenbelt was also a social experiment. Designed to provide low-income housing, it drew 5,700 applicants for the original 885 residences. The first families were chosen not only to meet income criteria, but also to demonstrate willingness to participate in community organizations. In 1941, another 1,000 homes were added to provide housing for families coming to Washington in connection with World War II defense programs.

The first families, who arrived on October 1, 1937, found no established patterns or institutions of community life. Almost all were under 30 years of age. All considered themselves pioneers in a new way of life. A mix of blue and white collar workers, they reflected the religious composition of Baltimore, MD and Washington, D.C.: Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish. But because of the racial bias controlling public policy at that time, all were white.

The new residents formed the first kindergarten in Prince George's County. During that first year, they formed a citizens' association, a journalism club which published the first newspaper (still published today on a weekly basis as the Greenbelt News Review), and a community band. Interdenominational church services were held in the elementary school auditorium, which also functioned as a community center. The Greenbelt Health Association opened to provide hospital services. Police, fire, and rescue squads formed. Residents held a town fair that first summer. In 1939, the public swimming pool opened in Greenbelt, the first in the Washington area. Numerous clubs flourished. In fact, Greenbelters were so busy attending meetings that the town council called a moratorium on meetings between Christmas and New Year's in 1939.

to permit residents to spend time at home with their families.

Greenbelt is also unique for its cooperative institutions. Boston merchant and philanthropist Edward Filene provided funds to Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc. (GCS), which operated a food store, gas station, drug store, barber shop, movie theater, valet shop, beauty parlor, variety store, and tobacco shop. In December 1941, citizens within the community were able to raise funds to purchase GCS.

In 1952, when Congress voted to sell off the greenbelt towns, citizens in Greenbelt formed a housing cooperative (Greenbelt Veterans Housing Corporation, later Greenbelt Homes, Inc.) which purchased the homes, while the other two greenbelt towns were purchased privately. Citizens also formed a cooperative baby sitting pool, a cooperative nursery school and kindergarten, and a cooperative savings and loan association. In fact, when Greenbelters confronted any kind of a new problem, their typical first approach was to form a new cooperative.

Today, many of the original features of this planned community still exist. The cooperative spirit and the strong sense of community are passed on to new generations of Greenbelters, and around a dozen of the original families still live in the city. Many of their children and grandchildren have also chosen to reside in Greenbelt, and their dedication to the community remains the cornerstone of the city.

Government

When Greenbelt's first families moved in, the federal government provided rules on how the city would be operated. There was no local government in place to provide local services and laws. Within six weeks, the people held their first election, choosing a five member City Council from among 17 candidates establishing the first Council-Manager form of government in the state.

The City Council now consists of seven members, elected at large. The members of City Council choose the Mayor and the Mayor Pro Tem, though customarily, the member who receives the most votes in the election is selected as Mayor, while the member receiving the second highest number of votes usually becomes the Mayor Pro Tem, who assumes the duties of the Mayor when he/she is not available.

Elections A new council is elected every two years. Elections are held on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in odd numbered years (2019, 2021, 2023, etc.).

- Any resident of Greenbelt who is a qualified registered voter is eligible to run for election. Potential candidates must file with the City Clerk.
- If you are registered to vote in Prince George's County, you are registered to vote in Greenbelt's city elections.
- The City is divided in five election precincts. On Election Day, you must vote at the designated polling place for your precinct.
- Any qualified voter is entitled to vote by absentee ballot, without providing any reason or excuse. Additionally, Greenbelt offers early voting in various locations throughout the city.
- The City's Board of Elections and the City Clerk are responsible for conducting the election. For more information on the election process, please contact the City Clerk at 301-474-8000.

Boards and Committees

The City Council is assisted on many issues by its advisory boards and committees. There are currently 15 boards and committees made up of citizen volunteers. They meet regularly to discuss such issues as youth, education, senior citizens, city planning, public safety, parks and recreation, recycling, the environment, and the arts. All of these boards and committees report to the City Council and make recommendations on issues concerning the City and its residents. Individuals serving on Greenbelt's boards and committees provide an invaluable service. Their advice and expertise on a wide range of topics aid the City Council in its decision making process.

Since the first residents began organizing in 1937, Greenbelt has been a city of volunteers. It relies heavily on its citizens and has always been blessed with an active, educated, and interested population. It is this effective involvement of residents, in all aspects of community life, which has made Greenbelt such a unique place. Serve your community today by volunteering for one of the following boards or committees that best meets your interests:

Ticket Payments

Automated Speed Enforcement. The City of Greenbelt is now one of many jurisdictions in the Washington metropolitan area using automated speed enforcement to reduce traffic crashes, pedestrian accidents, and most importantly save lives. The program provides automated enforcement in school zones. Speed Cameras provide police with one more tool to protect pedestrians, school children, and other motorists by targeting aggressive driving behaviors.

The fine for violating the posted speed limit is $40.00 for each violation. Violators traveling 12 miles over the posted speed limit will activate the speed camera which will result in a violation notice being issued via the U.S. Mail. All violators may pay the fine or request a court date to contest the speeding violation.

The ultimate goal of the automated speed enforcement program is to save lives and prevent injuries. However, there are several other goals and benefits of the program:

- Reduce speed in school zones;
- Change driver behavior through voluntary compliance with traffic laws;
- Reduce accident severity;
- Educate the public and increase public awareness; and
- Augment the efforts of traditional law enforcement.

Snow Removal

Greenbelt's snow removal crews monitor the weather constantly during the winter and prepare well in advance of the snow. During and after the storm, they work around the clock to clear the city streets. You can do your part by:

Being prepared: Have your supplies on hand prior to a storm. This includes shovels and de-icing products. Park your car in the driveway if you have one, the more cars that are off the street, the better the job snow crews can do with removal. If you don't have a driveway, coordinate with your neighbors and park as close to the curb on the even-numbered side of the street until it is plowed, then move cars to the odd-numbered side of the street.

Being careful: It is each homeowner's responsibility to clear snow and ice from his/her own sidewalk for the safety and convenience of pedestrians. You should do this within 24 hours after the snowfall stops. When shoveling out the mouth of your driveway, throw the snow to the side or downstream. Do not throw it into the road - it will only be re-deposited when the snowplow comes around again. Don't overexert yourself and strain muscles, especially if they are not used to strenuous exercise. Be aware of the stress that is put on your cardiovascular system.

Best New Old Movie Theater: Old Greenbelt Theatre

This 77-year-old Art Deco theater reopened a month ago after a nearly yearlong renovation. As part of the celebration, it screened Little Miss Broadway, charging 1938 prices (50 cents for adults) and inviting moviegoers to show up in period dress. Excellent entertainment and a trip back in time: That pretty well sums up the theater, an anchor of the eminently livable town Eleanor Roosevelt midwived in the Depression—today a place of artists, activists, and thinkers. When not marking a milestone, the theater shows first-run films on a 40-foot-wide screen. While Washington has other restored theaters, the Old Greenbelt offers another reason to love it: All tickets are less than $10. 129 Centerway, Greenbelt; 301-329-2034.
