A three-day event blends science and philanthropy to support CGD patients

September 11, 2025

SPECIAL TO FLORIDA WEEKLY

West Palm Beach will welcome some of the nation's leading immunologists, physician-scientists, and health professionals for a transformative three-day program designed to raise awareness, expand research, and provide vital support for the CGD Association of America.

The organization is dedicated to patients and families affected by Chronic Granulomatous Disease, a rare immune deficiency disorder that impairs the body's ability to fight certain infections.

The gathering begins on October 27, with an intimate evening reception hosted by Felicia Morton and Lady Denise Fraile. Guests will be able to engage with world-renowned experts, hear directly from carriers, and participate in meaningful conversations in a beautiful setting. More than a gala, the reception sets the tone for an event that promises to inspire, empower, and strengthen connections between the medical and patient communities.

Following the reception, the program expands into a three-day educational series featuring workshops, lectures, and interactive sessions. Patients, caregivers, carriers, and advocates will learn directly from physician-scientists whose groundbreaking research is transforming the field of immunology. Attendees will gain knowledge, build connections, and share perspectives in a collaborative setting that bridges science and community.
