

Nadya's Shopping Spree

Softball, volleyball, and playing catch are all tops on Nadya's list of favorite things to do. She has a soft spot for classic rock and at school, she enjoys English most of all. Nadya, 18, has refractory epilepsy and has undergone many procedures, including brain surgery last summer, to control and reduce her seizures. She confronts her illness with courage and optimism yet there are still many hard days.

Nadya's wish for a shopping spree provided her with a completely joyful, fun-filled experience. Her itinerary had stops at her favorite stores, including Bob's Discount Furniture, Wal-Mart, and the mall, and a lunch of her favorite Asian cuisine. Plus, she had a special list of items that were purchased through online shopping. Nadya's spree brought her all many belongings that she continues to enjoy, from clothing to a set of Beats headphones, a wall mount for her ukulele, an Amazon Echo, accessories for her laptop and phone, manicure supplies, and fun décor for her bedroom like geodes.

For a teen who faces health challenges that can be scary and overwhelming, Nadya's day as a VIP shopper helped her feel open to possibilities as she made purchases she will enjoy now and into the future. Your compassionate support made Nadya's hope-filled wish come true, and we thank for your dedication to our mission.

Thank You
