

JORDAN PUBLICATIONS LLC NEWSLETTER

APRIL 2026

An update from the Director,
Robert Jordan

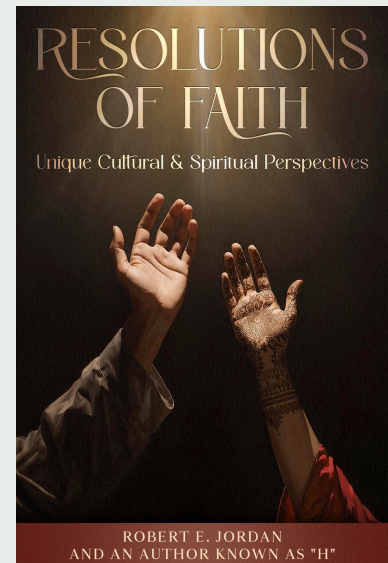

"And surely I am with you always, to the very end of the age" (Matthew 28: 20 NIV)

IN THIS ISSUE

- Resolutions Of Faith: Unique Cultural & Spiritual Perspectives
- Emotional Healing Volume X
- Free Digital Download: *Liaison With Faith

Resolutions of Faith is a devotional crafted for readers who are navigating uncertainty, transition, or the quiet weight of unspoken burdens. Written with a multicultural, trauma-aware lens, it offers brief, steadying reflections that help believers return to clarity, courage, and the nearness of God. Each page invites the reader to pause, breathe, and remember that faith is not a performance but a daily returning—an anchoring in the One who restores strength and renews hope. Whether shared with a congregation, a small group, or a friend in need, Resolutions of Faith serves as a gentle companion for anyone seeking spiritual resilience in a complicated world.

<https://www.amazon.com/stores/Robert-Eugene-Jordan/author/B0BJJ84FT1> <https://jordanpublicationsllc.bigcartel.com/>

Jordan Publications is pleased to announce the release of Emotional Healing Volume X. This new collection of coloring pages offers a calming palette for focused attentiveness, inviting readers into moments of quiet restoration. Each design provides coordinated visual and tactile engagement—an approach shown to help ease the effects of trauma and support emotional steadiness.

At Bright Future Philanthropy Corporation, your tax-deductible gift becomes a lifeline for those who suffer in silence. Your generosity helps protect vulnerable women—often overlooked and at risk—and extends hope to persecuted individuals who face hardship with little support. To learn more, visit <https://fatherbob.co/> or call (757) 770-8652 for specific information.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE

I CAN'T HEAR YOU!

Recently, I was asked, "Where do you draw the line between authentic living and divulging too much to other people to prove your humanity?" Not your random coffee-and-donuts inquiry. So, I had to scratch my head of thinning hair to gather my thoughts. Well, I am a private, simple man. Although I do share a great deal of information about my life, my afflictions, my past, my mistakes, transgressions, heartaches, and heartbreaks, I am very protective about certain aspects of my life that remain too painful to share openly with others. I have deep-seated pain and humiliation from my past that I do not wish to divulge. Of course, I am not alone in these moments when I want to remain hidden. Decades have passed, and people move on, places change, and moments are forgotten. But not by me. For as deep as I descend them, these matters have a long reach. I presume that others, perhaps – a word that in and of itself presumes a haunting – they too remain disturbed in a momentary glimpse of the past. People I have not seen or heard from in decades, I often wonder, have they shuttered such thoughts of me, yet wait to expose the once thoughtless, selfish, and foolish man I once was? My prayer is that they have found peace with the past.

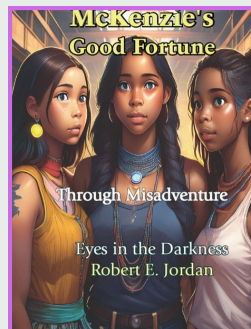

To answer the question about divulging too much to other people to prove my humanity, I would rather prove my humanity by my genuine action and offer myself purposelessly and selflessly in their service. Not that I think the spoken word is cheap, but talking can be drowned in the overwhelming noise of the day. I would rather "work" for others than talk to prove myself to them.

THIS MONTH'S FREE DIGITAL SHORT STORY: SAINTS ON THE BATTLEFIELD

<https://online.fliphtml5.com/zwtic/cwvr/>

In Liaison with Faith, a featured short story in The Warmth of the Gospel, Robert E. Jordan explores how the grace of Christ quietly moves through human relationships, often bridging divides we once believed were unbridgeable. Set against the backdrop of real-world hardship and spiritual longing, the story follows an unexpected connection that becomes a conduit of healing, courage, and renewed trust in God. Through gentle dialogue, shared burdens, and the steady presence of compassion, Liaison with Faith reveals how the gospel's warmth is carried not only in sermons or sanctuaries, but in the simple, sacred act of showing up for another person.

Exciting News!

The McKenzie's Good Fortune Through Misadventure series is available from Robert E. Jordan for a donation and the cost of postage. This trilogy would make a great gift! Email Robert for more information.
jordan.publications.llc@gmail.com