

Making Your Mark: Art for mom

Local artist Larry Johnson uses his talents to make an impression on gallery goers when it comes to the fight for a cure for osteoarthritis

LaSalle Blanks

13News Now

NORFOLK -- Larry Johnson is experiencing an amazing mid-life renaissance. His artwork was just on display in a gallery inside the Hamm Fine Arts Building at Norfolk State University.

It was a big hit.

"I've worked hard and my work has kind of paid off for me," said Larry, who's now pursuing his love making sculptures and creating items out of paper, clay, whatever he can get his hands on.

His work at NSU featured historical figures like Harriett Tubman and Crispus Attucks. It also featured sculptures of people he's met throughout life. But no