

Ryan brings over 18 years of experience in commercial and industrial development to the Sirk team. His diverse background in banking, economic development, business consulting, and site selection allows him to view properties and projects from multiple perspectives to achieve the best outcome for his clients.

While managing a large commercial lending portfolio of more than 125 clients across West Kentucky, Ryan worked with a wide variety of industries and businesses to help them manage cash flow, borrowing needs, liquidity and leverage while still scaling their companies to meet market demand.

Serving as president of a rural economic development agency, Ryan and his team announced 40 new projects and expansions that created over 2,000 jobs and brought in over $200 million in investments to the community. The diversity of those projects spanned from hospitality to restaurants, to large-scale industrial facilities. This also allowed him to work with multiple international companies on four continents.

Ryan currently holds the position of President of Momentum Group, a consulting company that offers planning, feasibility studies, site selection services and project management services to companies and communities across the United States.

He resides in Mayfield, Kentucky with his wife Katie, and their four children Sophie, Emmie, Jack and Luke.
