LEADERSHIP COACHING

In the current climate all leaders need opportunities and support to manage change, develop strategic thinking and achieve challenging and aspirational goals .

With particular relevance for schools and educational settings brain based coaching will benefit all learning and development professionals in middle and senior positions.

Informed by how people take on new information, approach their work and interact with each other the measure of coaching success is behaviour change and the formation of new habits.

Before I started my journey with Frances, I felt like I was free-falling and not sure where I wanted to go next; everything was muddy and unclear. After only a few sessions with Frances everything felt as clear as day. She always knew exactly the questions to ask: all the goals (and steps leading up to them) were on-point and relevant, I felt listened to and really supported. I have now finished our course together and I am now working on exciting and achievable goals to help me move forwards. I know exactly what I want (and what I don't). I cannot thank and recommend Frances enough she is a total magician.
