

I honestly never imagined in my wildest dreams that I'd be working in the cannabis industry as an artist. Growing up, art was never my outlet of choice or really encouraged. Art later became a hobby and sort of therapy for me. Around the same time I began to use cannabis medicinally and got introduced to the community around it. I got to know everyone through vending and staying connected on a patient to patient level. I met all of these beautiful people that wanted to heal and make a difference in the community, and it's been my home ever since.
