Choosing the Right Assessment

Cognitive/IQ Test Only is suited for parents curious about their child's potential giftedness or seeking to support their learning by understanding their cognitive strengths and weaknesses.

Targeted Learning Evaluation is ideal if you're concerned about specific learning challenges, such as dyslexia, dysgraphia, or dyscalculia, or if you've noticed your child struggling academically without significant social-emotional concerns.

Targeted Social-Emotional Evaluation is recommended for families without major learning or academic concerns but who are seeking insights into their child's social-emotional health, potentially exploring diagnoses such as autism/ASD or ADHD.

Comprehensive Evaluation is recommended for a thorough analysis encompassing all areas of concern, providing a complete picture of your child's strengths and areas for support across cognitive, academic, and social-emotional domains.
