The Power of Intergenerational Music

In honor of World Music Day on June 21st, Gentog is proud to celebrate the powerful impact of intergenerational music. This summer, we are highlighting Andy's Music Club, our signature music internship program for high school students. Named in honor of Joseph Konty's dad—who possessed a lifelong passion for mentoring youth and a deep love for music—the internship focuses on three core pillars: music as care, music as performance, and music as a study. Through this seasonal program, young musicians earn service hours, build their resumes, and pour directly into the lives of our seniors. We believe music is a universal healer and absolute medicine; its natural frequencies are woven daily into Gentog's therapeutic modalities to reduce stress, stimulate the mind, and bring generations together in harmony.

The driving force behind this program is Joseph Konty, Gentog's multi-talented Music Director, care partner, and chaplain. A professional "blue-collar" musician who has performed across the country since 2001, Joseph wears an impressive array of hats—including teaching at the Youth Music Project and working as a national music activist. When he isn't sharing his musical gifts or spending time with his beloved family in West Linn, he can be found indulging his passions for poetry, general fashion, and sports (especially the WNBA and NFL). You might also spot him fueling up with a Red Bull—and yes, we know it's bad for you! Next time you run into Joseph, strike up a conversation—we promise a wonderful mix of love, hilarity, and deep musical insight! You can explore his professional journey and creative work at www.josephkonty.com
