Charles “Red” Gates Memorial Scholarship

1/16/1944-3/24/2023

Red’s mother died when he was 4 years old, and his great-grandparents raised him and his younger sister. His great grandmother imparted to Red her spirituality and religion and his great-grandfather passed along a strong work ethic. The family grew most of their food in the garden. Red attended boarding school and after high school graduation, moved to California where he worked, and studied bookkeeping and accounting.

In 1969, Red began his career with the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe. He began his long tenure with the Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations (FDPIR) in 1982 and retired in 2023. As a founding member of NAFDPIR, Red has been involved since its inception. Red participated in a meeting with Oklahoma and New Mexico tribes in 1989 that culminated in the creation of the National Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations (NAFDPIR). In 1993, he was elected President of NAFDPIR, and he served as its President for three more terms. By doing everything he could to make needed changes, Red demonstrated great vision and tenacity, leading to many improvements in the commodity food package. As a result of Red's efforts, the Food Package Review Work Group was created, which resulted in the addition of fresh fruit and vegetables, frozen meat, and many other improvements. His ability to listen to challenges, problems, and ideas, and provide wise, thoughtful guidance is what will be remembered about Charles "Red" Gates. Many people over the years have benefited from Red's wisdom and mentorship. In addition to improving the FDPIR program for current clients, it will benefit future generations as well.
