

Party lines

I am a registered Republican. So, why am I also listed on other party lines? I am running on the platform that I am the 'Candidate for Everyone' and that everyone has a voice - Republicans, Conservatives, Democrats, Working Families Party and Independents. Small town politics can be funny because we're all family, friends and neighbors to each other, so it is mainly only during election periods that party affiliation really matters, to most.

I believed deep down I might win the primary, and wanted to secure in place a ticket where anyone could feel comfortable voting for me in November. I carried my own petitions for the Republican and Independent ticket, and had help by friends carrying petitions for the Conservative ticket. So, if you are a registered Republican, you can vote your party line. If you are one of the 37 registered Conservatives in Colchester, you can also vote your party line. If you are a WFP member (2 registered in Colchester), an independent or a Democrat, you can feel comfortable voting for me on the Independent line.

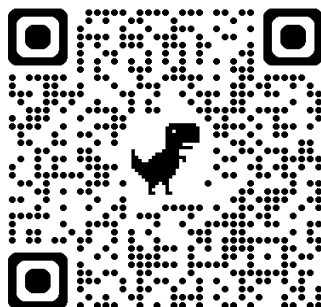

I will tell you, had I lost the primary, I would have dropped out of this race altogether, as the writing would have been on the wall. But, together & with your help, we can all succeed on November 4th and win this election.

I would appreciate your support!

I hope this explains why the ballot appears stacked. As your 'Candidate for Everyone', I will do my best to represent everyone in Colchester.
