No soldiers will be forgotten. No warrior left behind...In battle or at home. That is the cornerstone of the Michael J. Novosel Foundation. A 501(c)3 Not-For-Profit Organization. The Foundation was established in 2007 to assist National Guard & Reservists with the challenges of transitioning from service in Iraq and Afghanistan to civilian lives. After the bright lights of the media have faded, our Warriors return home to find the very system designed to help them is not working. Due to the agonizingly slow pace that the Veterans Administration moves, our warriors face losing their homes, vehicles and utility service. This creates extreme stress on them, their spouses and children after all the tough times they have already been through during multiple deployments. Our Soldiers are coping with physical losses and post traumatic stress disorder on top of low disability ratings from the service groups.
