

Back in July, I changed hours due to an upcoming surgery needed on my back. I had no idea how much power our insurance companies now have on the promptness of medical care. With much dismay I was told I do have severe damage and surgery needed but have just a few hoops to jump through beforehand. To this day I am still waiting for an actual date for surgery, but strongly feel it will be performed by the end of October. With all the uncertainty of my medical needs, life at home, and the upkeep of J's, I have changed my open hours several times and want to apologize. Until I am fully capable of working like before I cannot guarantee that my hours will not fluctuate off and on. But I am happy to announce that I do have a couple new employees that are willing to help provide these open hours. Starting this week (October 17th) J's will be open everyday again. For the most part our hours will be 11am to 8pm seven days a week, I do ask for some patience yet with this transition.

I would like to also take a moment to truly recognize all my employees that have had to deal with all my mental and physical difficulties since July. Every new school year causes my high school employee's incredible hurdles on scheduling their lives and trying to accommodate work hours, this year has caused them more stress with limited work availability. I want to thank everyone still working and those that had to chose school & personal life over work. The youth of our community is so important and with everything they deal with now a day must be overwhelming.
