You are still nervous about signing in front of deaf ASL users.

___ Conversational Communication—You can easily carry a conversation on familiar topics between adult sign language users, but would have difficulty if asked to voice for a non-signer. Your vocabulary is extensive, but not advanced and technical vocabulary is not advanced. This is the equivalent of ASL 2-3 course work. You are nervous, but can put those nerves aside to converse with deaf people.

___ Advanced Communication—You can easily carry on a conversation with native users with ease. You easily translate between ASL users and SEE users. You could comfortably sign or voice for a Deaf user, with minimal error. Communicating with deaf people is natural.

___ Native Language—You are a Deaf person or CODA who uses ASL as a primary home language. If growing up as a CODA, your ASL could easily be mistaken for Deaf rather than hearing.
